SOVIET UNION RAPS U THANT

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Soviet Union today protested strongly against a report by Secretary-General U Thant that showed the Soviets and other Communist states in arrears in their UN dues.

The protest, sent to Thant today by Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko, accused Thant of backing the position of the U.S. in the UN financial dispute.

Scheduled Witness Died in December

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Lucien Rivard testified today at the Dorion inquiry that her brother-in-law Ovide (Dave) Gagnon died at the beginning of December from a heart attack.

Mrs. Rivard, 32, was not asked and did not say why she had not given this evidence when she appeared before the inquiry last week.

The wife of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard said last week that she borrowed $20,000 cash from Gagnon as part of $60,000 intended bail money for her husband.

She said Gagnon was a gatekeeper, ticket-seller and part-time painter at her husband's Plage Ideale resort.

Chief Justice Dorion commented that everyone connected with the commission had expected Gagnon to be a witness.

Commission counsel Andre Des Jardins asked Gagnon's cause of death.

"A heart attack, I think it is called," Mrs. Rivard said.
Chief Justice Dorion asked how old Gagnon was.
"Around 61 or 62," Mrs. Rivard said.

Freighter Crew Takes to Boats

HONOLULU (AP) — The 442-foot Liberian freighter San Nicola radioed today it was sinking 770 miles northwest of Honolulu and the 30 men aboard have taken to lifeboats.

Two planes and a ship responded to the distress call. The 7,242-ton vessel, bound from San Francisco for Formosa with a load of scrap, first messaged at 2.29 a.m. that it was breaking up.

The U.S. Coast Guard said another message at 4.12 a.m. reported those aboard were "now in lifeboats."

A coast guard plane was dispatched from Barbers Point naval station near Honolulu and was believed already at the scene. The U.S. Air Force also sent a plane.

The nearest ship in the area was identified only as the Maria. It headed for the scene.

There was no immediate report on weather in the area.

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Masson, vowing "I was very much the layman," testified to the Dorion inquiry today that he did not know last summer whether the extradition of Lucien Rivard could be prevented.

Masson said all he did in the Rivard affair was pass along word to Raymond Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, that $60,000 was available for the Liberal party election fund if Rivard was not extradited to the United States to face charges in connection with a narcotics smuggling case.

Yves Fortier, counsel for Pierre Lamontagne, suggested that after last July 6 Masson and Denis decided that Rivard had to be released from jail on bail "at any cost."

Masson replied that he did not know what Mr. Fortier meant by the words "at any cost."

He said there never was any question between him and Denis at that time of a bribe or of Mr. Lamontagne's association with the Rivard case.

The witness has identified himself as a "representative" of several companies and a former Liberal party organizer.

TOLD OF BRIBE

Mr. Lamontagne is counsel for the United States justice department which wants Rivard extradited. He has testified that Mr. Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Mr. Fortier asked how, with $60,000 in hand "were you going to go about preventing Rivard's extradition?"

"I had no idea whether we could or couldn't prevent extradition," Masson replied. "I was very much the layman . . ."

"All I did was carry out the errand to Mr. Denis that Mr. Gignac had asked me to do."

Masson has testified that he accepted $1,000 from Robert Gignac, his business partner, now charged with capital murder in a gangland-type slaying here last Sept. 17, to enlist help in Ottawa on Rivard's behalf.

As the hearing reopened before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, Francois Chapados, counsel for Masson, protested about newspaper reports quoting Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre

Throne Speech Stresses Parks, Health, Schools

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

A government program for subsidizing the lower income group's private medical insurance premiums was forecast today in the speech from the Throne as the B.C. legislature opened its 1965 session.

Lieutenant - Governor George Pearkes took about half an hour to read the 3,250-word speech to the glittering opening day assembly in a ceremony that followed a bright, cheery and gusty morning.

Shorter than last year's speech but recording more hydro and forestry progress during the past year, the speech concentrated on programs aimed at human progress in the fields of health, education, probation, parks and pollution.

It also contained a one-sentence promise to amend last year's controversial bank investment legislation which could turn into the "sleeper" of the session if it produces a new flanking movement in the government's battle with the Senate over the Bank of B.C. charter application.

The speech—which is actually written by the premier for the vice-regal representative to read—noted that the B.C. cabinet for years had advocated a national health plan.

Since it now appears the federal government is not prepared to put such a plan into effect at the present time, the legislature was told:

"My government will ask you to consider legislation to provide for government contributions toward the cost of medical insurance services for citizens whose incomes are at lower levels.

Plan Has Voluntary Basis

"Such assistance would be granted in connection with approved medical plans and would be on a voluntary basis."

Premier Bennett declined to tell reporters what the cut-off income level would be for receiving the government help or how many persons would be covered.

However, he said the subsidization program would cost the treasury "many millions of dollars" and will assist "way more than tens of thousands of people."

He also said that he sincerely regrets lack of progress in a national medicare plan and that the B.C. move is designed as an interim step "to help the people who need it most—those in the first group just above" social welfare recipients who already have free medical benefits.

He said that while "we don't intend to wait" for establishment of a national plan, he hoped one would come into existence.

In general outline as revealed by the throne speech, the medical insurance assistance scheme appears similar to one in operation in Alberta and another proposed in Ontario but Premier Bennett refused to draw any comparisons.

Details Secret About Banks

The premier's ready — although necessarily general—elaboration of the medical insurance references contrasted sharply with a teasing mysteriousness when reporters asked for more information about the bank investment sentence.

It read: "An amendment to the Revenue Act in connection with the investment by my government in the shares of chartered banks will be placed before you."

He gave up only two bits of information, each of which could be indicators that the premier plans a "two-bank" policy as a repeat tactic of his famous "two - river" policy which finally broke the impasse in his drive for Ottawa permission to sell downstream benefits of the Columbia River scheme to the U.S.

One of these bits was his answer — delivered with a grin — "it may go beyond that," when asked if the amendment would merely formalize his earlier undertaking to reduce the controversial 25 per cent government investment limit in the proposed Bank of B.C. to 10 per cent.

This was the chief stumbling block in the Senate banking committee which finally recommended that the B.C. application for a charter be denied. That recommendation still needs ratification by the full Senate.

The other "bit" was Mr. Bennett's pointed reference to the plural "banks" used in the 1965 speech — in sharp contrast to the singular used in the controversial legislation last year.

This immediately raised the questions whether the government might be toying with the idea of trying a desperate 11th-hour flanking movement involving some sort of connection with the proposed Vancouver-based but much smaller Laurentide Bank.

(Creditiste leader Real Caouette—a personal friend of Premier Bennett—has already drawn a connection between the Bank of B.C., Laurentide and Winnipeg-based Bank of Western Canada charter applications. He has warned the House of Commons he will oppose the other charters if the Bank of B.C. is turned down.)

Much of the Throne Speech was devoted to lengthy and glowing reviews of the province's booming economy in 1964 highlighted by massive steps forward in hydro-electric programs, pulp mill plants, highways and the ferry fleet.

"In every aspect of their endeavors our people made un-

'Stout Heart Might Beat For Days'

LONDON (UPI)—Sir Winston Churchill's vitality was ebbing by the hour today, but he continued his stout fight to survive.

No physician would predict how long his heart would keep beating, but some of them thought it might go on for days.

Lady Churchill left the house in mid-afternoon for a short automobile drive.

The mid-day medical bulletin from his physician, Lord Moran, read: "There is no change in Sir Winston's condition. There will be a further bulletin this evening."

In this case "no change" was bad news. For Wednesday night Moran said the 90-year-old hero of Britain, who suffered a massive stroke last week, had touched the lowest ebb in his gallant fight for survival.

NO IMPROVEMENT

Obviously there had been no improvement through the night and morning.

No physician familiar with the case would even guess as to how long Churchill might be suspended between life and death.

A spokesman for the British Medical Association, after hearing about the mid-day bulletin, commented: "This sort of condition in his illness could go on for several days."

In the language of the layman what the doctors were saying was that Churchill's vitality had been draining away for several days, but that Wednesday night the rate had accelerated. His circulatory system had begun to deteriorate.

Quebec Plans To Go Ahead With Pension

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—The Quebec government announced today it would introduce its own pension plan within a few months and "a number of measures to stimulate the economy of the province."

These were among the highlights in the Speech from the Throne—an outline of the provincial government's plans for at least the next six months—read by Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois.

The government said it also planned to ask the 95-member legislative assembly to approve financial arrangements now under negotiation for an integrated $225 million iron and steel complex.

Two Bullets Hit Iranian Premier

TEHRAN (UPI) — Premier Hassan Ali Mansur of Iran was seriously wounded in front of the parliament building early today by a youth who fired five shots at him, the government said.

The 41-year-old premier, who assumed office 10 months ago, was rushed to a hospital where he underwent emergency treatment. Later doctors said Mansur was out of danger.

A government communique said:

"An attempt against the premier's life was made this morning before parliament by a youth of 19 years, whose papers showed he was named Mohammed Bokharai."

It was learned the youth, who was captured after a chase, was a senior in a Tehran high school.

TWO SHOTS

Police said two of Bokharai's shots hit Mansur. One of them entered the premier's jaw above the neck and a second hit him in the pelvis area.

The other three shots went wild.

Mansur's aides quoted the premier as saying 'I have been shot." They rushed forward, carried the wounded premier to his car and rushed him to the hospital.

Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi, the Shah of Iran, was vacationing at the ski resort of Abe Ali, north of Tehran, with his empress and their son, Crown Prince Rezah, when news of the attempted assassination was relayed to him.

A special security car with top police officials sped to the ski resort to brief the shah, who was expected to return to the capital immediately.

GLOBAL DETECTION JOB PROPOSED

They Want to Dig to the Bottom of Things

WASHINGTON (AP)—A scientific panel today urged the United States to explore the feasibility of drilling holes up to 10 miles deep in the earth.

The aim would be an unprecedented attempt to help unravel such secrets of the earth as how minerals are made and earthquakes developed. The panel indicated that just studying the idea might cost $50,000,000.

The proposal was made in a report on earth - science subjects. It was prepared by a panel of the National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council.

Said the report: "At present, we know more about the surface of the moon, especially its topography, than we do about the earth's mantle 20 or so miles beneath our feet."

The panel - proposed "super-holes" would be twice as deep as the deepest holes drilled on land in the past for oil prospecting. They would exceed by four miles the depth of the already impending oceanic Mohole Project.

The Mohole will be an attempt to drill a six-mile-deep hole into the ocean floor—with the objective of boring completely through the earth's crust and reaching its mantle. The earth's mantle is believed to begin only about six miles beneath some ocean areas, while its depth beneath continents may be 20 or 30 miles.

The mantle extends down some 2,000 miles below the relatively thin outer crust of the planet, and it's known to play a major but little - understood role in transferring energy from the earth's deep interior to the crust.

It is such energy that results in such phenomena as mountain - building, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, and the creation and dispersal of minerals.

Laporte as making personal remarks about Masson.

The counsel said Mr. Laporte has no business making such references outside the hearings.

Masson testified he was the chief Liberal organizer in Chambly, Que., in 1960.

CALLED POLITICAL ENEMY

Mr. Laporte is the Liberal member for Chambly in the Quebec legislature. He said in an interview Wednesday that Mr. Masson is his greatest political enemy.

Mr. Fortier asked whether Masson knew Andre Letendre, executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau.

Masson said he has known Mr. Letendre fairly well for about a year. It was possible Mr. Letendre had attended the April 8 dinner-meeting of executive assistants of federal cabinet members at which he (Masson) had been present.

Mr. Fortier asked whether Masson is much frightened of Eddy Lechasseur "and his gang."

Lechasseur, possessor of a criminal record and a suspect in a fraud case, was a previous witness at the inquiry.

NOT FRIGHTENED

Masson said that in view of what has been going on it is only natural to be a little nervous, but he was not frightened of Lechasseur.

Masson denied Mr. Fortier's suggestion that fear of Lechasseur had influenced his replies in an interview with the RCMP Sept. 9 and his testimony before the inquiry.

In replies to Guy Guerin, counsel for Mr. Denis, Masson said it was possible he had told Denis that Rivard was a "militant" member of the Liberal party, and that it was possible that Rivard had donated money to the Liberal party.

Masson testified Wednesday that his friendship with Mr. Denis helped him get construction contracts and access to the dinner with the executive assistants.

He elaborated on his earlier testimony that he accepted $1,000 to look in Ottawa for possible means of freeing Rivard.

He said he relayed to his "intimate" friend Mr. Denis that $50,000 to $60,000 was available for the Liberal party campaign fund if Rivard was not extradited.

He said Denis, who left his ministerial post Oct. 1, referred him to Senator Gelinas, the Liberal party treasurer, who refused to grant him an interview on hearing what was involved.

Testifying under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, Masson said he and another person he refused to identify attended a dinner for ministerial aides last April.

DENIES OFFER

He denied he had offered to pick up the bill for the dinner at the swank la Touraine Restaurant.

Mr. Masson, who said his business was to know all people "who have a close or a remote connection with construction," testified he had succeeded in obtaining contracts through his association with Denis.

However, Denis had not provided contracts personally. He had merely introduced the business representative to other people like engineers. "He helped me obtain them . . he didn't obtain them himself."

He said he had regular contact with "five or six" federal departments of which defence construction and public works were two.

. . . THRONE SPEECH

paralleled progress during 1964 and my government will continue to implement programs designed to encourage the development of a dynamic society for the material and cultural enrichment of all British Columbians," it said.

The speech said power rate reductions in the past three years, since B.C. Electric was taken over by the government, have resulted in consumer savings of $13.2 millions annually, and added:

"Further reductions in rates can be expected."

As a result of a rapid growth in the forest industries, the province's five forest district boundaries will be redrawn to create a sixth district.

Activities under the Pollution-Control Act have increased substantially during the past year, especially in protecting water resources and "amendments will be proposed during this session." The amendments are expected to produce a much tougher attitude towards industrial pollution.

Major strides in the educational field — particularly the technical and vocational aspects —were forecast.

"In order to ensure that the demands and challenges of a rapidly developing industrial economy may successfully be met, my government is giving priority to the provision of technical and vocational training opportunities for our citizens," the speech said.

These measures will include a "greatly expanded" apprenticeship program; construction of four more regional vocational schools (announced previously) including one at Victoria; and enlargement of the B.C. Institute of Technology in Burnaby so it can double its enrolment.

Grant Increase for Schools

"You will be asked to increase grants to school districts; to authorize increased expenditures for higher education, for regional vocational schools, and for vocational additions to secondary schools."

(However, this reference did not indicate whether these increases would be the annual raises to keep pace with larger school enrolments or whether it would be something more.)

The speech also said there would be amendments to the Public Schools Acts "including those sections pertaining to district and regional colleges," as well as amendments to the Vocational Schools Assistance Act.

Striking into new territory, the government's plans this session include asking the legislature for "measures to facilitate the creation of model communities in newly-developing areas of B.C." and give them local government status. This appears aimed at avoiding the development of "shack towns" typical in booming areas.

Back into the health field, the speech recounted considerable discussions between the province and Ottawa for conclusion of an agreement to extend hospitalization benefits.

"It is hoped that the provision of hospital insurance benefits to those receiving long-term continuing care will be undertaken during the present year," it added.

Rapid growth of metropolitan areas has put heavy pressure on recreational facilities so "legislation to authorize the establishment of Regional Park Authorities will therefore be placed before you."

Last of the major announcements in the speech was the aim of enlarging the provincial probation service.

"During the year my government has studied closely all aspects of probation procedures, mindful of the necessity to both protect society as a whole and to restore to useful citizenship the greatest possible number of persons who might otherwise be charges upon the penal institutions of this province," it said.

"Accordingly, you will be asked at this session to augment greatly the Probation Service."

Farmers Lease Crown Lands

Cryptic references also were made to amendments to: the Mineral Act; add exemptions to the Succession Duties Act; Petroleum and Natural Gas Act; Land Act—aimed at permitting farmers to lease certain crown timber lands for farming; the Companies Act, and the Credit Union Act's inspection provisions.

Among announcements confirming developments indicated previously were: plans to build a 23-mile spur line from the Pacific Great Eastern's Kennedy Station to the edge of the huge lake to be created by the Portage Mountain Dam; legislation to relocate the Michel and Natal mining communities at Sparwood, under the urban renewal program.

The speech said maximum utilization of the forests will be required to support the tremendous development in this field — pointing out three pulp mills are under construction, six are planned and 12 more feasibility studies are in progress.

A major gap in the speech was lack of any reference to amendments to the provincial Parks Act which is expected to be broadened this year to permit logging and mining developments in certain circumstances.

Burmah Oil to Sue For $60 Millions

LONDON (Reuters) — The Burmah Oil Company will sue the British government for $60,000,000 to compensate it for having to destroy its own installations in Burma on British orders in 1942, it was announced today.

Burmah Oil chairman R. P. Smith told reporters it is hoped the case will come up in court before the fall.

He said that in 1942 Burmah Oil deliberately destroyed its oil installations on the specific instructions of the British government.

'TRIBUTE TO FUTURE'

High Noon Ceremony To Raise New Flag

Mark noon, Feb. 15 in the date book.

That's the day Canada's new red maple leaf flag will flutter for the first time from the Legislative Buildings.

Prime Minister Pearson set the day and the time and Deputy Provincial Secretary Laurie Wallace said Wednesday B.C. will join in the general high noon ceremonies.

Three flags will fly above the Legislative Buildings and two more behind, Mr. Wallace said Wednesday.

In Ottawa on the same day and at the same time, noon, the Red Ensign will be hauled down from the flag staff on the Peace Tower to be replaced by the new flag.

Mr. Pearson said the old flag would be taken down "with appropriate tributes to our past" and the new flag raised "with tributes to our future—if you can pay tributes to the future."

The prime minister has asked all provinces to take part in a nationwide flag-raising ceremony.

Handicapped Gain $1 Grant Increase

Premier W. A. C. Bennett this morning said the $1 monthly boost in assistance allowances, announced Wednesday, will be extended to persons drawing blind and handicapped allowances.

He said the increase will apply to some 35,000 persons, including those on old age assistance, and will cost the provincial treasury about $400,000 a year.

He said the increase will be paid entirely by the provincial government because it is not scaled to individual need and therefore not eligible for the usual 50-50 sharing arrangement with the federal government.

The cost will be added to the current level of about $8 million annual expenditures for the various allowances, half of which is recovered from Ottawa.

PENSIONERS

Protest On Despite Hike

Social Welfare Minister Wesley Black's dollar donation to Victoria pensioners to meet bus fare costs will not halt a planned mass protest.

Mr. Black said Wednesday that the extra dollar would go out this month to 32,000 pensioners who receive supplementary allowances ranging from $1 to $24.

The announcement followed a Social Credit pre-legislative caucus.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director of Silver Threads Service, said this morning she was "quite astounded" by the one dollar offer.

"I don't think I've ever heard of anything quite so foolish," she said. "It might have helped slightly before the bus fares went up, but it is of no use now."

'One More Frightful Error'

"This will have to go down as one more frightful error by the government" she added. "It does nothing to solving the problem that has to be faced. A $5 boost would be more in line but the simple solution is a pass to enable pensioners to ride buses."

While Mr. Black was preparing his one dollar transportation grant, pensioners were busy preparing petitions protesting the recent fare increases and calling for passes to be issued to all over 65 receiving supplementary allowances.

Mrs. Horne said Silver Threads received an unexpected boost Wednesday when the Rest Home Association pledged its full support in the signature drive.

"The association has undertaken the task of distributing petitions in all rest homes in the city," she said. "It will be of great help to us. We shall push ever harder now to get signatures."

R. H. French, president of the 700-strong Victoria No. 1 Pensioners, termed the one dollar grant "an insult."

"This is as low as they can get," he said.

"This is supposed to be the richest province in Canada, yet in Alberta — Edmonton and Calgary — the pensioners are issued a free pass when the first cheque comes in January," he said.

Mr. French also expressed fears that the one dollar increase would cause some landlords to raise their rents. "It has happened before," he warned.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan had one terse comment on the issue. "There is a price tag on this dynamic society — $1."

Mrs. V. L. Hawkins, administrator of Kiwanis Villege, also expressed disappointment at the size of the increase.

"It is very inadequate," she said. "We build things to entertain the pensioners and suggest they have a longer life through medical aid. Now they are denied things which would make life a little more pleasant."

Only one man dealing with pensioners gave grudging approval to the one dollar increase.

Brigadier V. C. Underhill, superintendent of the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge said the dollar boost would help.

"Anything done to help them will contribute to their happiness," he said. He added that he had not noticed any particular discontent in the lodge. "We have a fairly happy group here," he said. "After they have paid their room and board they still have $15 in their pockets."

Douglas 'Confused' On Treaty Rights

NANAIMO (CP) — Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, says he thinks Sir James Douglas was "confused" when in 1854 he granted treaty hunting and fishing rights to Indians on Vancouver Island, signing as governor of the island.

The archivist in a speech here this week said that the court action surrounding the Indians' rights hinges on by what authority Sir James Douglas signed the treaties.

"He was governor of Vancouver Island," Mr. Ireland said, "and top official of the Hudson's Bay Company. He signed the treaty as Sir James Douglas, governor of Vancouver Island. But the Hudson's Bay Company owned the land."

CRUX OF CASE

Mr. Ireland said that was the crux of the case brought before the courts by the Saalequin band and in which he appeared as a witness. The provincial Appeal Court upheld a lower court decision that the Indians had year-round hunting rights on crown land despite regulations laid down in the provincial Game Act.

The attorney-general's department, concerned lest the court rluing lead to chaos in the game department, is planning to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Communists Blast German MLF Plan

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet bloc's leaders decided at their Warsaw conference to take counter measures against West Germany's participation in the proposed NATO nuclear multilateral force, East German Communist party boss Walter Ulbricht reported today.

Ulbricht returned to East Berlin after the two-day meeting with Soviet leaders Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin and the Communist party and government chiefs of Poland, Hungary, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

All participants agreed, Ulbricht said, to condemn all plans that would allow West Germany to participate in any form whatsoever in the proposed nuclear force, known as MLF.

"They agreed on the necessity to effectively counter this danger," Ulbricht said without giving any details.

Tory Record in Quebec Good, Hamilton Says

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's record on relations with Quebec, central issue in the Conservative party's public squabble, has come in for praise and blame by two of his former cabinet ministers.

Alvin Hamilton, agriculture minister for more than two years, tried to convince a national television audience Wednesday night that the former prime minister is not a "big, bad wolf" and said "our record with Quebec is good."

Quebec leader Leon Balcer, a former transport minister, is quoted as telling party President Dalton K. Camp that "on every issue touching the taproots of Confederation, the hopes and aspirations of French Canada have been distorted, misrepresented and ignored."

Mr. Balcer's remarks were taken from a letter he sent Jan. 15 to Mr. Camp following the demand by the 10 Quebec Conservative MPs for an early leadership convention. Text of the letter was released to reporters by Mr. Balcer's office in Ottawa.

The controversy spread to English-speaking members. A Canadian Press tally counted 26 in favor of Mr. Diefenbaker and eight urging selection of a new leader. Eleven made non-committal remarks.

The demand for a leadership convention had support from 10 outside Quebec. But 24 said they are opposed to a convention and see no need for one.

There are 96 Conservatives in the 265-seat Commons.

Party House Leader Gordon Churchill, a staunch ally of the opposition leader, hopes these divergent views can be reconciled in private discussions after Parliament resumes Feb. 16.

ALL ARE FRIENDS

"Basically, we are all Conservatives and we are all friends, and we have been able to resolve these things without coming to blows in the past," he said.

The 10-member Quebec caucus has said it will meet again if the party's national executive does not fix a leadership convention date before Parliament resumes. Mr. Balcer was unavailable for comment on whether the group is willing to wait.

Mr. Balcer is reported to have written that "The Conservative party can no longer carry on as a great national party under its present leadership and the policies that leadership has engendered.

". . . It would be tragic for all of us—and perhaps fatal to Confederation itself" were the party "so misguided as to indulge in the political luxury of nourishing an anti-Quebec backlash.

". . . It is because we are Conservatives that we have been so deeply disturbed by a trend which, increasingly, leaves representatives of one of the founding races feeling ill at ease and uncomfortable within the party."

The greatest problem confronting Canada, Mr. Balcer is reported as writing, is that involving relations between French- and English-speaking Canada.

"It is a question that may be a source of embarrassment at times in both communities. But it is the great question before us nonetheless; to be ignored at our peril."

Mr. Hamilton, pinch-hitting for his chief on the CBC's free-time political series, The Nation's Business, deplored the fact that since 1963 many Liberals "began to centre on John Diefenbaker as the ogre who was opposed to Quebec."

To illustrate the party's "good" record with Quebec, he cited such things as university grants, the Trans-Canada Highway and hospital care insurance.

"On the cultural side there was great willingness to accommodate.

"After lengthy consideration, we turned down the idea of a royal commission on biculturalism and bilingualism because every member of our cabinet agreed that it would tend to divide the country."

He said the Conservatives had proposed an approach to constitutional and national symbols problems that would keep the country together.

APPOINTED by the Queen as lord lieutenant of Greater London is Field Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis, former governor general of Canada.

'Change Without Hatred'

PRESIDENT JOHNSON IN HIS inaugural address promised to lead his nation toward "progress without strife and change without hatred." Whatever his successes or failures in other fields, the portents are good that history will remember him for keeping this promise in American domestic affairs.

One hundred years after the end of the civil war, which supposedly set free the Negroes of the United States, they remained in many ways still in bondage to the white man. The Negro's resentment of his condition and his determination to alter it in the face of often violent opposition threatened to bring on a struggle which would shake the country—socially, morally and economically—to its foundations.

The late President Kennedy saw solution of the problem as fundamental to the unity and well-being of the nation. With great courage he made plans to solve it. No one can say how well he would have succeeded had his life been spared. He did, however, lay the groundwork and, fortunately, imbued his colleague and successor with a burning desire to secure equality before the law for all Americans regardless of color.

How well Mr. Johnson has succeeded in the task handed on to him can be seen in his negotiation through Congress of civil rights legislation stronger and more effective than many considered possible. By a combination of persuasive appeal and firm enforcement of the law, he has made integration a fact in the public life of America.

The battle is not yet completely won. Many Americans are not yet ready to heed Mr. Johnson's plea to "reject any among us who seek to re-open old wounds and rekindle hatreds."

In Selma, Alabama, this week the Rev. Martin Luther King was attacked by a white racist. But his assailant was promptly arrested and sentenced to jail. Hundreds of Negroes in the town were also jailed for refusing to obey the whim of a sheriff as to which door to the courthouse they should use to register as voters. But the arrests were not accompanied by the brutality of truncheons and vicious dogs that marked similar incidents in the South not too long ago.

Further, the formal integration of Selma's public places was accomplished peacefully as the white people made room for Negroes in hotels and restaurants in obedience to the law of the land.

The experience in this town, and in many other strongholds of white supremacy in the United States, seems to weaken the argument that "You can't legislate against discrimination." Certainly legislation is not the whole answer to a problem whose solutions also requires love for one's fellow man and respect for the rights and dignity of the individual.

But events in the United States in recent weeks have shown that a strong civil rights law, rigidly enforced, is a vital first step toward ending racial discrimination. Only if oppressed groups are accorded all the rights guaranteed by law to all citizens can they work successfully to raise their general economic, educational and cultural status to a level which will command widespread respect from those who now consider themselves superior.

President Johnson has recognized this fact as did President Kennedy before him. The Johnson inaugural promise: "I will lead as best I can," gives hope that the wounds of racialism will be greatly eased in coming years.

Not Just for Our Benefit

CANADA'S NEWLY APPROVED long-term immigration policy seeks an inflow of skilled and professional workers as well as educated people who can be trained by Canadian industry in a variety of occupations.

This is a natural development from numerous surveys of Canadian needs.

We require more teachers, more university professors, more scientists, more technicians, more doctors, more dentists, more "brains"—if we are to capitalize on our resources, human and otherwise.

The problem is that most other countries need the same. They, as we, want the cream.

But Canada, one of the rich and comfortable nations, loses a significant element of its character if it permits entry only of those people who can be of benefit on the basis of abilities and qualifications already proved.

As a young country we admitted many people from many lands who came here with an honest desire to improve themselves and their condition in life. And more recently, in a display of humanity which should be a source of pride, we welcomed the dispossessed and the victims of Hungary's broken revolt.

Enlightened self-interest requires us to seek out good immigrants who can make a contribution to our way of life. But that way of life would be considerably less attractive than it is if we closed the door to others who were less fortunate. Were we to do so, this would be not quite the land of opportunity which Canadians want it to be.

Trouble at Langford

HEALTH AUTHORITIES HAVE issued sharp warnings against domestic use of Langford Lake water and residents of the area have repeated their pleas for government action to overcome the hazard and to improve the lake for summer swimming and recreation.

What has led to the intrusion of blue green algae there is apparently not yet dermined. Its presence, however, can cause severe illness to humans and has been lethal to some dogs.

No doubt efforts will be made by the government to clear up the condition. The former summer resort area which has become a year-around residential dormitory for people working in Victoria is too important an adjunct of our community to be allowed to suffer.

The situation in Langford should also stimulate consideration of damage to lakes on the southern part of the Island. So far intensive development around their shores has not proved seriously detrimental to health. There are, however, definite risks incurred by congested population.

Some protective regulation is being enforced in various localities. Is it enough?

No Green Light

TWO COMPANIES HAVE asked Victoria to relax its sign bylaw and the public works committee has wisely advised the city council to decline the request.

This is the latest chapter in a serial story.

In its efforts to preserve the attractiveness of Victoria, the council has hammered out a bylaw which is by no means harsh. It is not, of course, as elastic as businessmen who sell signs would like it to be. The latter keep trying to have it changed. This is normal.

Fortunately the public works committee is alert to the dangers of loosening the regulations. Victorians should thank them for that alertness.

"To be, or not to be: that is the question."

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

The Bold Car Trip

THE Canadian-American "free trade" agreement on vehicles and original parts, which may set a precedent for other industries, is a bold step forward along the path charted by Dr. John Deutsch and the Economic Council of Canada.

Western

It is not free trade in the classic sense because it is stamped: for manufacturers only. But there would be no point in extracting assurances from manufacturers while creating conditions by the same agreement which made the assurances impossible of fulfilment. What the accord foresees is a controlled advance towards market-sharing on a continental basis.

The central theme of the Deutsch report is balanced development. In the case of the automobile industry, public policy is to be directed towards at least four ends. The first is expansion of production leading to more jobs in the automotive and allied industries. The second is greater efficiency enabling Canadian manufacturers (regardless of ownership) to achieve a stronger competitive position both in the North American and in foreign markets. The third is economic viability; the trade in vehicles and components now accounts for about $600 millions of our annual balance of payments deficit and we have been warned that this deficit may by 1970 have widened to $1.5 or $2 billions.

Finally, there is the objective of cheaper cars. This is a benefit which will accrue in the longer term as competition brings about a narrowing differential between Canadian and U.S. prices.

There is another consideration which has obviously been in the mind of the government. Canada has been a beneficiary of the Geneva agreements and it remains very much in our interest that the rules of GATT should continue to be honored scrupulously by all participants.

GATT Terms

From the Canadian standpoint, the agreement signed at Johnson City meets this test. No tariff concession has been taken away from Britain or from our European trading partners.

It is true that free trade with the United States does involve an impairment of the British preference. This margin was not bound by past agreements. But two points are to be noted. The first is that, in the early years of the agreement, the effect on the price structure will be minimal and, accordingly, the British price advantage in the Canadian market will not be materially affected. There will be no sudden and disruptive change such as that which occurred, for example, with the devaluation of the Canadian dollar in 1962.

The second point is that the arrangement is open to any country which desires to participate. It is nondiscriminatory. For example, Volvo — the Swedish firm established in Nova Scotia — is expected to qualify immediately. An expanding market will, it is hoped, encourage other firms to follow Volvo's lead. There is a stipulation that the aggregate value of imported materials must not exceed 60 per cent (after January 1, 1968, 50 per cent) of the appraised customs value of automobiles or components imported into the United States.

In a sense the very limitations of the agreement may be taken as pointers to the future. We are obviously moving forward by planned stages. The much more modest arrangement of November 1963, permitting manufacturers to earn duty remissions by increasing their exports, caused much alarm in the Canadian parts industry. But despite various predictions of disaster, there is now greater activity in the parts industry and more employment than there was a year ago.

This fortunate experience has not, unhappily, removed the apprehensions of the parts manufacturers. From their standpoint, the new agreement is considerably more blood-chilling than the old. While it is highly probable that they will have to move in the direction of greater specialization, they remain protected by the Canadian content rules which have the effect of placing a floor under domestic components.

Trend to Continue

No doubt the forward movement will continue. The present agreement is restricted: it does not extend to replacement parts, the trade in which accounts for perhaps $100 million of the annual $600 million automobile deficit with the United States. But there is no good reason why such limitations should be permanent. As the parts industry achieves greater efficiency and competitive strength, it should be possible to extend the agreement with benefit to both industrialists and consumers.

As noted above, Canadian officials see no difficulties in the agreement arising from rules of GATT. The position of the United States may, however, be somewhat different because European producers do not enjoy the free entry to the American market which will now be accorded Canadian manufacturers. It is understood that there have already been consultations on this subject and that Washington will seek a waiver according to the terms of the Geneva agreement.

JOHNSON'S PROBLEM

By JOSEPH ALSOP

A Gap at the Centre

AMID the eagles and the trumpets, with solemn rites and Texas exaggerations, Lyndon B. Johnson is beginning his first term as a President duly elected in his own right. It seems a good time for stock-taking.

Alsop

Glowing optimism is the fashion of the moment, so this is what might be called a semi-minority report. The truth is that optimism and pessimism about the Johnson presidency are both unjustified. Wait-and-see has to be the watchword, if you take stock honestly.

The most glowing optimism would be entirely justified, to be sure, if Mr. Johnson were only being inaugurated at almost any moment before the Second World War thrust the role and responsibilities of a giant world power upon a somewhat reluctant America.

Before this great divide in our history—even in the early Roosevelt years when Lyndon Johnson was formed and trained as a politician—an American President was mainly judged by his management of our affairs at home. And if Mr. Johnson could only afford to concentrate almost exclusively on domestic problems, as Franklin Roosevelt did from 1932 to 1939, the most glittering success could reasonably be predicted for him.

Effective at Home

In the brief interval since he finished President John Kennedy's business and began doing business on his own, the President has already given ample proof of his persuasiveness, craft and creativeness. In home affairs, in fact, we can count on the President to hornswoggle or inspire us to do all things that really need doing. And if any President does that much he is automatically a great President.

But home affairs, alas, are not all we have to worry about. Since the great divide was crossed on Pearl Harbor Day, the ultimate test of an American President's success has been his management of America's world-power position. As was once said by the wise majority leader of the House, Carl Albert of Oklahoma:

"If we fail abroad it won't help much to succeed at home; and if we succeed abroad there will be no home problems we cannot solve in the end."

It is pretty bad luck for President Johnson that this should now be the rule, for two fairly obvious reasons. The first reason is the character of the man himself. Foreign affairs have never been his primary interest, and he is not the sort of President who inevitably becomes his own secretary of state.

The second reason is the character of the foreign affairs apparatus the President inherited from his predecessor. It is an apparatus specifically designed to suit John F. Kennedy, who was his own secretary of state from the day he was inaugurated. It cannot work well, and it is not working well, in the hands of President Johnson.

It is not working well because there is no possible source of detailed direction and sustained leadership in foreign affairs. In President Kennedy's day the direction and leadership came from the White House.

Only President Can Lead

The immensely able and tough-minded McGeorge Bundy still heads the White House foreign affairs staff, so there is no surface appearance of change. But neither Bundy nor his staff can lead and direct; only the President can do that. And in order to do that, the President would have to make the effort he has not made—to be his own secretary of state.

Normally this change at the White House would have wrought a profound change at the State Department. We ought to have seen, by now, the kind of massive shift of responsibility from the White House to the State Department that occurred when Franklin Roosevelt died. Such a shift can bear fruits, as was proven in the first Truman administration, which still remains the heroic era of American foreign policy making.

There has been no shift, however, because of the unusual temperament of Dean Rusk. He has rendered great public service. He has brilliant intelligence and long experience. But he has such a temperamental aversion to making a final commitment (which means accepting a final responsibility) that President Kennedy did not know whether his own secretary of state favored or opposed the operation until just 12 hours before the Bay of Pigs.

At the centre, therefore, there is a great gap where leadership and direction are wanting. The crucial unanswered questions about the Johnson administration, which will determine its success or failure, are whether this gap will be filled and how it will be filled. But, as Lyndon Johnson is surely one of the most astute and formidable men who has ever come to the White House, one may still hope he will find good answers.

As Our Readers See It

Asset Or Deficit?

Why the suggestion of a bar in the new McPherson Theatre? To increase revenue? Since the building itself was a gift that would seem a bit too mercenary. Surely there would be no lack of citizens in Victoria with an appreciation of good entertainment to make the theatre a success.

Granted, there are people who feel the need of alcoholic beverages to bolster their courage or their ego in times of crises. One sympathizes with these unfortunates, but feels there are already sufficient outlets to meet their requirements, and two hours of theatre enjoyment could hardly require extra fortification.

Or, perhaps it is felt that we should emulate people of other countries who are connoisseurs of fine wines. Do we have to be conformists, and is our ratio of alcoholics already not high enough?

As for those signing petitions, so disparagingly referred to by one of your writers, many of them may have had in mind the non-glamorous side of social drinking; many may be social workers with pretty strong views on the subject, or some may simply have been subjected to the "brilliant conversation" at cocktail parties. At least, they are not conformists.

THEATRE WELL-WISHER.

Wait for Real Show

People who may be disappointed at not being able to attend the official opening of the Legislature, and miss being in the centre of the pomp and ceremony that takes place, can wait for a few days until the business sessions get into full swing.

When opposition members are asking questions and seeking information from our cabinet ministers on subjects about which they are not too keen on answering, seats are not too difficult to obtain then. And the show below the gallery becomes a lot more interesting once the premier gets wound up.

FROM AUSTIN, TEXAS

By RICHARD PURSER

Blazing a New Trail?

THE brisk winter air at President Johnson's ranch 70 miles west of here sparkled with international goodwill as he and Prime Minister Pearson signed the Canada-U.S. auto tariff-ending agreement on Saturday. Mr. Pearson was a major contributor; he was in his best and most outgoing form. As he said: "This is one of the most important accords ever signed between our two countries in the trade field." But a persistent misconception continued to lurk in the minds of some of the Americans whose business is to interpret the agreement to their countrymen. This is that the accord is somehow to become the basis for wider ranging Canada-U.S. agreements.

Purser

Americans, in a boundless friendliness toward Canada, often wonder why the famous unfortified border shouldn't be further reduced by economic union. There is a tendency to leap at any official statement of goodwill as a pointer in that direction.

There were plenty of such statements around here over the weekend. Although a high U.S. official imported from Washington to brief the press specifically refused to describe the agreement as a step towards a customs union, American reporters were intrigued by the following statement in an official printed document:

U.S. Gratified

"Apart from the specific benefits expected to accrue to automobile production and trade, the United States government considers this step toward free trade to be in a highly desirable direction so far as the broad U.S.-Canadian commercial relationship is concerned."

The preamble to the agreement itself says the two countries recognize "that an expansion of trade can best be achieved through the reduction or elimination of tariff and all other barriers to trade operating to impede or distort the full and efficient development of each country's trade and industrial potential."

Mr. Pearson was obviously anxious not to pour cold water on the idea of further trade liberalization. Asked by a reporter whether the auto agreement could be used as a basis for other agreements, he said:

"We would like to explore that possibility . . . But the automotive industry, the organization of it on this continent, lends itself to this kind of agreement more easily than other industries . . ."

In practice, officials accompanying the two leaders here pointed out, there is no sign of an imminent tariff-ending agreement in any other industry. Officials were unable even to think of any industry where the auto agreement formula itself could be applied. It is further pointed out that the auto agreement did not arise from any abstract decision to take a step toward freer trade. It arose in negotiations seeking a solution to an international relations problem; Canada's tariff rebate scheme on car parts and the threat of U.S. retaliation. Negotiators happened to light on an ingenious solution that solved more than that problem alone.

The true international significance of the agreement is summed up in Mr. Johnson's remarks at the signing ceremony, which in turn sum up his philosophy of international relations:

"Two years ago it appeared that our two countries might have grave differences in this great field of trade. We faced a choice between the road of stroke and counterstroke and the road of understanding and co-operation. We have taken the road of understanding."

And in Mr. Pearson's reply:

"This wasn't accomplished easily, and it could not have been accomplished at all if there had not been that mutual understanding, good will and confidence which has grown up between our two countries over the years."

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

The pomp and ceremony that surrounds opening of the British Columbia Legislature is concluded. The Speech from the Throne has been said. The reception given by the premier and members of the executive council, and their wives, is over.

Now, all eyes are turned on Government House where, tonight, the State Ball will be held.

Already lights are shining along the winding driveways and from every window in the gracious mansion. Already last minute touches have been made to arrangements of potted plants and cut flowers, brought from greenhouses in the lower garden for the occasion.

Already cooks in the kitchen, immaculate in their white aprons and tall hats, have given final nod of approval to delicious foods that will be served at a midnight buffet.

In the state dining room and lower lounge, along the upper hallways and on one side of the balcony overlooking the ballroom, tables have been set for the supper. Each one is centred with early spring flowers.

Very shortly now, the big doors at the main entrance will be opened. Scarlet-coated members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will take their places in review order, near the red carpet that stretches from the entrance to the foot of the stone steps.

Cars will draw up in a continuous stream as leaders in all phases of public service in the province, and their wives, arrive for this eagerly-awaited event.

* * *

British Columbia's beloved Lieutenant-Governor, George R. Pearkes, and his equally beloved wife, will receive the 600 guests in the state drawing room where the dignity of green, gold and ivory white decor has been enhanced with many flowers.

From there, guests will proceed to the crimson and gold ballroom where a dance orchestra will play from a dais banked with colorful plants that include azaleas, cinerarias and spring flowers.

Wednesday night, in the ballroom, a state dinner was served at a table set in the form of a hollow square and arranged in the centre of the stately room.

In past years, the dinner has been held in the dining room on three different evenings extending over a period of several weeks.

This year, by using the ballroom, it has been possible for His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to plan the dinner for two evenings and within a period of one week.

* * *

Tonight, when guests enter the stately room, they will find a delightful surprise awaiting them. One that has been carefully planned and kept "almost a secret" until the dinner, Wednesday evening.

It's a waterfall, complete with rockery, pool and a fountain, arranged at the sitting-out end of the ballroom, in the curved alcove where windows look out toward Juan de Fuca Strait and Port Angeles.

Built under the watchful eyes of the Lieutenant-Governor, whose imaginative idea it is, the water dances and ripples over big rocks to a pool below. There, a ring of water rises almost two feet around a central fountain that feathers up much higher.

In earth pockets, amongst the rocks, orchids, azaleas and spring flowers have been placed. Colored lights illuminate the fountain and give it an exciting appearance of gem-like brilliance.

Above the waterfall, on the facing of the balcony, three flags wave—the Union Jack, the Red Ensign and the flag of British Columbia.

In panels around the curve of the balcony floor are plaques holding official crests of 18 cities in the province, including Victoria. There is room for many more.

This is the setting! The hour is 9:30 p.m. Government House is ready. Lights are shining on the driveways and in the windows.

The State Ball will soon begin!

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA — The Canadian-American agreement for division of the North American auto market between the two countries on an equitable basis is so sensible that the wonder is that it hasn't been attempted before this.

Perhaps the answer is that in the past the economic pressure for this step hasn't been great enough, and the psychological factors haven't been right.

The idea has been bruited about for years, because it has long seemed logical to adapt to the auto industry the integrated continental production system that the farm implement industry has developed since the First World War. With neither country levying tariffs on agricultural equipment, the major farm implement manufacturers operate plants in both countries and divide production of the various types of equipment among their various plants without regard for the international boundary—so that a plant in one country would produce all the tractors, say, for North America and for export, while a plant in the other country would produce all the combines or all the seeders.

The Bladen royal commission on the automotive industry called attention to the example of the farm implement industry in 1962, but considering the political upheavals at that time it's hardly strange that the idea didn't germinate into quick action. It had to await the second year of the Liberal administration.

It also had to wait upon psychological factors for receptivity in Washington, and in the auto capital of Detroit. It needed the rapprochment between Ottawa and Washington that flowed from Hyannisport to revive the spirit of Canadian-American co-operation, and it needed the climate of the Kennedy Round to predispose Washington towards tariff cutting.

* * *

The auto industry is private enterprise at the zenith of its development, proud of its achievements, strong in its power—and in peacetime almost beyond the authority of Washington and Ottawa so far as its manufacturing decisions are concerned. It could not be ordered; it needed to be convinced that the Ottawa plan was in its interests as well as those of Canada.

With Canada consuming 7.5% of continental auto production but producing only 4%, the target set by the government for Oshawa and Windsor is a one-third increase in production over normal growth by 1968. In getting industry's acceptance of this goal, which of course had to be approved in Detroit, the government wisely left it up to industry how to achieve this goal.

* * *

If the farm implement example is followed, as would appear logical, General Motors at Oshawa might produce all the Buicks for the continent, achieving lower unit costs by greatly extended production runs, while GM in Detroit might produce all the Chevs, Pontiacs, Olds and Cadillacs.

Canadian car prices won't get down near the U.S. level for years. That's a living standard increase we will have to earn by increased productivity and efficiency. But it's imaginative programming like this auto plan that will give us those increases, and the jobs needed for the million-plus explosion expected in the labor market by 1970.

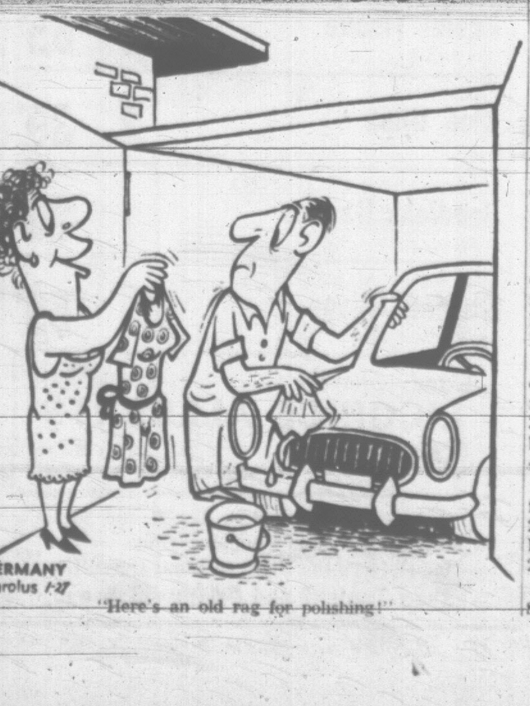
THE BEST FROM EUROPE



"Here's an old rag for polishing!"

NOMINATED for another six-year term as president of United Arab Republic is Gamal Abdel Nasser who won support of Egypt national assembly Wednesday. Date for election has not yet been set.

Europe Allies Still Disagree On MLF Plans

PARIS (UPI)—Talks between President Charles de Gaulle and Chancellor Ludwig Erhard appeared today to have partially shored up the troubled Franco-German alliance. But the U.S.-proposed nuclear force to defend Europe remained a sharp point of disagreement.

The two leaders concluded two days of conferences Wednesday at de Gaulle's hunting castle 30 miles southeast of Paris.

Erhard, who faces an election this fall, said the talks were "crowned with success."

"There wasn't a single sour note," Erhard told newsmen when he returned to Bonn last night.

French spokesmen did not go that far.

Erhard was referring to "a new beginning toward a political union of Europe." He said de Gaulle pledged French participation in a new western allied approach to the Soviet Union on the question of unifying East and West Germany.

In Paris, however, French and West German spokesmen said de Gaulle and Erhard sidestepped all questions about the nuclear issue — the plan for a nuclear-armed navy manned by crews representing the NATO nations.

PRESSED ERHARD

De Gaulle has been pressing for the past several months to abandon the so-called MLF concept. He wants West Germany to rely entirely on his fledgling "force de frappe" (strike force) for nuclear protection.

De Gaulle has even gone as far as to threaten that West Germany's claim to national reunification was being jeopardized by a German participation in the MLF project.

Questioned on that point Wednesday, a well-informed German spokesman said it was not discussed in detail during the de Gaulle-Erhard talks. But he reiterated that West Germany, as the most exposed country of the NATO alliance, still insists on some form of influence on nuclear planning and strategy.

There was no indication that de Gaulle was willing to yield on his insistence of a Europe free of what he calls American "domination."

Radio Tapes Of Speech Protested

TORONTO (CP)—Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe was criticized Wednesday for recording portions of his speech from the throne in advance so the recorded "cuts" could be distributed to radio stations.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said in an interview: "When the Queen's representative becomes, in effect, a PR (public relations) officer for the government news service, then the honored traditions of our Parliament are being demeaned."

Government press officers sent five extracts from the speech, varying in length from 20 seconds to 43 seconds, to 65 radio stations in the province prior to the opening of the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

They were accompanied by a listing of the topics the tapes dealt with and the radio stations were advised they could use the extracts on the air at 3 p.m.

It was about 3.15 p.m. before the lieutenant-governor began reading the government-written speech outlining some of the legislation to be presented in the legislature during the session.

NO SHORTAGE OF ABUSE

U.S. Unhappy With World Role

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Johnson's inaugural statement that the United States "can never again stand aside, prideful in isolation," will fall unsympathetically on many American ears.

It comes at a time when many Americans feel their country has suffered more than enough abuse—from Paris to Jakarta and from Saigon to Cairo.

Conversations with Americans repeatedly reveal frustration and irritation over what are regarded as gratuitous insults to the United States.

Americans ask themselves—and others—why they should bend before de Gaulle; feed foreign aid to those who burn American libraries or tolerate a Castro regime just off the coast.

SELDOM LIKED

They concede that anti-Americanism is not new, that the wealthy and powerful are seldom liked.

But they nevertheless show that the incessant and increasing abuse has had a psychological effect on the nation; causing deep-seated resentment against the outside world.

The effect is two-sided: For some there is an inclination to pull back inside "fortress America" and let the rest of the world go hang. Others look back with nostalgia on Teddy Roosevelt's "big stick," and feel the United States should show a much harsher face to those who try to twist the eagle's tail.

These sentiments seem even to creep into the conversation of some Americans who realize full well that gunboat diplomacy is outdated and that the U.S. cannot possibly draw back now into the isolationist shell of the 30s.

Some of these people voted against Barry Goldwater's brand of tough brinkmanship, but nevertheless feel a reluctant sympathy for it.

AFFECTS GOVERNMENT

The very fact Johnson included the reference to isolationism in his speech indicated awareness of the public mood.

How this will be transferred into government action is still to be seen.

But already there is discernible reaction in Congress and the administration over foreign aid. This year's foreign aid request was the smallest an administration has presented to Congress since the Marshall Plan days.

And there is evidence the administration plans to crack down hard on minor anti-American provocations of the library-burning type.

But on the big issues—Viet Nam, The Congo, or the proposed Atlantic nuclear force—the likelihood is that the administration will continue to walk softly and keep its big stick out of sight.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something y.u want to know? I'o you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question an Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Elizabeth Allen, age 8, of Utica, N.Y., for her question:

How did all the salt get into the ocean?

Andy's faithful old readers grow up and younger ones come along. Many of the same old questions pop into the heads of the younger readers. They must be answered, but Andy hates to repeat himself. So he always finds a new way to answer or a new bit of information to add to an old favorite.

Almost everyone has wondered why the tangy water of the sea is so salty. The oceans are fed by rains and rivers—rain pours down drops of fresh water and rivers pour in streams of more fresh water. None of this fresh water, you would think, can add salt to the salty sea. True, the salt does not fall down with the fresh rain water, but every day more and more salt is added to the sea by the running rivers.

A great river gathers its water from countless smaller streams that come running down from far and wide. All this running water licks the ground, the rocks and stones as it gurgles along its way. Its wet little tongues dissolve scraps and fragments from the soil and even softer scraps from the solid rocks.

These dissolved particles disappear, just as a pinch of salt disappears when you dissolve it in a glass of water. The running streams disolve gold and silver and other minerals from the land. But most of their dissolved minerals are chemical salts of various kinds. All these and other invisible particles are swept along by the running rivers and dumped with their waters into the ocean.

Supply Sea With Salt

The sea never gives these salty chemicals back to the land. As the smiling sun beams down, it evaporates or dries up water from the surface of the sea. But only the fine particles of water change into gas and go off to mingle with the air. Almost all of the dissolved chemicals are left behind. The ocean holds onto the salty chemicals stolen from the land, and every day the running rivers dump still more chemicals into the seas. This has been going on for millions and millions of years, so the salty sea gets saltier every year.

The water in the rivers seems fresh to us, and it does indeed have much less salt than ocean water. But all river water gathers up traces of salty chemicals as it runs over the ground. There are a lot of rivers in the world, and the experts tell us that every year they add several billion tons of salty chemicals to the ocean.

The experts think that millions of years ago, when the world was young, its oceans were filled with fresh water. Year by year the running rivers stole all kinds of chemicals from the land. Year by year they emptied these dissolved salts and other chemicals into the sea. We are told that there are now about 50 quadrillion tons of dissolve' salt in the world's salty seas.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

BROADWAY GRAPEVINE — Richard Rodgers has accepted the chairmanship of the benefit premiere of "The Sound of Music," March 2 at the Rivoli. At the supper-dance afterwards, the Humanitarian Award of the May MacArthur Fund of the March of Dimes will be given posthumously to Oscar Hammerstein. His widow will accept . . . Diana Sands, star of "The Owl and the Pussycat," received an invitation to attend the Inaugural—but it didn't arrive until late, so she can't attend. The boat has sailed as far as the show is concerned; there's not enough time for the producer to cancel the performance and arrange for refunds or the exchange of tickets . . . She's so important to the play that there'd sure to be an indignant exodus of customers when it was announced that another actress would substitute for her.

Does everybody make mistakes? Looks like it. After the fortune 20th Century-Fox spent building up Irina Demick as a sex symbol, a recent trade paper story referred to her as "Irving Demick." As anyone who has ever seen Irina in a sweater can testify, Irving she's not . . . The police department and members of the state liquor authority are beginning to be more than a little curious about some of the discotheques burgeoning in Manhattan. It appears that certain places are really fronts for dope and prostitution . . . Director Tony Richardson wants Jonathan Winters for the title role in the movie version of "Rhinoceros," which will start shooting in May.

The proprietor and staff of a shoe repair shop at 75th and Madison are still reeling. Who walked in the other day and sat quietly in one of the booths but Jacqueline Kennedy, who read a magazine while lifts were being put on her black pumps. No doubt her Secret Service escort was hovering outside, but the employees of the place were too enthralled to look out the door.

Harry Belafonte's ex-wife, Marguerite, has announced her intention of marrying Dr. Edward Mazique, a wealthy Washington physician. Friends assume the nuptials will take place soon after March 2, the date his divorce becomes final . . . Sarah Vaughan is recording "The Other Half of Me," from the Broadway musical "I Had a Ball" and Mercury executives predict it will be Sassy's biggest hit since she did "Whatever Lola Wants."

A female singer in one of Gotham's smaller cafes is known for her risque material, so plainclothesmen are watching her nightly with a view to closing her act. And the liquor officials are standing by to slap an injunction against the club for permitting lewd performances on premises where alcohol is served. (We're all against sin, but wouldn't you rather have the cops assigned to preventing rapes and murders than sitting around a cafe waiting for some dame to say something naughty enough to get her arrested?) . . . Jack Carter's engagement at the Americana Jan. 25 may be his last in the East for a long time. A TV series has been written for him, and he leaves for the coast to tape the pilot.

Ingrid Bergman's daughter, Pia Lindstrom, wound up on the cutting room floor, after all, when "Zorba the Greek" was edited. She had made a torrid scene with Tony Quinn, but eventually it was decided that the sequence didn't jibe with the rest of the film.

Summer Job Not Soft

By JACK HUTTON

Looking for a summer job miles from nowhere, working nine to 10 hours a day or more, isolated from civilization — for laborer's wages?

You'll have to get in line. The unique Canadian phenomenon known as Frontier College proves every year that young male Canadians are interested in more than a soft job.

You haven't heard of Frontier College? Let me sum it up by saying this group has been performing the same job in isolated sections of Canada that our Canadian University Service Overseas does in other countries.

One hundred young men (18 to 30 years old) spend months at a time in mining camps, lumber camps or with travelling railway gangs, working the regular shifts by day and organizing activities and classes at night.

If this sounds like missionary work, you're more than half right. The story is often told of how a missionary from Pictou County in Nova Scotia, Rev. Alfred Fitzpatrick, struck upon the idea for "laborer-teachers" after years of frustrated effort.

A mining camp or a lumber camp can be a depressing place, far from the comforts of civilization. Married men miss their families. Younger men drift into a routine of card-playing and partying that leaves some broke before they've even left camp.

Other Factors

And there is always the fear of what will happen if weather or other factors close the camp. What chance is there of another job if the other camps are filled?

Mr. Fitzpatrick was a strong believer in self education. And he started with a campaign to have employers build shanties for the use of men during leisure hours. Several organizations donated books and magazines.

Right away the idea ran into a problem. Men often did not use the reading rooms. If a teacher or university student were there, the men regarded the outsider as a soft-handed fellow who didn't understand them.

In 1901, two years after Mr. Fitzpatrick founded the first reading rooms, one instructor became so frustrated that he took a job in the camp by day. Suddenly the men who had kidded him looked again. This fellow could do their work.

The same men who had shunned the classes started drifting into the back seats, one by one. And the basic concept of Frontier College was born — a teacher has to sell himself as much by example as by words. In other words, get out there and work.

E. W. Robinson, Frontier College principal, told me this week the process is a two-way one. "Our fellows learn as much from the workers as the others do at night," he said. "It's an experience that develops leadership in a way few other jobs do."

Minimum age for teacher-laborers is 18. "But," adds Mr. Robinson, "some of our best fellows have been 17-years-old. It depends a great deal on the individual."

Across Country

Head office for Frontier College is Toronto but applicants come from all across the country and are placed across the country. At the moment the College is considering applicants for railway gang work next summer.

The pay? "That varies," says Mr. Robinson. "The teacher-laborer earns the going rate by day and may earn more, therefore, in a mining camp than in some other jobs. But we pay a couple hundred dollars on top of that basic pay."

This means that the average Frontier College teacher-laborer leaves his summer job with about $800 or $900—more than a head start on university costs for the next year.

If you're interested—even for a summer job years in the future—write to Frontier College, 31 Jackes Avenue, Toronto. Or simply Frontier College, Toronto.

Honors Canada

Did you know that Canada's part in international crises can often be told in stamps? During the Suez crisis of 1956, Egypt's President Nasser called in the Suez stamp as he announced he was taking over this vital trade link.

After Canada played a leading role in organizing a United Nations army to control the emergency, both the UN and Brazil issued stamps to mark the occasion.

It is time for stamp collectors to watch for a similar event in the stamp world. The United Nations Postal Administration in New York will issue a new series honoring UN peace-keeping operations in Cyprus. Release date: March 4.

Canada led the way again in organizing this peace force.

Bottle Drive

Family Service Plans Home For Teen-Agers

The Family and Children's Service of Greater Victoria is to set up a group home for eight adolescent boys up to 17 or 18 years, says executive director Gordon Wright.

"We believe in developing small group homes where six to eight youngsters can live with substitute parents much the same as they would in ordinary homes.

"Our experiments in this direction have proved encouraging."

He said the Anglican Council is working on similar lines. It is considering the establishment of a group home which would accommodate eight boys from about 8 to 14 years.

"The Anglican Council's interest is most commendable," Mr. Wright said. "The project will mean much more coming from the community itself than it would be if the provincial government bought a building for the children.

"Children from broken homes need substitute homes with substitute parents where they can develop in natural surroundings."

ANNUAL BUDGET

With an annual budget of $600,000, the Family and Children's Service is now paying for the care of about 350 children from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich.

It also offers child care for 100 children living with relatives and friends and provides a family counselling service.

The costs of child care are paid by the provincial government, plus 75 per cent of administrative costs.

The service already has several group homes for children who cannot be cared for in foster homes.

CLUB PROJECT

Twelve boys and girls under 14 years of age are cared for in a home on Carey Road; six boys younger than 12 on Acton Street; six girls up to 18 on Glasgow Avenue, which was bought and furnished by Victoria Kiwanis Club, and 21 emotionally disturbed children of 8 to 12 years in the Seven Oaks treatment centre on Blenkinsop Road.

Transport Survey Set By February

Final form of the metropolitan area's transportation survey—over a year in the making—will be ready by the end of February, Capital Region Planning Board ex-chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney said Wednesday.

Now vice-chairman of CRPB, Ald. Mooney was replaced Tuesday by Reeve Allan Cox, of Oak Bay, in the body's annual election.

Ald. Mooney looks for major changes to the capital region as a result of the transportation report, which will affect future road, commercial and residential development.

Plans for 1965 include completion of a new master plan for the capital region, a regional parks program, and consideration of joint services matters.

PAPER WAR CONTINUES OVER BAR

The wets and the drys are still fighting a paper war at city hall, even though the possibility of ever having a bar in McPherson Playhouse seems remote.

There is no legislation permitting a stand-up type of bar as envisaged for the civic theatre foyer, but Glad Tidings Tabernacle Tuesday delivered a 184-name petition opposing the suggestion and a private petition headed by Thomas Loney, 3403 Salsbury Way, arrived with 73 other names approving the idea.

STALEY, PECK WIN

Barrie Re-Elected City Labor Leader

Robert Barrie was elected unopposed for his ninth successive term Wednesday night as president of the Victoria Labor Council.

"I want to thank you for the faith you put in me in the last eight years," he said.

Mr. Barrie, 62, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Local 9-696 on James Island, said he will endeavor to do all he could to further the labor movement.

His election was unopposed after Charles Peck declined nomination as president. He was re-elected first vice-president.

The president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, E. T. Staley, was re-elected second vice-president in a 27-11 vote over John Nicol.

City Alderman A. W. Toone was re-elected without opposition for his ninth term as secretary-treasurer.

Committee chairmen included John Schibli, organization; Phil Thompson, legislative; H. G. Anderson, unemployment; Lew Eckford, education; John Nicol, political education.

The council's financial statement showed income of $14,340 for 1964 and expenses of $14,168, leaving a net gain of $172.

At year's end, 64 unions representing 8,637 workers were affiliated with the council. A year ago, there were 64 unions and 8,174 workers.

Well Fire Stubborn

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Valiant efforts by the ace Texan oil well firefighter, Paul (Red) Adair, have so far been unsuccessful against a giant fire which broke out in Kuwait Jan. 3. A traveller from Kuwait said the blaze is 280 feet high and "at night it illuminates a five-mile radius so intensely that cars can travel without lights."

Labor Maps Pro-Medicare Attack

Delegates to the Victoria Labour Council Wednesday night unanimously endorsed a three-prong attack to support a medicare program in Canada.

Delegates approved recommendations from the political education committee that:

- Medicare be endorsed as the theme for the Canadian Labour Congress' Citizenship Month in February;
- The council place the question of medicare as a top priority function.
- The council approach affiliated unions for money for a medicare fund to finance pamphlets, advertising and public meetings.

START NEXT MONTH

CLC affiliates across the country will be passing out pamphlets and petitions next month urging implementation of the health charter contained in the Hall Royal Commission on Health Services.

E. T. Staley, president of the B.C. Federation of Labour, said there has been such a demand already in Vancouver that literature has been printed there rather than wait for it from the CLC office in Ottawa.

One delegate thought medicare should be defined. Others said this was done in the royal commission's report.

"We pay for service co-operatively—that's what medicare means," said Mr. Staley.

Such schemes as MSA and CU and C, approved by doctors, did a pretty good job—"for those that can get under them."

Taxpayers were providing the necessary centres for doctors to get their education but there was no direct monetary benefit from this.

"It's about time the doctors showed a little willingness in this thing so we, the people, can get some benefit," he said.

It takes a long time to break an old habit.

60 seconds.

You know what you like in whiskies. You've probably been living with the one kind for five, ten, maybe twenty years.

All we ask is one minute.

We think that's all it will take to change your mind. That, and merely one taste of a whisky called Time.

You'll find you have never known a rye like this. The taste is light, warm, smooth. A gentle whisky—but not at all kind to old habits.

It gives you a lot to think about for 60 seconds.

Time enough.

NEW MARKET OPENING UP?

Japan Seeks Canadian Fish

VANCOUVER (CP) — A change appears in the offing in Japan's fishing relationship with Canada.

British Columbia fishermen say they are receiving inquiries from Japan—the second largest fishing nation of the world—about buying more Canadian fish.

Industry sources said this was surprising as Canada and Japan have long been fishing competitors in certain areas.

There have also been other moves by Japan to secure more fish. The only functioning Canadian whaling operation, off the West Coast, now is partly owned by the Japanese.

Some sources also say "two or three" small B.C. canneries now are controlled by Japanese interests.

90 PER CENT FISH DIET

About 90 per cent of all the protein consumed by Japanese comes from fish and about 85 per cent of her annual fish harvest is for domestic consumption.

Ken Lucas, assistant federal area director of fisheries says at that rate, Japan won't be abel to supply her own demands within five years.

In Japan there's a market "for almost anything that swims," he says.

Western Canadian Whaling Ltd., a joint Japan-Canada venture off the Pacific Coast, sells oil and fertilizer byproducts in North America. The whale meat is sold in Japan as food.

Dr. Fukuzo Nagasaki, Japanese member of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, says cheap labor in Japan makes it profitable for Japan to import raw fish and export the processed product at competitive prices.

Japan may want to buy Canadian fish to stabilize the supply, he added.

Mr. Lucas says Japan's urgent need for factory labor may force fishermen into industry, forcing that country to import fish providing Canada with one of its biggest markets.

J. E. Antonelli, Canadian sales manager for the Fishermen's Co-operative Federation, says he was surprised to get Japanese requests for a price on halibut because Canadian fishermen consider Japan a competitor in halibut fishing.

Japanese companies began buying Canadian salmon, particularly sockeye, some years ago, he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Skeena Busy Trader On Vancouver Mart

Losses outnumbered gains in fairly active trade on the mining section of the Vancouver Stock Exchange at noon today.

Skeena, the morning's busiest trader, rose one to 23 cents on 122,000 shares. Dolly Varden gained two to 90 cents on 13,000 shares.

Silver Standard dropped six cents to $1.16 and Torwest lost five cents to $1.03. General Resources traded 64,000 shares and went up four to 21 cents.

In the oils Royal American gained three to 88 cents.

AT TORONTO stocks maintained earlier losses in moderate midafternoon trading today. Senior base metals tumbled.

In industrials, Trans-Canada Pipe was off 1⅛ to 40¼ and Alberta Gas Trunk A and Algoma Steel ½ each to 38¼ and 73½. Bell Telephone and CPR each dropped ¾ to 63½ and 63¾.

On the speculative side, McWatters dropped a penny to 64 cents and Chibougamau Mining added two to 82 cents.

In senior base metals, Inco dropped 1½ to 87¾, and Hudson Bay 2½ to 75½. Denison rose 1⅛ to 25⅛ and its affiliate, Roman Corp., tacked on 35 cents to $7.

Golds traded lightly. Home A rose ⅛ to 21 in oils.

AT NEW YORK the market backtracked from recent record highs as trading slackened. Losses of about a point were taken by Kennecott, International Nickel and Phelps Dodge. U.S. Steel fell nearly a point, along with U.S. Smelting.

Fractional losers included General Motors, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Anaconda and International Paper.

AT MONTREAL stocks were generally lower in moderate trade today. Industrials were lower. Dominion Textile dropped ¾.

AT LONDON the market was quietly firm today. Gilt-edged eased while dollar stocks were irreguarl.

Algoma and Noranda led Canadians while BA Oil, Consolidated Mining, Hollinger and Imperial Oil also were good. Small falls were taken by Abitibi, Canadian Husky, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, International Nickel and Trans Canada Pipe. Canadian Pacific dipped in rails.

Properties and trusts showed well. Insurances were mixed. Royal Bank of Canada and Toronto Dominion Bank were firm. Bank of Nova Scotia slipped a little. Steels were firm.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a premium unch at $1.07 11/32 premium in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Montreal reported near noon today. Pound sterling up 1/16 at $2.99 11/16.

Laurentide Increases Receivables

VANCOUVER (CP)—Laurentide Corp. Ltd., last year increased its receivables by $50,000,000 to a total of about $350,000,000 and now is "realizing the economies of size," president Peter Paul Saunders said Wednesday.

For the first time the company's growth in receivables and assets exceeded its growth in expenses, he said.

He told a meeting of the B.C. Bond Dealers Association that with expansion into the western U.S., Laurentide has been able to borrow working capital there at interest rates slightly lower than in Canada.

The company's application for a bank charter will again come before parliament in the spring.

"We will need a lot of support in the Commons because there are strong political pressures by forces over which we have no control," said Mr. Saunders.

He said the two largest shareholders of the bank would be Power Corp. of Canada and Forston Investment Corp. Ltd., each with about 7.5 per cent. The remaining 85 per cent would be sold publicly, half of it being offered to Laurentide's 6,000 shareholders.

New Bank Building

DUNCAN — A new Bank of Montreal will be built in downtown Duncan.

It will rise on the same site as the present bank, at the corner of Station Street and Canada Avenue.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds were irregular, while feed grains were steady and rye declined, then rallied today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Sale of 500 tons of flax to Japan and 500 tons to a European country was reported. A small amount of rapeseed was purchased by Japan. Oilseed declines were attributed to declines in Chicago soybeans.

Rye rallied following a report of sale of a parcel lot to a European country.

Oats and barley were steady in light trade.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 675,000 bushels; West Germany 150,000; Japan 40,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures were firm today on the board of trade, but soybeans were erratic on an otherwise steady market.

Soybeans moved above and below Wednesday's closes after the government reported December crushings were 43,163,000 bushels.

There was profit-taking in soybean bulges and buying on breaks.

Wheat found good support buying by commission houses and covering by shorts. Corn sold mostly fractions higher.

Executive Changes Set Up By Rootes

LONDON (CP) — Major changes in the Rootes group bring Sir Reginald Rootes in as chairman of the big British car firm, it has been announced.

M. A. Freshney, managing director of Rootes Motors Canada, takes over a similar position in the United States while E. J. B. Mackie, an executive with Rootes in New York, becomes Canadian managing director.

WEST GERMANY INCREASES BANK RATE

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — The West German bank rate will be raised to 3½ per cent from three per cent beginning Friday, the federal bank announced today.

Observers saw the measure—the first change since May 5, 1961—as intended to slow down an expected rush of private and public expenditure during 1965.

RAILROAD VISITS CITY in basement playroom of Keith Mitcham as son, Garth, looks on with pleasure. Rail line cost close to $1,000 and has 500 feet of track. (Times Photo.)

RUNNING OWN RAILROAD ANSWERS LIFE'S DREAM

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

Would you spend 1,500 hours and close to $1,000 to run your own railroad?

Keith Mitcham of 847 Ellery Street did and he wouldn't be without it.

From a childhood dream, through 10 years of gathering "stocks and bonds," Keith and his son Garth are now sole owners and operators of Victoria's K&G Railroad.

The K&G has no labor problems, no schedules to observe and carries no passengers.

It services a city, manoeuvres in freight yards, travels through mountains and valleys, crosses bridges and bolts through tunnels.

It does one more job.

It makes its owners happy.

Keith Mitcham is 33. Ten years ago he saw a toy railroad displayed in a downtown store. Before he could have a good look at it, it was sold from under his nose.

But Keith had seen enough to awaken an old childhood obsession.

"It's a dream I've always had in the back of my mind—to own my own miniature railroad."

$5 WEEKLY

He began gathering his "stock."

Religiously, every week, he would sidetrack $5 towards his goal.

To date he owns 94 pieces of rolling stock, boxcars, cattle cars, auto loaders, logging cars, cranes and a full-fledged passenger streamliner.

Seven engines "choo-choo" the trains over 500 feet of tracks. A roundhouse feeds eight tracks at the main freightyard.

SON IN CHARGE

"Second engineer," three-and-a-half-year-old Garth, is in charge of the city.

He manoeuvres automobiles and trucks down its wide streets with due respect for traffic laws.

On a hot day he can park his favorite police cruiser at the municipal fountain and cool off near the "pump-actioned" sprays.

Keith's hobby covers two-thirds of his garage. It is built four feet from the ground on home-made wooden supports. The city was erected on an old door.

The main building materials for his sidings, mountains and tunnels are cardboard, plywood, wire screening and burlap dipped in flour and water (bonds) and sprinkled with colored sawdust.

Everything is built at H.O. scale (i.e. 1/89th life size).

NO OBJECTIONS

Keith's wife Barbara says, "I'm not too interested, but I certainly don't object."

Says Keith: "Some people spend their time and money on alcohol, some on fishing or hunting. I like my railroad. It is a very relaxing hobby."

"It has certainly done wonders for my son, he says.

Through the railroad Garth and I have developed an unusually close father-son relationship."

The '3:45' pulled in at the "Basement City" station.

The two railroaders smiled at each other and after flicking off the power, walked away, hand in hand.

VICTORIA DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts this week to:

Jessie S. Heater, 3924 Dawe Road, Victoria, from Gordon W. Heater, HMCS Naden, Esquimalt. They were married here in 1944.

Vincent E. MacDonald, 840 Blakeney Place, Cordova Bay, from Sharon P. MacDonald, 406 Burnside Road West, Victoria. They were married here in 1958.

Ernest D. Clarke, Chemainus, V.I., from Patricia P. Clarke, 381 Brae Road, Duncan. They were married at Duncan in 1961.

Edna M. Burgess, 1312 Bay Street, Victoria, from Cecil N. Burgess, 2632 Florence Lake Road, Langford. They were married here in 1936.

Beverly Joan Quinn, 2966 Irma Street, Victoria, from James L. Quinn, 455 Belleville Street, Victoria. They were married at Qualicum Beach, V.I., in 1951.

Hazel Chester, 911 River Road, Alberni, from Ernest Chester, 306 Burde Street, Port Alberni. They were married at Alberni in 1956.

Peter N. Demoskoff, Campbell River, V.I., from Evelyn M. Demoskoff, Sproat Lake Road, Campbell River. They were married in Vancouver in 1944.

Edythe O. Price, 311 Raynor Avenue, Victoria, from Ellis T. Price, 1217 Northeast Avenue, Portland, Oregon. They were married at Port Alberni in 1949.

The North Is Booming Says Laing

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Laing says the Mackenzie area of the Northeast Territories is on the verge of a major economic breakthrough.

The minister also predicted in an interview that all of the territories, now being subsidized by almost $40,000,000 annually by southern taxpayers, will reach the break-even point within 15 years.

He indicated the Liberal government would drop a proposal, first brought forward by a Conservative government, to divide the territories.

In the new session of Parliament changes would be sought in the Northwest Territories Act, one of them giving eastern Arctic residents the right to vote in territorial elections.

Mr. Laing, who recently completed a northern tour with a party of ambassadors and businessmen, said the growth along the Mackenzie or western portion of the territories is particularly heartening. It was approaching provincial standards.

The eastern Arctic was another matter. But there was no doubt there are rich underground resources to be found there. The trick was to develop them economically and as quickly as possible.

A prime example was the large iron ore deposit at the northern end of Baffin Island. The ore is so rich that it could be fed directly into furnaces. The sticking point is getting the ore to eager European buyers.

Mr. Laing said the government is considering building a 40-mile railroad from the mine to Milne Inlet despite unfavorable terrain. Another problem was the short shipping season there, a matter of a few weeks.

U.K. Not Planning Canada Car Move

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The most obvious move Britain could make, to offset the impact of the Canada-United States agreement on duty-free trade in automobiles, would be to establish major assembly lines in Canada to safeguard and enhance a North American market that takes about $165,000,000 of British cars a year.

But the British motor industry after a cold, hard look at Canadian opportunities, suggests this is impractical. A spokesman for the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders maintains the Canadian market is relatively small and seasonal. Distribution costs would be high because of the geographical distance stretching from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

British manufacturers find it costs less to ship a vehicle from Britain to Vancouver via the Panama Canal than it does to ship it by rail or truck from Eastern Canada.

When the argument is raised that other foreign producers, such as the French, are taking up the challenge by establishing in Canada, the response is usually one of "wait and see." For Britain, the thought of shifting production to Canada is unattractive. This poses a major problem for Britain's export drive.

Having been shut out of the European Common Market through the veto of French President de Gaulle, Britain is becoming more sensitive of what other moves may be made in the world to establish trade blocs in which British goods may not find ready buyers.

There is some concern in Britain there might be developing in North America the nucleus of a common market that could spread from automobiles to other products.

Britain, therefore, is likely to put up a stiff battle for her North American position. The British motor industry is pressing the government for support and the British position may harden when the U.S. comes before the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to seek a waiver to allow duty-free entry of Canadian vehicles.

Canada allows British vehicles in duty-free while the U.S. charges the most-favored nation rate of 6½ per cent. They are more concerned with Canadian anti-dumping regulations under which Britain cannot sell motor vehicles in Canada at a price less than that prevailing in the home market without paying Canada the difference in the form of a dumping duty.

There is some feeling in British quarters if Canada would make some concession in this area, the pressure against the Canada-U.S. vehicle agreement may ease.

Councils to Meet

City and Saanich councils will meet informally Jan. 27, Reeve Hugh Curtis said Monday night.

The meeting was arranged to allow "a free exchange of ideas" between members of both councils.

The no-host dinner, probably at Holyrood House, will have no formal agenda.

WHAT SORT OF NEW CAR CAN YOU GET FOR UNDER $2000
(Suggested list price P.O.E. West Coast)

Well, the picture shows you what it looks like, but this is one picture that isn't worth ten thousand words. The picture, for instance, doesn't tell you anything at all about the 1.6 litre Sunbeam designed engine under the hood. It's a very good engine—quiet-running, powerful and trouble free. You can't tell from the picture that you have a choice of transmissions; 4 speed—all synchro-mesh or American automatic. That sort of thing is important. It's important too that you can get up to forty miles to the gallon from this car, that it tops 80 m.p.h. and has a self-adjusting clutch and front disc brakes, that the bucket seats in the front are very comfortable, that five people can take a long journey in it without feeling cramped, that the heater keeps everybody warm when it's needed, that windshield washers are standard and that it's easy and pleasant to drive. Come to think, the picture only shows you how good it looks. There's a great deal more we'd like to tell you about this car: one thing we can tell you—it's worth a whole lot more than $1,978. Higher Pension Bid Made By Retired Civil Servants

OTTAWA (CP)—The Federal Superannuates National Association, representing some 37,000 retired civil servants and widows, today took its case for higher benefits before the joint parliamentary committee studying the Canada Pension Plan.

A brief from the association requested "parity of pensions to all superannuates, in order to restore the purchasing value of the dollar, from its now low value of approximately 37 cents to $1.00."

The association reviewed its previous efforts to have pensions increased to the levels received by civil servants now retiring, and the government's response had been "disappointing, and bluntly negative." Prime Minister Pearson had stated various objections, "or should we say excuses," to support the government's refusal.

"The government of Canada does not hesitate to give away $7,000,000 to under - privileged and undernourished nations or sell highly subsidized wheat to Russia or China. These transactions all greatly affect the capital and revenue account and ultimately the Canadian taxpayer. Let us first exercise our charity and humanity by adjusting underprivileged conditions on our own home front."

Under the Public Service Superannuation Act, the government is required to match contributions paid in by civil servants. "Perhaps you are aware," said the brief, ". . . that the government is approximately $602,000,000 in arrears in matching contributions.

While the association was not concerned about the safety or solvency of the superannuation account now, the question of the $602,000,000 would arise when the fund is partially integrated with the Canada Pension Plan.

". . . Is it to be buried or quietly expunged? We, the federal superannuates, will be keen and active observers."

"We have persistently pointed out to the government that the superannuation account has more than adequate funds available to take care of our federal superannuates requested adjustment without damaging or infringing the rights and benefits of either the active federal civil servants or subsequent superannuates."

U.K. VETOES MISSILES FOR S. AFRICA

LONDON (AP)—The British government was reported today to have voted a £20,000,000 ($60,000,000) order from South Africa for Bloodhound ground-to-air missiles.

Defence experts close to influential government circles said the Board of Trade has refused to issue export permits for the British-built missiles, ordered by South Africa last July. The South African government already has been told of the veto, the experts said.

The Labor government has embargoed arms shipments to the white-ruled republic.

CPR Unions Oppose Pension Plan

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway unions decided Tuesday to seek legal advice to see whether two reported transactions between the CPR pension fund and Canadian Pacific Investments Limited, were in the best interest of the employees covered by the fund.

John Clark, general chairman of all CPR unions, said in a telephone interview the Chairmen's Association met in Montreal "to discuss the series of articles appearing recently in a Toronto newspaper concerning the transfer of certain common stock held by the pension fund to CP Investments, Limited."

"The association also was given details of a meeting of the CPR pension committee with CPR Board Chairman Norris Crump and CPR President R. A. Emerson at which the transaction was discussed," he said.

"The members of the association were unanimous in the view that if the facts are as stated the company has used its trusteeship of the pension fund unfairly.

"The officers of the association were given full authority to take whatever action is necessary to protect the interests of the employees of the pension fund."

HIS LAST JUMP KILLED WASHINGTON STUDENT

SEATTLE (AP)—Johnny Lee Louie, 20, University of Washington high jumper who was struck on the head with a 16-pound shot in practice Tuesday, died Wednesday.

Suffering a massive skull fracture, he underwent a four-hour operation at University Hospital Tuesday night. He did not recover consciousness.

Louie had just finished a practice jump in the Hec Edmundson Pavilion, and leaped over a barrier into the path of the metal ball.

Hal Malone
LOOKS AT SPORTS

Rudy Pilous walked into the Maple Leafs' office.

He turned to a pleasant, smiling woman and said, "You brought us luck."

Margaret Pilous, fresh off a plane from St. Catherines, said, "Thank you. But you were winning before I came."

This was after the Leafs had lathered Seattle 5-1.

Winners smile. Losers lament.

Keith Allen, the Seattle general, had lost a game, and first place. The Totems would be far better off in the Western Hockey League if Victoria wasn't in it.

The Good Ones Collect Souvenirs

Pilous walked up and down the office, quipping with the flower of the press. To keep his card in the Coaches' Union, he even turned on a few tears.

"You should see Keenan's arm. From here"—the elbow—"to here"—the shoulder—"it's a dirty red. They gave it to him good. Like this"—bringing both hands down in a chopping motion.

Larry Keenan is collecting the souvenirs all good ones get. He is smooth and strong, slick and sure. He leads the league in goals (26).

Every time he gets the puck he also gets a stick s-p-l-a-t across the arms or legs or in his ribs. Look at him now. If he survives the torture chamber he's on his way upstairs.

Allan Moneybucks Houle, the Leafs' manager in charge of petty cash—in the early part of the season the Leafs' cash was mostly petty—dropped a satchel on the floor of the office.

Pilous listened to the clank and said: "That's right, Moneybucks. The dimes we don't need, eh!"

Guyle Cuts No Ice In This Rink

Five weeks ago the same office was as lively as Grant's Tomb.

After the Leafs had blown a game, using every means imaginable, Pilous would fret. Houle would chew a hole in his cigar. Journalists would shuffle their feet. Anybody who dared tell a joke would have obtained the butt end of a stick through the short ribs.

How do you make champagne out of a beer base? Give them pep pills? Ply them with copies of The Power of Positive Thinking? Get rid of the old, scratchy underwear?

Pilous pondered. "We have an honest club," he said.

Honesty, in the Pilous' lexicon, embraces pride, desire, determination

It rankles Pilous to hear followers of Guyle Fielder say the Seattle centre prefers to play in the minors rather than in the big show.

"Anybody who plays this game, anybody who works at any job," he says, "should want to be with the best . . . or he's nothing."

Mr. Fielder cuts a fancy spray through other teams in the Western League but against the Maple Leafs he cuts a big hole in his reputation.

Transplant Came With Pruned Stems

The Victoria team was supposed to be a transplant of the successful Denver Invaders but a few vital stems were pruned off.

"We lost 100 goals before we started," Pilous said, referring to the departure of Rudy Migay, Gary Jarrett and Gary Collins.

"We had a training camp of 11 guys. How can you scrimmage with 11 guys? We had Rollie Wilcox and Ed Lawson. Wilcox hadn't played a professional game."

Lawson excelled at throwing ice, an expression used for players who skate furiously in another direction when they suspect their backbone is going to be engraved by a body check. Lawson left early.

Pilous pleaded with Punchy Imlach, the geriatic genius at Toronto. But the Leafs weren't frightening anybody in the NHL and Imlach threw out the line, "Don't call me, I'll call you."

The Leafs did send Eddie Mazur and Claude Labrosse. Dan Belisle came along and Steve Witiuk dropped in. None was in excellent shape, particularly for energetic games.

Riding the Shirt-Tail of a Slogan

"On Dec. 11, 1964," Pilous was saying, as if the date stands out like Lincoln's Gettysburg address or the end of the Second World War, "I met with every player individually. I won't tell you what we discussed but I'll tell you this much—not one had a beef. The next day I talked to them together. That's when we began to pull together."

There were detours. Hucul talked with Pilous on the phone. The gist of the conversation was "When you're ready, Fred, I am." And Hucul: "When I can, I'll be back. I don't want to play for anybody else."

One night in Seattle when the Totems were flying, Pilous pulled Al Millar for Gary Smith, the huge, willing but inexperienced junior. Smith was stoned, proving that any goalkeeper's best friend is not always good eyesight and luck but his protection.

Smith is gone. Millar is acting like the citizen Imlach talked about: ". . . the best in the WHL . . . if he wants to."

Hucul is back. The defence is in business. Ask Guyle Fielder. Up front there is no sweat. From last to third is not accomplished by talking but by doing.

Collectively, cohesively, Leafs and Margaret's boy are inexorably grinding forward on the shirt-tails of a slogan.

"When the going gets tough, the tough get going. . . ."

'IT'S UP THERE, MR. REF'

Solemn face of Bobby "Showboat" Hall masks the mischievous nature of Harlem Globetrotters' marvellous pivot as he holds the ball aloft forcing referee to jump for it. Hall was focal point of Trotters' mirth-provoking antics before record Memorial Arena sports crowd of 5,923 Wednesday night. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Annie's a Wall-Flower Compared to Trotters

By HAL MALONE

Annie, Get Your Gun ran for half a dozen years as an entertainment vehicle, but Annie was a piker compared to the Harlem Globetrotters.

Exactly 39 years and 14 days ago, Jan. 7, 1927, the Trotters hit the stage in Hinkley, Ill. The Trotters, same magic, same zaniness, same appeal, but with different bodies, were on the boards here Wednesday night. They look good for another 39 years. Maybe more.

A sardine-cramped record crowd of 5,923 at Memorial Arena—they turned them away—giggled themselves into near hysteria. The jolly gentlemen who palm a basketball like most people handle a lemon seem to ripen with age.

This time they came equipped with a few new faces, barely discernible at the heights which they carry them. The most distant mug belonged to Bill Garner, 84 inches from pate to petatarsals.

Garner contributed relatively few of the 86 points the Trotters scored in "conquering" New York Nationals (77 digits) but he comes in real handy for reaching goods on the top shelf.

At one point, casually disinclined to check aggressively, he merely reached up and squeezed the cords denying the ball's downward flight.

Can't Buy Clothes Off the Rack

They don't call this boy "The Orbit" for nothing.

Height is great for 40 minutes a night, nine months a year, but Garner admitted it has disadvantages.

"Clothes, for one thing," he said. "Nothing off a rack or a counter fits. Have to everything made-to-order.

"Beds? Some hotels have them long enough. When they don't I pull a chair up to the end of the bed and just hang over.

"Planes and buses give me fits. I'm learning to doze with my legs halfway down the aisle but it isn't the best, man, it isn't the best."

The Trotters' format hasn't changed—the baseball game, the drop-kick, the referee-baiting, the quick quips—but the execution and the timing get better every time you see them.

'No Secret . . . Give Them the Best'

Bobby Milton, 15 years a player, now non-playing coach of the International unit, explained the endless attraction.

"No secret," Milton said. "We give them the best basketball. All of it . . . the dribbling, the passing, the blocking, the shooting.

"In the U.S. the pros don't draw full houses although they have many fine players because it's strictly a run-and-shoot proposition. We give them something else, too. Fun."

Ooochs and aaaahs come from an assortment of entertainers, ranging from trampolinists to jugglers to gymnasts to table tennis players.

But the floor show really is the Trotters. They are the reason hundreds of youngsters pass up the intermission courses and create a traffic jam, waiting to get the signature of a Trotter.

"There's millions of them," an usher said, trying to open a path for the Trotters to get back to the floor at half-time.

"Stay cool, man," advised Milton.

"No kids, no game."

Chiefs Lose Guard

Victoria Haida Chiefs won, lost and tied Wednesday night.

The Chiefs "won" exposure—a sizeable portion of the record crowd of 5,923 at Memorial Arena watched them at work.

They tied Victoria Junior Chinooks 51-51 in a fast-moving exhibition game.

They lost Bruce Mitchell, possibly for the season. The rookie guard slipped on the greasy court and threw his right shoulder out.

CHIEFS—Pete Simmons 15, Bill son 4, John Devlin 2, Darell Lorimer 8, Bill Spotswood, Chuck Bennett 2, Bruce Mitchell 2, Jim Cunningham 2, Bob Tomlinson 12, John McKeachie 2, Mike Gallo. Total—51.

Unwanted Dick Duff Slaps Hex on Leafs

Hawks Humiliate Dispirited Bruins

By The Canadian Press

Sooner or later, a traded player comes back to haunt his former National Hockey League club.

Billy Hicke did it to Montreal Canadiens less than two weeks ago when he scored three goals in a Saturday night game to lead New York Rangers to a 6-5 victory at the Forum.

It was Dick Duff's turn Wednesday night. His effort was less spectacular, but his second-period goal in Toronto stood up as the winner in a 2-1 decision for the Canadiens over the Maple Leafs, his former teammates.

In the only other game Wednesday night, Chicago Black Hawks outshot lowly Boston Bruins 40-17 in romping to a 7-1 victory over the visitors.

Canadiens' win preserved their two-point lead over Chicago atop the NHL standings, while Toronto, still in third spot, dropped to three points behind the Hawks.

Duff, who came to Canadiens from New York after being traded last year by Leafs, banged his goal in at 7:50 before Toronto goalie Johnny Bower could move.

That goal must have made Bower unhappy, but he did more complaining about the opening goal, scored three minutes earlier by Claude Larose.

BOWER GRUMBLES

"I had it, and lost it, and had it again," Bower grumbled, "but it finally went over me."

The victory was the third in three starts for veteran Lorne (Gump) Worsley since being called up from Quebec Aces of the American League to sub for Charlie Hodge.

Worsley stopped 30 shots, but his shutout bid was spoiled when Jim Pappin steered in Bob Baun's blueline shot at 12:17 of the second period. The goal was only the fifth that Worsley has allowed in three games. The third period, like the first, was scoreless.

In the sloppily played Chicago contest, Bobby Hull scored his 37th goal of the season but actually lost ground in the NHL scoring race to teammate Stan Mikita, who picked up two goals and an assist.

The other Chicago scorers were Pierre Pilote, Bill Hay, Al MacNeil and rookie Fred Stanfield. Johnny Bucyk saved the Bruins from a whitewashing when he scored the first goal of the second period to make the count 3-1.

BLADES NIPPED 5-4

Connelly Leads 'Frisco Squad

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Wayne Connelly scored the first and last goals of a seesaw Western Hockey League game Wednesday night to give San Francisco Seals a 5-4 victory over arch-rival Los Angeles Blades.

With the win before a crowd of 6,294, Seals crept within four points of Blades, but they still remain sixth and last in the league, 17 points back of first-place Portland.

Connelly's two goals gave him 27 for the year—tops in the league.

Other San Francisco scorers were Nick Mickoski, Gerry Odrowski and George Swarbrick. It was Gord Haworth, Willie O'Ree, Gord Vejprava and Norm Johnson for Los Angeles.

The game was tied three times. The clubs went out of the first period square at 1-1, out of the second period square at 3-3, and it was 4-4 when Connelly finished off a combination from Mickoski and Charlie Burns at 18:20 of the third period for the winning goal.

Seal goaltender Bob Perrault stopped 15 first-period drives by the Blades and a total of 28 on the night. Jack Norris of Los Angeles turned aside 23 shots.

The league is idle tonight and San Francisco is at Vancouver in Friday's only game.

Romano Sparks Pennant Hopes

CHICAGO (AP)—The warm glow of pennant talk has enveloped winter-gripped Chicago.

It is being stoked by the return of catcher John (Honey) Romano to Chicago White Sox. The Sox missed the American League pennant by one game in 1964.

"The White Sox may have traded themselves right into the 1965 American League pennant," says The Sun-Times.

"The White Sox, back in business behind home plate . . . immediately turned up the volume on their 1965 pennant tune," says The Tribune.

Romano, 30, was one of the main players in a three-club deal. Others were centre-fielders Jim Landis and Mike Hershberger, sent by the Sox to Kansas City Athletics, who sent outfielder Rocky Colavito to Cleveland. The Indians sent Romano to Chicago, along with outfielder Tom Agee and left-handed pitcher Tommy John.

Landis, embroiled in a tiff with management last season on team TV appearance policy, was the only remaining player of the Sox' 1959 flag-winning club. But the status quo is maintained because Romano was with the Sox in 1959.

Although sharing the Cleveland catching job with Joe Azcue last year and hampered by a hand injury, Romano poled 19 homers and drove in 47 runs. The Sox' three catchers—Cam Carreon, J. C. Martin and Gerry McNertney—combined for only seven homers and 49 RBI.

In trading the fleet-footed Landis and rifle-armed Hershberger, you would think the Sox left quite a gap in centre field. But Lopez is high on Ken Berry, 23, who hit .255 with 20 home runs and 80 RBI for Indianapolis last year.

In Cleveland, meanwhile, manager Birdie Tebbetts said he felt the return of ex-Indian Colavito could make his team a contender for the AL pennant.

Rocky belted 34 homers for the Athletics last season and drove in 102 runs with a .274 average.

Cardiff City Draws

ZARAGOZA, Spain (Reuters)—A magnificent defensive effort here Wednesday night by Cardiff City of Wales completely frustrated the talented Zaragoza attack and earned the Welsh club a 2-2 tie in the first leg of their European Cup Winners' Cup quarter-final.

East-West Football Merger Well on Way

OTTAWA (CP)—A complete interlocking schedule for the nine teams making up the Canadian Football League now is being considered by a two-man committee studying the merger of all operations of the Eastern and Western conferences.

However, said CFL president Sam Berger Wednesday, one schedule for both conferences probably would develop gradually. But other operations could be brought under one administration by 1966.

The two conferences now play a partial interlocking schedule but each has its own executive, makes its own rules and draws up its own schedules.

The one-league operation would retain Eastern and Western divisions and thus there would be no change in deciding the national championship, which at present pits the Eastern winner against the best in the West after separate conference playoffs.

AMPLE ADVANTAGES

When the nine teams reach the stage where they play the same schedule, then a method will be devised to continue the Grey Cup final, Berger said.

The Ottawa lawyer said he considers an interlocking schedule a minor point compared to other matters involved in joining the two conferences.

He cited television revenues, park rentals, changes to make the sport more crowd-pleasing, and contending with the "fantastic offers" now being made to players in the U.S. leagues.

The decision to make the merger study came at a recent CFL meeting held in Chicago. The job has been taken on by J. Barry O'Brien, one of the owners of the Ottawa Rough Riders, and Gordon Lawson, a Winnipeg Blue Bomber executive.

Doubles Finals Highlight Shuttle Activity Tonight

Two championships — men's and women's doubles handicap — will be decided in the city closed badminton tourney at Victoria Racquet Club tonight.

Doubles play in other divisions is also nearing the playoff stage.

The draw:

10:00—Women's and men's doubles handicap playoffs; McMurchie-Lane vs. winner of Wells-Jones, Chudyk-Jackson.

Bays Tripped In Vital Game

If it isn't the boys at Victoria High School who are making strident basketball noise it's the girls.

Vic High girls were at it again Wednesday. They overcame previously untarnished Oak Bay 47-32 for their fourth consecutive triumph without a setback.

Marg Maysmith, Rita Roodbol and Gail Streeton with 16, 13 and 12 points, respectively, paced the winners. Sheila Shipley with 12 led Oak Bay.

Vic High, Mount View Post Rugby Victories

A smasher, a squeaker, a sizzler.

Such was the tempo of play in three Inter-High School Rugby League games Wednesday.

Mount View Hornets did the smashing. Led by Ron Cavanaugh's three tries, the Hornets stung Claremont 16-0.

Lock Harvey Steed added a try and fullback Ron Sallis booted two converts.

At Vic High, the Titans had to pump and push for an 11-8 victory over stubborn Oak Bay.

Scrum half Bob Iverson led the way with two trys. Dave Smirl added a third. Hooker Derek Reimer booted a convert.

For Oak Bay, standoff Don Head kicked a penalty goal and converted Terry Ryan's try after setting it up.

Mount Douglas and Esquimalt struggled to a scoreless draw.

Both teams had ample scoring chances but couldn't finish.

Nixon's Shade McLaren Club

Don Robinson, the leading point-getter in the Victoria Junior Hockey League, scored two goals Wednesday night but they failed to help his Esquimalt McLaren teammates.

The Esquimalt juniors dropped a 4-3 decision to Nixon's juveniles at the Sports Centre.

John McQuillan scored Esquimalt's other goals while Gary Hales, Dennis Ferrill, Jimmy Lebold and Dunc McLean scored for Nixon's.

CYO-CHINOOKS

Junior Hoop Stakes High

Stakes will be high at Central Junior High School when Victoria Chinooks go against the "Big Three" of Vancouver CYO.

On the line will be first place and the home-floor advantage in Inter-City Junior Basketball League playoffs.

The "Big Three" are Neil Murray, Roger Kettlewell and Ian Donald, all tall, strong and talented. They are the lads who make CYO tick and they are the ones Chinooks must contain if they are to wrest the top spot away from the CYO crew.

Saturday's tussle has all the ingredients of a thriller. It is the last league game of the season and Chinooks are currently tied with CYO for first place. That means that the winner will nail down the top berth and earn the important home-floor advantage in playoffs.

Semi-final playoffs open in Victoria Jan. 29. If Chinooks win Saturday, they'll be playing the fourth-place finisher. If CYO finishes in front, Chinooks will tackle the third squad.

NORTH SHORE ERUPTS

Kerrisdale Merchants, needing two wins in their last two games to tie fourth-place UBC, kissed their chances good-bye Wednesday.

The Kerries bowed 72-58 to North Shore, previously winless in 12 games.

Colin Dobson, with 17 points and Steve Allison with 16, led the North Shore club which dominated play. Ken Ramsay fired 22 points for the losers.

Beating CYO had been a formidable task in junior basketball circles during recent years. The Vancouver club won its second straight Canadian junior crown last season and lost none of its top men for this campaign.

TWO VICTORIANS

The Gaels, who have Victorians Neil Worboys and Bruce Robertson on their roster, have height, balance, scoring power and experience to toss at the Chinooks.

Chinooks are perhaps endowed with even greater balance and therein lies their main hope of tipping their rivals. Although John Lauvaas has been playing like a one-man gang in recent games, the Chinooks have several men who can break out with a flock of baskets.

Also working for coach Ollie Goldsmith's club will be fine conditioning and teamwork, which may enable Chinooks to control the pace of the game.

The giants of the junior hoop set are scheduled to tangle at 8:30 following a preliminary tussle at 7:30.

BOWLER OF WEEK

The "good bet" in bowling was that Peggy Trickett would, sooner or later, qualify as Times' "Bowler-of-the-Week." One of the city's established tenpin stars, she made it this week with 203-199-200—602 series in Friday Night League at Mayfair Lanes. Mrs. Trickett is instructor at Mayfair Lanes.

Ron MacLeod Man to Beat In Golf Test

Professional Ron MacLeod looms as the man to beat in the Victoria District Golf Committee's spring medal series, which gets under way Sunday at Uplands.

Thirty-eight rivals are scheduled to swing against MacLeod in the first of three 18-hole rounds.

9:00—Scroggs, Wright, Briggs, Munn.

HE'S 'TOO OLD'

Tennis Body Snubs Drobny

LONDON (AP)—Jaroslav Drobny, the tennis star who coached Italy to its greatest-ever achievement in the Davis Cup international competition, was rejected by Britain Wednesday as a coach.

The All-England Club told him that, at 42, he is considered too old to coach Britain's Davis Cup team.

Drobny, Wimbledon champion of 1954, was the only applicant for the vacant job of coach to the All-England Club. That includes responsibility for coaching Britain's international teams.

David Mills, club secretary, told reporters: "The committee feels that the job can only be filled by a man under 30."

Drobny coached the Italian team in 1960 when it reached the Davis Cup challenge round for the first time in its history. It was also the first time since the Second World War any European team had reached the challenge round.

He has offered his services to Britain in the past, and been turned down.

Drobny, born in Czechoslovakia, has lived in Britain for many years and is a naturalized British citizen.

The All-England job is vacant because of the death last month of Australian George Worthington.

British tennis officials have said the man they are after is Fred Stolle, 22, the Australian star who has been the defeated finalist in the Wimbledon's men's singles for two years running. But Stolle said in Australia he is unlikely to take any professional job yet.

Mills commented: "Unless we can find a top-class player like Fred Stolle in his 20's, it will be better to leave the post vacant this season."

FORBIDDEN PLATEAU

Valley Rallied To Skiers Aid

By DEREK RHIND

Ever since the 1930s, most of the old time skiers that have had to hike for miles up the slopes of Forbidden Plateau, have dreamed of one day having some means of making this task a little easier. Little did they, in their wildest imagination ever envisage the most modern T-bar that now graces the slopes of Mt. Becher.

It wasn't until some eastern promoters came out to the Forbidden Plateau and suggested developing the area for the local club, with the possible expenditure of $100,000. The local skiers began to see that this development might not be outside the scope of the club, if they called upon the assistance of the people of Comox Valley.

The provincial government was approached and acquired the land from Scott Paper Ltd., by means of a land swap and then turned the area into a class C park.

This then left the way clear for the development of the T-Bar. They formed themselves into the Mt. Becher Ski Development Society, under the chairmanship of George Hamilton, and decided to canvass local residents and businessmen to sell shares in the society.

They brought in a T-Bar expert, Carl Ernst, from Montreal, who was able to point out the best possible location for the T-Bar and that it would cost them at least $20,000 to be able to start ordering the parts.

They were overwhelmed by the response from the general public. In just a few days they had acquired enough money to order the first parts of the tow. During the next few weeks they had $30,000, enough to pay for all the parts required.

The next stage was the erection of equipment. This could have been a costly business.

Businessmen pitched in with a will. Most of them with little or no concern for monetary considerations.

Men like Mike Andrews, who spliced the cable; Harry Chapman, who did the welding; Glen Fitzgerald, a pilot of Okanagan Helicopters, who somehow managed to be a bad mathematician every time he totalled up the hours spent flying.

There were many more, not to mention the club members who have spent countless backbreaking hours doing the manual labor, without them this story could not have been told.

Saturday, Jan. 16, saw the first skiers, more than 600, actually take the slopes, using the new 2,000-foot T-bar tow. This, coupled with the rope tow on the lower slope, gives the skier an approximate tow of over 3,000 feet.

So was born one of the most up-to-date skiing areas in B.C., well equipped to deal with up to 850 skiers per hour for Canada's largest participation sport.

Leopard Naps After Attack On Girl, 21

PASO ROBLES, Calif. (AP) — A 120-pound spotted leopard that attacked a woman Sunday night in Las Vegas, Nev., dozed in a children's zoo near here Tuesday night.

A sheriff's deputy, who described the cat's owner, Mrs. Maria Dokolas of Las Vegas, as "very co-operative," said it took two hours to move the leopard from the woman's station wagon to a zoo cage this afternoon.

With the help of a veterinarian, Mrs. Dokolas fed the animal, named Rajah, several tranquilizing pills, the deputy said.

When she first arrived here, Mrs. Dokolas kept the leopard locked in her station wagon and hired a lawyer as she insisted that the animal not be destroyed.

Sunday night in Las Vegas, the leopard bit and clawed Linda Lee Barnum, 21.

Mrs. Dokolas expressed regret that her pet mauled Miss Barnum after it slipped through a car door. She was reported in fair condition after 100 stitches were taken to close teeth and claw wounds on her throat, chest and face.

Public Meet Scheduled Over Zoning

A public hearing has been called for Monday night on a number of zoning bylaws in Saanich.

The meeting is to give those affected by the bylaws an opportunity to be heard by council.

It starts at 7:30 p.m. in the council chamber.

The bylaws cover extensions to schools, a planned dance hall, a House of Study and rezoning a number of commercially-zoned proprerties to residential use.

Extensions are planned to Tillicum, Hampton, Tolmie and Cloverdale schools and a new site for a school on Harrop Road.

The Sisters of St. Ann are seeking a House of Study at Queenswood and Arbutus. Raymond Jalbert, 4114 Torquay, plans a dance hall on the Patricia Bay Highway between Dieppe and Quadra.

Another bylaw would rezone the remainder of three lots at Douglas Golfland for golfing and archery use.

The bylaw to rezone a number of properties from commercial to residential use would complete the return of commercially-zoned areas which have developed for non-commercial purposes or are vacant.

Originally, this involved some 70 acres. The present by law covers the last 40 to 50 acres.

Of the original 70 acres, 46 per cent was residential and 53 per cent vacant.

Next step, at a future public hearing, will be to complete the re-classification of existing commercial areas by accommodating different levels of development to provide controls and encourage proper development.

Keep Faith In Unity Bid, Pope Warns

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul warned Roman Catholics today against the temptation, which he said insinuates itself "even in those who are experts," to weaken or deny controversial Catholic teaching for the sake of Christian unity.

Addressing his weekly general audience of several thousand in the Vatican palace's Hall of Benedictions, the pontiff spoke about the "chair of unity octave" or eight-day period of prayer for unity now being observed by Catholics and many other Christians. The octave runs annually from Jan. 18-25.

Pope Paul said his soul was "alert and sensitive to this question" of Christian unity. He added:

"To those who know the historical, psychological and doctrinal terms of the question, great and multiple difficulties of every type and degree present themselves—so much so that some persons despair that they can ever be resolved. And others still hope, but see that much time will be needed. . . ."

Rising Divorce Rate Sparks Course on Marriage in City

A school of marriage will open in Victoria Feb. 1.

It will deal with all aspects of married life — social, spiritual, sexual, legal and economic.

The first of eight lectures and discussions dealing with these and other problems will be held in the YWCA, 920 Blanshard Street, at 8 p.m.

The marriage course is sponsored by a special committee representing the Victoria Council of Churches, the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria, the Board of Health, the Family and Children's Service, YMCA and the YWCA.

DIVORCE RATE

"The rising divorce rate everywhere points up the need for a school of marriage," Rev. G. Howard Turpin, chairman of the committee, said today.

"We take it for granted that a person wishing to become a lawyer, a doctor, a nurse or a teacher has to take a course of training. Why assume, therefore, that no preparation is needed for marriage?

"Even at its best, marriage is not a straightforward matter of setting up house and having children. Many problems arise for which young men and women can be prepared by proper instruction."

Mr. Turpin said schools of marriage have already been established in eastern Canada and some Roman Catholic priests now require couples to produce a certificate showing they have taken such a course before marrying them.

"We would not go that far, but we believe couples contemplating marriage should have the opportunity to learn more about it."

EIGHT-WEEK COURSE

Mr. Turpin will take the chair when the eight-week course opens on Monday, Feb. 1, and Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service, will give a talk on The Central Place of the Family in Society.

On successive Mondays the following talks and discussions will be held:

Feb. 8, Rev. Robert [illegible] D. Morris of First United Church, on Spiritual and Moral Motivation for Marriage.

Feb. 15, Gerald Thorven, Victoria lawyer, on the Civil Law of Marriage.

Feb. 22, Panel discussion on the economic aspects of marriage — budgetting, loans, housekeeping and buying on time.

March 1, Dr. G. P. Evans of the Metropolitan Board of Health on Sex and Marriage.

March 8, social workers from the Family and Children's Service on individual and personal relationships.

March 15, lecture and panel discussion on the role of husband and wife in Making Marriage Work.

March 22, Lecture and panel discussion on religion and marriage and the marriage ceremony conducted by local church ministers.

Single men and women and young married couples are invited to enrol for the course. They should contact Miss Lorna Cammaert, secretary, at the YWCA, telephone EV 4-7179.

LONG TOUR PLANNED BY PHILIP

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth, is to make an Australian-Asian tour in February and March that will take him to eight countries including troubled Malaysia.

Prince Philip will accompany the Queen on her state visits to Ethiopia and The Sudan from Feb. 1 to Feb. 12. Then the Prince will continue on his own tour, all of it by air.

FEW HEADS GET BOPPED

Spring Thaw Show Balloon Filled With Laughing Gas

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Drama Critic

An all new Spring Thaw was unwrapped in Victoria's Royal Theatre Wednesday night by its producer Mavor Moore.

For the 18th edition of the all-Canadian review it was an auspicious opening. The audience loved it and launched it on its eight-month tour with the delightful sound of belly laughter and frequent show-stopping applause echoing in its ear.

The show is a bright, bouncy balloon filled with laughing gas; it grazes a few cheeks and bops a few heads, in passing, here and there homing onto a target with a remark like "Quebec doesn't care about the maple leaf — they're after the sugar!"

Headed into the air by ebullient Barbara Hamilton who does a lion's share in keeping it up, gets a big assist from straight-faced Dave Broadfoot and dancer Dean Regan.

The latter is something to watch, now and in the future. A lithe, effervescent dancer, Dean has what it takes in most departments.

STAGE 'ALIVE'

This show has more to offer the eye than some past Spring Thaws. For one thing choreographer Alan Lund keeps the stage alive with well devised movement, provides it with a sustained rhythm and effective dance routines.

And costumes are considerably more lavish and varied than was previously the case.

Then to top it off there is elegant, alluring newcomer, Gayle Lepine, vivacious Liane Marshall and red - headed Marylyn Stuart, whose solo skit on the modern child's nightmarish world of mechanized dolls was one of the hits of the show.

But despite all this talent there were certainly moments when the balloon sank to earth with a soft but unmistakeable thud.

TRIM NUMBERS

Elimination of such dud numbers as We Hate Spring, The Governor-General Retires and a couple of other weak spots would do the show a considerable service.

Broadfoot had some pretty good material in a take-off on jargonism and a press interview as member for Kicking Horse Pass and one of the best numbers, lampooning TV commercials, was written by him as was one of Miss Hamilton's best numbers.

But priceless as Barbara Hamilton's comic personality timing and total presence in the show are, much of her material did her anything but justice.

In fact, I would say, the principal weakness of the production lies in writing which is too often quite pedestrian.

Some of the best numbers, involving the whole company which included gifted character actor Jack Duffy, Bill Cole and Peter Mews, were a production number that reviewed the 20th Century, and The Canadian Community Folk Freedom Festival of Earnest Ethnic Nation-Builders.

MIXED-UP DELIGHT

The Folk Festival, a crazy mixed-up delight that brings the show to a sizzling conclusion, has music arranged by John Fenwick, the show's musical director.

An entirely satisfactory "orchestral" accompaniment was provided by piano, trumpet and percussion in the persons of Fen Watkin, John Collins and Ray Reilly.

By the way, if anyone hungers to know why the second of the two shows did not begin until half an hour past the advertised time of 9 p.m., the fault must be found in local arrangements which ignored a union regulation that demands a full hour for performers between shows.

Permitted to Drive

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council has agreed to permit former alderman Archie Proctor to drive a taxi in the city. The decision reverses a ruling of the police department which denied him a chauffeur's licence. Council made its decision after studying a psychiatric report on the former alderman.

Tense? Get Fast, Fast Relief With Gentle Yoga Meditations

One of Canada's experts on the Far East and a veteran of two major wars urged people to pay more attention to the mystic science of yoga as a means of relieving everyday tensions.

"Nervous tension is a cause of many present-day ailments," said 47-year-old Capt. Gordon Edwin Limbrick, 4930 Lochside, a former member of the International Control Commission in Viet Nam. "Many new diseases originate from the mind and neglect of the body."

Yoga does not only teach a man how to relax, but increases both his powers of concentration and memory, he said.

"It also helps a man retain full use of his faculties in his declining years," he added. "It is a system worth studying."

Capt. Limbrick, who is retiring from the Canadian army this year, is an instructor in yoga under the Greater Victoria School Board adult education program.

The course, held at Oak Bay Junior High School every Tuesday, starting at 7:30 p.m., is one of the most popular in this year's program. Since its inception in October, 86 persons have attended classes and more are signing up this month.

HINDU SCIENCE

Yoga—the Hindu science of ascetic practice—physical exercises, concentration and meditation, is not new to the Victoria instructor. He has been interested in the subject since he was a young man.

In his travels abroad with the army, he also made a point of contacting followers of yoga. From them he received additional instructions.

Then eight years ago, he went a little deeper into the science and became a strict vegetarian.

"I was a meat eater for 38 years," he said. "It has made a big difference. You have to try a vegetarian diet to believe it."

In his course, he said, he teaches certain facets of yoga which are acceptable to western minds. This includes physical exercises, breathing exercises, concentration and contemplation.

A modest person, Capt. Limbrick is reluctant to speak of his army life. But his military record shows he has been active in two wars.

BRITISH ARMY

Born in London, England, he joined the British army at the outbreak of the Second World War. As a member of the Royal Engineers, he took part in "Operation Torch"—a tough campaign with the First Army in Algeria and Tunisia.

Later he served in Sicily, Italy and Austria.

In 1947 he came to Canada and two years later joined the Canadian army, serving in the Korean war in 1952-53. He was Commonwealth Air head officer at Seoul.

In 1956-57 and 1963-64 he also served on the International Control Commission in Viet Nam.

The commission composed of representatives from Canada, Poland and India, was set up to supervise the 1954 Geneva agreement with regard to the boundary division separating North and South Viet Nam.

On the subject of Viet Nam, he feels the white man's position there is untenable.

LEAVE COUNTRY

"The wisest thing the United States can do is to pull out of the country while there's time—like Britain did in India," he said. "The Orient belongs to the Orient. A white man is out of place there. He must change his outlook and not try to work things out by force."

While he has no love for Communism, he feels if the white man pulls out of Viet Nam there is a chance that the fanaticism of the Viet Cong will eventually peter out.

However, Capt. Limbrink did admit that the spread of Communism and nationalism in the Orient did constitute a danger to Australia.

Producer Quits As Eye Opener Show Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — CBC television producer Mario Prizek said today he has quit the corporation over its treatment of his series Eye Opener but that he has not yet submitted his resignation in writing.

He said in an interview that disagreements with senior CBC executives were brought to a head when his program A Borderline Case, scheduled for showing Tuesday night, was replaced by another Eye Opener production, The Guard.

A Borderline Case, a satire on English-French relations, was rejected by program officials because, the CBC said, it "did not come off as successfully as had been anticipated."

Mr. Prizek said he told the CBC he would resign unless the satire was shown as scheduled.

Island Areas Get Centennial Grants

Advance centennial grants will be paid to four Vancouver Island municipalities this month by the provincial government.

Amounting to one-quarter of the ultimate grants to be made to help with administration and planning costs they will go to: Greater Victoria, $13,998; Port Alberni $1,220; North Cowichan $950; and Saltair $150.

EX-AIDE OF CHURCHILL MARKS 100TH BIRTHDAY

LONDON (Reuters)—A former naval aide to Sir Winston Churchill celebrates his 100th birthday Friday.

He is the senior admiral of the fleet, Sir Henry Oliver, believed to be the oldest British naval officer living.

In 1914, he was appointed naval secretary to Churchill, at the time the first lord of the admiralty. Churchill later made him chief of the naval war staff.

For 3½ years during the First World War, Oliver directed naval operations in all seas.

It is 37 years today since he reached the navy's highest rank. His length of service is claimed as a record.

Ground Moisture Slows Square Job

Subterranean water is washing away some $600 a day in winter works aid the city of Victoria expected to make on its Centennial Square parking facility.

Strong suspicion of the water condition—based on findings of "fluid subsoil" in drilling for footings — has upped the contractor's estimated cost by $15,000 to $20,000.

Farmer Construction Ltd., which won the $475,000 project, brought work to a stop while the problem was negotiated with officials and centennial square committee.

The stoppage means a loss of federal-provincial winter works assistance until work resumes at full pace.

Meanwhile the parties have agreed to arbitration to settle which side pays the increased cost, and further soil drilling tests are being done to help them reach a decision.

The city ordered original tests for the entire square project in 1963, and this information was used by architects in planning the various buildings.

It is suspected that a rock gully courses through the property from Fisgard, through the square and under McPherson Playhouse on its way to the harbor.

Some holes for the square parking footings drop 70 feet below the surface, about twice what was expected.

The city feels Farmer Construction made certain assumptions about subsoil conditions—in effect gambled against subsoil difficulty—and now wants the city to pay for its misjudgment.

PENALTY CLAUSES

It is pointed out the city could invoke severe penalty clauses for work stoppage to date.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the firm agreed last Friday to resume full work on the project during arbitration, but up to today the job is still at a crawl.

Artists May Develop Historic City Building

Plans to develop a Bastion Square building into a bazaar for artists and artisans will be discussed at an organizational meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Public Library music room.

A suggestion is to develop the historic Board of Trade building to a "Bastion Village" to be operated by the Society of Arts and Crafts in Bastion Square.

Interested persons are asked to attend the meeting to hear details of a preliminary study.

The city of Victoria is owner of the building and is interested in turning it over to a group that will help keep the square alive, a source of interest to citizens and tourists.

OPEN STALLS

The lower floor could be converted to open stalls where the public would be free to roam, watching painters, sculptors, potters, metal workers, carvers, knitters and weavers at work.

Creative dancers could be included, or musical groups, since studio space would likely be available on one of the four floors.

It is expected the building would be provided rent-free with minimal overhead, but operating revenues could be made through membership fees and the sale of articles.

NEGOTIATIONS

First requirements are a board of directors and a body of artists to start the group off. Detailed negotiations may then be carried on with the city.

Downtown improvement plans nearing completion will make Bastion Square a restful oasis and show the way for further restoration of the old waterfront area.

Wiring will be put underground, trees planted, ramps and stairways constructed, planting beds laid out and a small fountain sunk into the pavement. In addition, B.C. Maritime Museum will move into the old courthouse. A restaurant on the square is in operation now.

Greece Plans Curbs On Export of Babies

ATHENS (AP)—Greece plans to take steps to curb the export trade in babies, at present believed to be running at about 1,000 a year.

It's legal to buy a baby in Greece. Prices range from $1,000 to $3,000. This is mainly a legacy of the Second World War, followed by a Communist guerrilla war and the prevailing poor economic conditions that exist in outlying areas.

At the war's end, thousands of orphans were roaming the streets. Adoption was deliberately made easy and was considered a humanitarian act.

The same ease of adoption still exists. Adopting parents do not even have to be in Greece. Many lawyers do a lucrative business supplying babies to childless foreign couples.

Parents of large families often are willing to sell one child so that the child itself and the others may live a little better. Often the price is sufficient to send an elder son to a trade school or provide a daughter with a dowry.

Numerous midwives will deliver babies free of charge in return for the child.

FORBIDS BIRTH CONTROL

The Orthodox Church of Greece—the state - sponsored church—forbids the teaching of birth control. But devices are openly sold. Though abortions are not legal, women have little difficulty finding a doctor to perform one.

The government expects to tighten up adoption laws and possibly restrict adoption of Greek babies to Greeks, whether in Greece or abroad, and foreign citizens of Greek descent.

The church feels the worst thing that can happen to a Greek orphan is for it to be adopted by parents not of the Orthodox faith.

Orphanage officials say that, if the laws are tightened or revised too drastically childless couples may look elsewhere to adopt a child.

"With our orphanages already overcrowded, new measures by the government might pose unsurmountable problems for the orphanages in legally disposing of their stock," one official said.

Shipbuilders Briefed

OTTAWA (CP)—Senior executives of the Canadian shipbuilding industries were given a special technical briefing Wednesday on future construction, conversion and refit programs of the Canadian Navy, the defence department announced Wednesday. Defence Minister Hellyer and naval officers gave the briefings, under a policy of maintaining a two-way flow between the defence department and industries.

'Open' Fruit Market Rejected by Growers

VERNON (CP)—A proposal that British Columbia be made an "open market" for tree fruits was voted down here Wednesday by the B.C. Fruit Growers Association.

Only one of 67 official delegates voted for the Peachland resolution.

Instead they supported the industry's one - desk marketing plan.

In another resolution, the association condemned some roadside fruit stands for the poor quality of fruit and for improper prices.

Delegates asked the B.C. Fruit Board to seek means of regulating the quality and price of fruits sold at stands.

"Some fruit is a disgrace . . . and the prices at which some fruit is sold are outrageous," said the resolution.

Another resolution approved asked the fruit board to regulate the flow of fruit from one area of the province to the other. A similar resolution was passed by the association last year, but was never implemented.

Arthur Mayse

There is in Greek mythology a dame called Prosperpina whose greedy appetite for pomegranate seeds exposed her to a most peculiar and dreadful fate.

She was allowed to enjoy part of each year among mortals. Certain other months, however, she must spend in hades with the grim lord of the underworld.

Well, my name ain't Prosperpina, and I dislike pomegranate seeds intensely; but the time has come when I must go down for a spell to Mr. Bennett's kingdom under the dome.

Five days each week while the session lasts, I'll be writing about the ways and works of our legislators on page one. Mondays, we'll cut up touches in this corner.

Matter of fact, I should be perched right now in a Legislative Press Gallery seat above the striped pants, uniforms, vestments and edible-seeming ladies' hats while the annual spectorama of tradition and protocol runs its Opening Day course in our British Columbia parliament.

First, though, we have some tidying-up to do here:

★ ★ ★

The young man you know as 'Kelly', who is being staked to a freshman year at University of Victoria by generous Times readers, is now well-lanched on his second semester.

His first, he started under handicaps that included late registration, lack of books and a diet which, for one bad spell, consisted entirely of apples borrowed from a convenient tree.

In spite of all, he passed his Christmas exams handily, with the exception of English 100, which he missed by two marks.

His friends are helping him—the list includes an honors student who has carved time from a busy schedule — and we're confident he will bolster that shaky subject.

All in all, I'm not too badly pleased with Kelly, even though I will risk no predictions at this mid-point in a road rocky every step of the way.

A while ago, I complained that this year's calendars don't mark moon phases and holidays. To readers whose response was an avalanche of moon-and-holiday calendars from as far away as England, many thanks!

Because of your bounty, I can now report with authority that the moon enters its last quarter on Sunday, Jan. 24, also that St. Swithin's Day falls on July 15, and that spring will begin at 8 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time on March 20, which I'm pleased to note is a Saturday.

A total eclipse of the sun is scheduled for May 30, but since the path of totality lies well south of us and almost entirely in the sea, don't expect too much from it in these latitudes.

On Nov. 23, the sun may treat us to a partial eclipse, but I'm not counting on that one either, since it's almost certain to be raining.

(I didn't learn that last from a calendar . . . just feel it in my bones.)

★ ★ ★

Time's passing, and it would never do to miss the Speech from the Throne, with its hints of goodies to be scattered on British Columbians by a government whose collective haunches threaten to leave a lasting imprint on the seats of office.

Even so, we can spare a moment for something that badly needs saying.

I think our old age pensioners are the true and pathetic victims of the bus fare increase.

They'll be asking us to sign their petition for a five-buck yearly bus pass at two downtown booths. That's a smart idea, but the 7,000 expected signatures aren't enough.

Should our pensioners care to ask, I'm sure that a legion of generous-hearted boys and girls will volunteer to carry their appeal for help to every suburban door in this city.

33 Military Officials To Tour B.C.

Thirty-three representatives of 21 Canadian, British, and American armed services and government departments will begin a five-day B.C. visit here Sunday.

They are all students at the National Defence College at Kingston, Ont.

The visit is part of a familiarization tour for defence college students of military and industrial establishments in Canada and the U.S.

Heading the group will be Major General C. B. Ware, commandant of the defence college.

Other students represent the three Canadian armed forces, Royal Navy, Royal Air Force, United States navy, army and air force, 10 Canadian government departments and the British foreign office.

ARRIVE SUNDAY

They will arrive Sunday evening at Pat Bay Airport.

Tuesday morning, Attorney-General Robert Bonner will address them in the Empress Hotel on the subject, "British Columbia, Today and Tomorrow."

That evening course members will be hosted by Lieut.-Gov. G R. Pearkes at a Government House reception, followed by another reception, hosted by officers of the RCN's Pacific Command at HMCS Naden.

Wednesday they will travel to Vancouver for a tour of the University of B.C. campus and a look at Crown Zellerbach's Fraser Mills Plywood Plant.

Course members return to Victoria that evening to leave here the following day for the United States.

School Concert All Set to Roll

Persons who bought tickets for an inter-school band concert, which was postponed from last November, will be able to use them Friday at 8.15 p.m. in Central Junior Secondary School Auditorium.

Rod Semple and Mrs. Violet De Long will lead three school orchestras and two bands in the presentation, Christmas Holiday Prelude.

Hoodlum Hide-Out To Be Demolished

Demolition of the old Johnstone building at the foot of Johnson Street has been started.

With it goes another link with Victoria's past, for the massive brick and stone structure was put up in 1905 and has since been used as a clothing store, a dairy, a restaurant, an ice cream depot, a soap plant, a distribution centre for the Salvation Army—and more recently as a hide-out for alcoholics.

The Salvation Army is pulling it down because the cost of renovating the building to comply with standards set by the fire marshal and the city building inspector—about $15,000—would be more than the cost of a new building.

In its place, the Salvation Army will build a modern warehouse and parking lot. According to present plans, the parking lot will be under the warehouse, a few feet below ground level.

"We shall call for tenders as soon as plans have been approved at headquarters," a spokesman said.

The new warehouse will be of modern design in harmony with the Salvation Army hostel next door and will provide storage space for goods sold by the Army's family thrift store adjoining the hostel.

"The police will be glad to see the old building go," the Army spokesman said. "It has been used as a hide-out by alcoholics and gangs of hoodlums who broke in at the back."

TOY CENTRE

At Christmastime, however, the Army used it as a centre for the distribution of toys to poor children and dressed up the front in seasonal style with painted sentinels, candy canes and artificial snow.

The building was erected on the site of an old butcher's shop in 1905 by the late Henry Hall Johnstone of Victoria. For many years it was a clothing store operated by David Lindsay; then it became the Heather Bank Dairy and subsequently a restaurant and a wholesale ice cream depot.

Then the Johnstone family rented it to the Zero Soap Manufacturing Company from 1954 to 1962, when the company sold out to Boyle-Midway Canada Ltd.—one of the biggest soap manufacturers in Canada.

With the closing of the Victoria plant, the staff of Zero soap, headed by manager George Little, was moved to Boyle-Midway's plant in Toronto.

Last year the Johnstone family sold the building to the Salvation Army.

"There is a perpetual spring under the building," Major Lorne Jannison said, "and I understand this was something of a problem when construction was started on this site.

"It may also be a problem when our new building goes up."

Careless Drivers

An 18-year-old, Glen W. Davis, was fined $100 and his driving licence suspended when he appeared in city court today and pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

Magistrate William Ostler was told the youth had been observed driving on Blanshard Street without headlights about 2 a.m. Jan. 9. When he attempted a turn at Courtenay Street he lost control of the car and spun in a half-circle ending up facing the opposite direction.

There was no damage to either the car or any other property.

Other careless driving fines:

Cecil Clubb, 943 Byng, $45, following an accident at Burdette and Quadra Dec. 28.

Archibald Bainbridge, 46 High, View Royal, $45, an accident Jan. 6 at Bay and Blanshard.

Andre Fortier, Work Point Barracks, $60, his car went out of control Jan. 13 on Esquimalt Road near Tyee and went over an embankment at 95 Esquimalt Road.

RE-BIRTH OF GROUP SOUGHT

'Spirit of St. George Needed Now'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Saint George of England must not be allowed to disappear from the Victoria scene.

"His spirit is needed as never before," says Major Fred Ney, a member of the central council of the Royal Society of Saint George in London, England.

Major Ney proposes the formation of a Vancouver Island branch of the Royal Society to replace the now defunct Victoria branch.

"If they were approached in the right spirit, I'm sure the youth of Vancouver Island would rally round and keep the flag of Saint George flying," he said.

"Symbols were never more important than they are today and Saint George is a universal symbol of faith and goodwill."

Major Ney founded the Commonwealth Youth Movement, which takes its inspiration from Saint George, in 1937 and it is still alive and active.

'SHOCKED'

Revisiting Victoria after two years' absence, he was shocked to hear that the Victoria branch of the Royal Society of Saint George was to be disbanded.

Mrs. Bertha Parsons, branch secretary, said the few remaining members wouldn't take office and young Victorians are "no longer interested" in England and its traditions.

Said Major Ney:

"I think most enlightened young people know that our greatest traditions of freedom and justice come from England. And Saint George isn't only England's patron saint, he is an international figure.

"He is also the patron saint of Portugal, Poland and Russia, and in the world of Islam he is known as the Evergreen Knight.

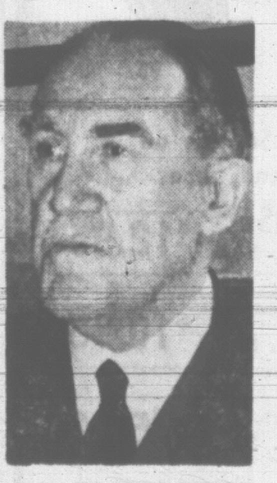
LINKS ISLAM . . .

"As such, he is a link between Islam and Christendom and the future of our western civilization might very well depend on an understanding between the two.

"The ideal of Commonwealth has lost so much of its significance, we should call on the spirit of Saint George in an effort to achieve better understanding.

"We should use him as a symbol of fellowship, goodwill and faith."

Major Ney said the success of the Commonwealth Youth Movement, which he started with a mass rally in London,



MAJOR FRED NEY

England, in 1937, is based on an acceptance of the universality of God.

"Such an acceptance is a more potent influence for world peace than anything else," he said, "and loss of religious faith is the most serious threat to our civilization today."

PILGRIMAGES

The Commonwealth Youth Movement arranges youth pilgrimages to different countries every year. But they're not called pilgrimages — they're called Quests and the young people are known as Questors in search of truth and knowledge.

Culmination of each Quest is an all-night vigil in a church or cathedral patterned on the old traditions of knighthood.

"Young people must have inspiration," Major Ney said, and, if our Commonwealth is to survive, we must give them an inspiration comparable with the inspiration Communist countries are giving their youth.

"We have gone wrong in preaching that Communism was promoted by force. The majority of its followers are inspired by a common faith.

"That is why I say we must keep alive our symbols of faith—and Saint George is one of them."

Major Ney said the Royal Society of Saint George is still active in many countries of the world and has branches in Toronto and Montreal.

When the parent body holds its annual Saint George's Day banquet in London, England, on April 23, the major will have a special guest—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, former governor general of Canada.

Tugs Refloat Grounded Freighter

Diver Inspects For Damage

The 10,000-ton United States freighter Tonsina, which ran aground off Willow Point near Campbell River Wednesday, was refloated this morning.

Two tugs stood by throughout the night in case the loaded ship showed signs of floating free.

But it was not until 6 a.m., when the tide rose five or six feet, that they were finally able to tow her loose.

A diver and salvage master from Island Tug and Barge sailed across to her from Vancouver this morning.

The ship is anchored out in mid-channel east of Campbell River while damage is inspected.

HEAVY FOG

The Tonsina was headed for Alaska with a general cargo from Seattle when she ran aground in heavy fog only 50 feet from shore.

Attempts were made by the tugs Sudbury II and Island Challenger to refloat her at high tide Wednesday night.

But the three-foot rise was not enough.

Local residents voiced fears the boat might tip over at low tide shortly after midnight.

Although practically out of the water, the ship remained on an even keel.

'Civvy' Firemen At Navy Base Tops In Canada

HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt has won the 1964 grand award of the National Fire Prevention Association in a competition among Canadian military bases.

This is the third time since 1958 HMC Dockyard has captured top honors in the competition. Last time was 1962.

The award is made for "excellence in fire protection and year-round fire prevention efforts."

Last year fire losses at the dockyard were $25. In 1963 and 1962 they were nil.

"The dockyard's good record is due in large measure to the co-operation received from everyone concerned," said Lieut.-Cmdr. Gordon Ball, Pacific command fire chief, who has a staff of 48 civilian firemen.

Seven-Year-Old Hurt In Traffic

A seven-year-old girl, Kathleen Scott of 3864 Douglas Street, was slightly injured by a car in front of her home at about 8:30 a.m. today.

Saanich police said she apparently ran into the side of a car driven by Rose Byhre, 195 Cadillac.

Navy Man In Jail On Assault

Russell Robinson, 21, of HMCS Naden, appeared in city court today charged with beating his nine-month-old daughter and causing her bodily injury.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked for a one-day adjournment of the case.

"The child's injuries are still undetermined and there may be more serious charges laid as a result of this alleged assault," he told Magistrate William Ostler.

'BROKEN BONES . . .'

Royal Jubilee Hospital officials today described the girl's condition as "satisfactory." She was believed suffering from "broken bones and multiple bruises."

Robinson is charged specifically with assault occasioning bodily harm to Wanda Robinson between Jan. 12 and Jan. 18.

He was arrested Wednesday night by city detectives following a report from the hospital and is being held in custody.

War Games Over B.C. Set Friday

Units from Canada and the U.S. will conduct an air defence exercise dubbed Chinook Knife Kilo over coastal B.C. and the western states Friday.

Purpose of the aerial war games is to test the defence system of the 25th NORAD region which stretches from Neah Bay, Wash., to San Francisco, Calif.

The Seattle sector of the region, of which RCAF Station Comox, B.C., is an integral part, will bear the brunt of the exercise.

There is a possibility some of the action will take place over Victoria, an RCAF spokesman said today.

7 MILES HIGH

But it is unlikely Victorians will get a glimpse of it as the planes will be flying at an altitude of seven miles.

Planes will fly at supersonic speed over the ocean, but will slow to subsonic speeds over populated areas to prevent sonic boom shock waves.

Faker (enemy) aircraft from the U.S. and Canada will fly up to Alaska, turn around and come down through B.C. for their "attack" on U.S. targets.

Among these units will be CF-100 Canucks and T-33s out of Comox; B-57 bombers from Hill AFB at Ogden, Utah, and USN Sky Warrior aircraft from Whidbey Island, Wash.

Comox will also be represented in the defending forces with CF-101 Voodoo interceptors.

Other high-speed aircraft will come from Kingsley Field, Ore.; Paine Field, Everett, Wash.; McChord AFB, Tacoma, Wash.; Hamilton and Travis air force bases in California and U.S. National Guard units at Spokane and Portland.

'DULL DAY' YOUTH'S REASON FOR SETTING MISCHIEF FIRE

A 17-year-old youth has been charged with mischief in connection with a rubbish fire Tuesday at the Town and Country Plaza.

Saanich police say the juvenile, in company with another youth, set fire to some rubbish then called the fire department.

Their explanation was that it was a dull day and they had nothing to do.

When the fire trucks arrived at the scene they were met by the youths who showed them where the fire was located.

CITY COUNCIL

Meeting Called On Delinquency

Juvenile delinquency today came under discussion at three separate points during city council committee meetings, where it was agreed to devote a special session to delinquency next week.

Health, welfare and morals committee set Tuesday for consideration of a Community Welfare Council report, released late last year.

The report makes recommendations for dealing with delinquency problems, including areas in which city council action could be taken.

The same committee will recommend to council that billiard parlor age limits be dropped from 18 to 16 years generally, making no distinction between street-level, basement and second-floor parlors.

EXPAND FACILITIES

Third point dealt with was a recommendation that council allow the Boys Club of Greater Victoria to lease for 50 years, three adjoining lots to permit expansion of the old Yates Street firehall to about 12,000 square feet.

It was pointed out that council appreciates the anti-delinquency work done by the club, which has a membership of 600 boys and a capacity for only 300.

In view of city prospects of selling the lots to apartment developers for about $10,000, permitting the city to move its district water pumping station to another location for $10,000, the city had been reluctant to grant the club request.

WORTH 'THOUSANDS'

But any loss the city might suffer through having to move the pump now located there would be worth "thousands of dollars" spent on juvenile delinquency, committee members agreed.

Albert Zuick, operator of Suzie-Q Billiards, 860 Yates, appealed to the morals committee on behalf of downtown billiard halls to lower the age limit imposed by a 50-year-old bylaw.

"We are now entering the 21st century and I find I am strapped to an old bylaw," Mr. Zuick said.

"Poolrooms aren't what they used to be 50 years ago. There are smaller tables, colors, they are out at the street level instead of being in back rooms.

"We will soon find billiards are as big a thing as bowling is today," he pointed out.

Vancouver, he said, had dropped the age limit to 14 years.

"I think a billiard parlor is a wonderful place for boys, who are going to be downtown anyway, hanging around the streets or drive-ins."

He said the places are supervised, with no swearing allowed, no cigarettes on the floor. . . .

"If they are upgrading them," remarked Mayor R. B. Wilson, "I see nothing wrong with lowering the age."

Topics of the Day

The secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labour will be a supporting speaker when New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas speaks at a Union Centre banquet Feb. 1.

E. P. O'Neal will speak about medicare, Victoria Labour Council delegates were told Wednesday night by Bill Doneley, outgoing chairman of the political education committee.

Malcolm J. McIvor, 17, was remanded to Jan. 29 when he appeared in city court today and pleaded guilty to car theft.

Court was told the youth was charged early on Jan. 13 following a high-speed car chase in which the car the youth was driving went out of control over an embankment near Tolmie and Oak Streets and was demolished.

The car had been stolen from a driveway at 444 Kingston about 2½ hours previously.

Ask The Times

Q. How many bus drivers are employed by B.C. Hydro in Greater Victoria and what is their wage? How many men are employed for maintenance of buses and what is their wage?

Does the office staff have a large incentive fund such as the B.C. Electric had? What is the yearly income from bus fares?

N.C.

A. Taking your questions in order, there are 155 bus operators who are paid $2.63 per hour; 46 maintenance men for buses and other Hydro vehicles who receive $2.45½ per hour for washers to $2.88½ for mechanics.

There is no incentive fund and the revenue for the 1963-64 fiscal year from fares was $1,136,153 and $108,487 was the charter (not including sightseeing) revenue.

Q. How many suites are under construction in Greater Victoria?

A. Victoria, 1,019 apartment and 157 motel units; Saanich, 35; Oak Bay, 0, and Esquimalt, 70. Total, 1,281.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer

DEAR ABBY . . .

In Proportion!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me why there are more double beds sold in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, than in any other city its size?

DEAR BRUCE: No, but it might account for the size of Milwaukee.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about my sister, who is an attractive, intelligent, middle-aged widow. About five years ago her husband committed suicide. It was a dreadful experience for her, but after five years we feel she should try to make a new life for herself. Several desirable men have shown an interest in her, but she has run away from them all. When I pinned her down she became very upset and told me that she had no right to "lead a man on" because she would have to tell him (if he didn't already know) the circumstances of her husband's death. She feels it is a reflection on HER that her husband took his own life. We've tried to tell her she is wrong, but we can't get through to her. Maybe you can.

N.Y.

DEAR N. Y.: Your sister is apparently suffering from guilt feelings (justified or otherwise) about what she failed to do that might have saved her husband. Psychiatrists say it's a typical reaction of one who has experienced a tragedy of this kind. Try to persuade your sister to seek professional help. Her future depends on it.

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago my sister (age 77) and her two daughters (53 and 50) came to visit me. We spent a lovely afternoon and they stayed for supper. After supper, my daughter (age 30) brought out a box of old family pictures. We passed them around and all had a good chuckle over the old-fashioned clothing and hair styles. Suddenly one of my nieces became enraged and shouted, "These are OUR pictures. You STOLE them from our house!" With that, my sister and her daughters stormed out of the house and I haven't seen or heard from them since.

Abby, I am 73 years old, have been married 49 years and have never had any trouble with my own family, or my husband's. Those pictures were mine and I can't imagine what came over that niece of mine, and why my sister didn't put her in her place. However, this is my only living sister, and a day doesn't pass that I don't feel sick over this terrible incident. I haven't called her and she hasn't called me. What do you suggest?

HEAVY-HEARTED

DEAR HEAVY-HEARTED: Call your sister. Granted, she could have saved the situation by putting her accusing daughter in her place, but don't hold this against your sister forever. The daughter sounds sick, and maybe your sister isn't too well either.

Old Furniture Need Renovating? Try This

By PENNY SAVER

One of my friends was complaining the other day about the fabric top of his convertible. After several years of wear and tear from weather and use, it had begun to go brown at the edges and was generally soiled all over.

Penny has the cure for his complaint. While roaming about a store recently, I discovered the perfect spray paint to make plastic, vinyl and leatherette look like new.

This paint can be used to cover worn spots, discolored places and to make tired, old surfaces of materials I just mentioned sparkle like new.

Just spray onto the surface—there's no mess or fuss involved—and it quickly dries to a flat, non-streaky finish.

If you are thinking of painting your kitchen (as an example of the spray's versatility) you can change the color of your kitchen chairs to match. So simple to use, the spray costs $2.39.

If you are going to be doing a lot of barbecuing on the patio this summer, now is the ideal time to spruce up the chairs and patio furniture. This paint is the best way to make old outside furniture look like new—and it won't flake or fade!

Another problem my friend has trouble with, especially when traveling a long distance, is small rents in the windshield, causing draughts and general discomfort. This is caused by the rubber edging gradually separating from the glass.

Penny also has a remedy for this. It is a heavy cementing mixture to close the draught hole and join the rubber and glass. It dries fairly quickly and is strong enough to resist even the roughest weather. Price is 59 cents a tube.

Want to know where to find these? Then the number to call is 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Eyelashes Appear Longer If They Have Been Curled

Lowman

With eye makeup, you can create a lovely frame for your orbs. It is amazing how this can highlight them. Eyes have really come into their own today with all sorts of eye shadow, liners, false lashes, roll-on mascara and brush-on brows.

Here are a few general principles to remember. First, many women still prefer the little mascara brush to the roll-on applicator. They feel that they can do a better job with the former. If you use the brush be sure that it is in good condition. If it is too wet the lashes will mat together. The brush should be just damp. It should also be clean, with the bristles separated, if the application is to coat each hair.

Lashes which sweep upward always appear to be longer. Use a lash curler before applying mascara. The pressure is exerted with rubber and will not break the lashes. Mascara will not break the lashes either if you will remove it before going to sleep at night. Today many mascaras are waterproof. Therefore you will remove the coloring with cream.

If you are using mascara which is not waterproof, take a dripping washcloth or some very wet cotton and press it against the lashes. Repeat this several times. Afterwards apply some lubricating cream to the lashes.

Your brows also form part of your eye frame. Be sure to avoid a hard solid-line appearance. If you use an eyebrow pencil do so cleverly and with a light touch. Make short feathery strokes and then blend them. Often it is flattering to extend the brows a bit past their natural length. You can do this with the pencil, but be certain that there is not a dark hard line at the ends of the brows.

Today many women brush on their brows. With this method I think it is easier to achieve a natural effect. Whatever type eye makeup you use, be sure to use some, or you are missing a real bet in increased beauty.

If you would like to have my exercises for the eyes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet 8. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mental Health Director Speaks

A number of examples of how a good home and understanding by parents affect the lives of young people, was given by Dr. Charles Gregory, director of mental health for the provincial government, when he spoke to the Oak Bay Business and Professional Women's Club at a recent meeting in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

The guest speaker was introduced by Miss Grace Mitchell and thanked by Mrs. Florence Keziere.

President Mrs. Geraldine Simpson was in the chair.

A report on the holiday party and the preparing of two hampers for needy families was given by the committee in charge: Miss Mary Horan, Mrs. Keziere and Mrs. B. Colebrooke.

Special guests at the meeting were Mrs. J. M. Woods and Miss Ella Brett, regional director of Island clubs. The latter reported on the National Federation of BPW clubs to be held in Victoria and the international banquet to be held in February.

"What work is available to the older women wishing to return to business in Victoria" was discussed by Miss Mildred Mahoney and Mrs. Annette Pohl.

For some, this afternoon's official opening of the second session of the 27th Legislature of British Columbia was a new and exciting experience. Two of those who were seeing the traditional ceremony for the first time were Miss Linda Macfarlane, left, and Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor, centre. Miss Macfarlane is the teen-age daughter of Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane, while Mrs. Taylor is the wife of Dr. Taylor, the first president of the University of Victoria. No newcomer to the scene was Mrs. Lois Haggen, at right. As NDP member for the Grand Forks - Greenwood riding, Mrs. Haggen is the only woman member of the House.

FLOWERED SPRING CHAPEAUX

Women Rush Season to Titivate For Colorful Opening of House

By PAT DUFOUR

Spring arrived in Victoria at 3 p.m. this afternoon. The premature season was rushed into existence by the colorful flowered chapeaux and spring outfits worn by guests as they attended the opening of the Second Session of the 27th Parliament of British Columbia.

It seemed as if the women were determined to "write off" winter as they joined the legislators in witnessing the ceremonies that "took the wraps off" what promises to be an exciting session of provincial business.

Looking down from the press gallery, the epitome of women's fashions seemed to merge with the colorful robes of dignitaries to transform the Legislative Chamber into a brilliant kaleidoscope.

The only woman member of the House, Mrs. Lois Haggen, NDP representative for the Grand Forks-Greenwood riding, added her own feminine note with a white petalled turban that was trimmed with a tiny beige veil that picked up the similar tones in her silk dress of black, beige and white. A black organza coat cuffed with the same silk and pearl jewelry completed her ensemble.

The doors swung open and His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and his retinue, led by the sergeant - at - arms, walked slowly down the length of the chamber. Silence fell.

As His Honor mounted the Speaker's dais to make the Throne Speech he was flanked by Mrs. George R. Pearkes, seated at the left of the dais. Her ensemble of black and brown brocade was perfectly complemented with a brimmed hat of black feathers.

Also seated at the left of the dais was Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of the Premier. Silver threads highlighted her shot silk dress in mahogany shade which she wore with a toning petalled hat. Pearl jewelry, white gloves and a mink stole completed her outfit.

Mrs. Tom Irwin, widow of the former Speaker of the House, was here from White Rock, B.C., for the ceremony.

Her violet mink wrap and matching hat added an extra fillip to her outfit.

A crown of multi-toned roses gave a gay note to the hat worn by Mrs. W. N. Chant. It's brim was in egg-shell tone to match her classically-styled dress of wool and silk. Her jewelry was pearls.

Mrs. J. Donald Smith wore a two-piece silk knit dress and floral hat in turquoise shade. A china mink jacket, black patent accessories and white kid gloves completed her outfit.

Mrs. R. C. Weston matched her black wool suit with a black velvet broad - brimmed hat. A sapphire mink stole and pearl earrings completed the picture.

A cloche of flowers in a variety of colors added accent to the black silk sheath dress worn by Mrs. Eric Martin. For extra color, Mrs. Martin chose jewelry and accessories in pink.

Mrs. H. C. F. Elliot chose a hand-loomed tweed wool suit in pastel shades, teamed with a green velour hat and mink stole. Her only jewelry was a pin bearing the insignia of her husband's regiment, the Queen's Own Rifles. A guard from the regiment honored the lieutenant-governor on his arrival at the Parliament Buildings.

A slightly draped skirt highlighted the cocoa-brown wool dress worn by Mrs. Ray Williston. Her hat was of beige straw, designed with a high crown and narrow black satin brim. A silver pin and earrings and muskrat stole completed the outfit.

Dark-haired Mrs. Leslie R. Peterson looked stunning in a Mediterranean blue sheath dress of wool crepe. Her chiffon turban in a paler shade of blue had some of the dress material woven in for added interest.

A jaunty navy blue Breton hat of chipped straw had a fuchsia ribbon trim to match the Italian knit suit chosen by Mrs. Frank Richter. Navy accessories, brown squirrel stole and pearls were also worn.

Starry-eyed at her first glimpse of the traditional ceremony, Miss Linda Macfarlane, 15-year-old daughter of Alan B. Macfarlane, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, was charming in a grey pin-stripe sheath dress, styled with a large Quaker collar. Black accessories and a pearl pendant completed the teenager's outfit. She sat with her mother. Mrs. Macfarlane's navy blue sheath dress had a pink inset at the neckline that toned with the roses on her navy straw hat.

Mrs. Waldo M. Skillings chose an Italian wool knit suit in a gold shade that was picked up in her metallic straw pill box hat. Gold earrings and a sable stole flattered her outfit to perfection.

Mrs. Charles M. Ennals topped her red crepe sheath dress with a navy blue coat and teamed them with a navy blue straw and velour hat. Red gloves, navy accessories and pearls completed the ensemble.

A hat of interwoven black, white and tan straw was a perfect foil for the jersey double-knit dress of brown and black worn by Mrs. T. L. McMaster. Her jewelry was a large brown and white cameo brooch.

Black and brown shades were also in the worsted wool two-piece suit of Mrs. John D. Tisdalle. A black straw hat, fur jacket and pearl pin completed her costume.

A black sable scarf gave a smart line to the Italian plisse silk suit in nutmeg tone worn by Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor. Her accessories were black and her maline knit hat repeated the two tones.

EXTRA HAIRPIECE

First Lady Wears Spanish Hairdo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has been wearing a new high Spanish-style hairdo for evening events marking the inauguration of her husband, the president.

Her dark hair was piled high with an extra hairpiece.

The White House has side-stepped inquiries about her hairdresser and her press secretary has said only that she is using several of them for variety.

Daughter Luci, 17, who has been wearing her hair with a hairpiece, too, for the evening, said nothing when asked about it at the inaugural concert Tuesday night. But she did say her mother does not usually wear her hair that way.

On occasion, however, at White House formal state dinners she has worn a similar high style.

9 IN MEMORIAM

SCOTT—In loving memory of Edith Mary Scott, who passed away Jan. 21, 1964.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.

—Ever remembered by loving husband Tom, children Dennis and Kathy and families.

BELCHER—In loving memory of Derrick (Butch) Belcher, who passed away Jan. 21, 1963.

—Ever lovingly remembered by his wife Alice, Mom and Dad, and brother Frank.

SCOTT—In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Edith Scott (nee Comer), who passed away, Jan. 21, 1964.

—Sadly missed, Mother and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

Four South players at the Dallas, Texas, trials for the American team to the 1965 World Championship chose to overcall East's one heart opening with two clubs. Four West players chose to double and four South players had no place to go but down.

North and South vulnerable

North	East	South	West
Pass	1♥	2♣	Dble
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥9

The normal defence started with a heart opening. East would win with the king and continue by cashing first his ace and then his king of spades to show that he held no other spades. Next would come the ace of hearts and a small heart for West to ruff. West would continue with a third spade for East to ruff. This would give the defence the first six tricks and they still would collect one diamond and one trump for a nice 800-point profit.

Five South players were wise enough to keep their mouths shut. In all those cases, East wound up playing two diamonds and making either four or five odd.

I was one of the South players who did not overcall. It has long been a principle of mine that it does not pay to make an immediate minor suit overcall at the two level unless you have a good six card suit or better. You are playing with loaded dice because your opponents can easily outbid you with their higher suit, unless they happen to be able to double you.

This hand also shows the unfairness of duplicate. The five players who failed to overcall were properly rewarded by a gain of six International Match Points each.

Their unfortunate opponents were charged with six IMPs each through no fault of their own. There was nothing they could do against quiet opponents. Furthermore, while three of them made five odd at diamonds, the game was not the sort that anyone in his right mind would want to bid. While three no-trump would also make, there was no way to get there unless all the cards were in sight.

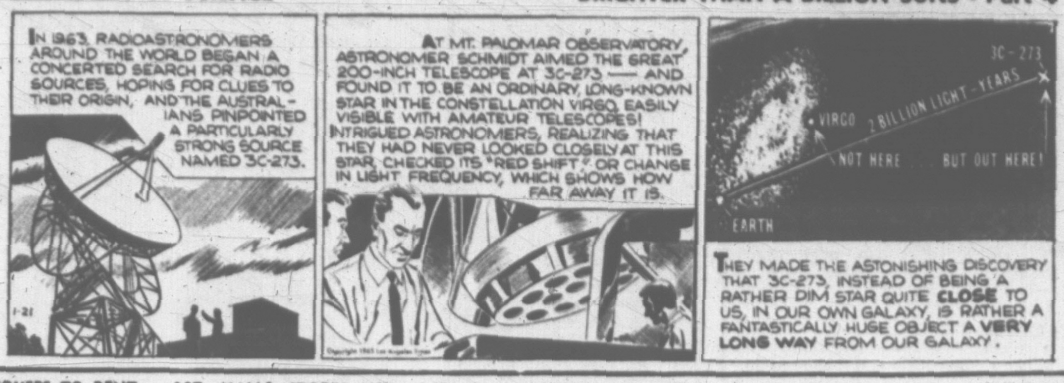
FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

BRIGHTER THAN A BILLION SUNS - Part 4



IN 1963, RADIOASTRONOMERS AROUND THE WORLD BEGAN A CONCERTED SEARCH FOR RADIO SOURCES, HOPING FOR CLUES TO THEIR ORIGIN, AND THE AUSTRALIANS PINPOINTED A PARTICULARLY STRONG SOURCE NAMED 3C-273.
1-21
AT MT. PALOMAR OBSERVATORY, ASTRONOMER SCHMIDT AIMED THE GREAT 200-INCH TELESCOPE AT 3C-273 — AND FOUND IT TO BE AN ORDINARY, LONG-KNOWN STAR IN THE CONSTELLATION VIRGO, EASILY VISIBLE WITH AMATEUR TELESCOPES! INTRIGUED ASTRONOMERS, REALIZING THAT THEY HAD NEVER LOOKED CLOSELY AT THIS STAR, CHECKED ITS "RED SHIFT" OR CHANGE IN LIGHT FREQUENCY, WHICH SHOWS HOW FAR AWAY IT IS.
3C-273
VIRGO
2 BILLION LIGHT-YEARS
NOT HERE
BUT OUT HERE!
EARTH
THEY MADE THE ASTONISHING DISCOVERY THAT 3C-273, INSTEAD OF BEING A RATHER DIM STAR QUITE CLOSE TO US, IN OUR OWN GALAXY, IS RATHER A FANTASTICALLY HUGE OBJECT A VERY LONG WAY FROM OUR GALAXY.

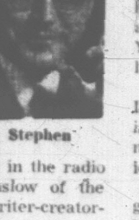
Andy Stephen Looks at TV



Stephen

Acting is usually an occupation, not a family tradition. Yet a large number of stars today can claim to have inherited the urge to perform.

For example, it would have been surprising if Alan Hale, who plays the skipper in "Gilligan's Island," had not gravitated toward show business. Not only does he look like his namesake father, who was one of Hollywood's best-known featured players, but his voice and big laugh seem to be duplicates of his dad's.

In the case of Linda Kaye, the Betty Jo of "Petticoat Junction," the family influence was double-barrelled. Her mother, the former Ruth Barth, acted in the radio dramas, "Road of Life" and "Don Winslow of the Navy"; her father is Paul Henning, writer-creator-producer of The Beverly Hillbillies and creator-executive producer of Petticoat Junction.

William Hopper, who plays Paul Drake on Perry Mason, is the son of famous actress-turned-columnist Hedda Hopper and the late distinguished De Wolf Hopper.

For Les Brown, Jr., Jim Bailey of "The Baileys of Balboa," show business has tuneful and rhythmic early recollections. His father is the well-known musician and orchestra leader Les Brown.

Zina Bethune, the Gail Lucas of "The Doctors and the Nurses," came by her theatrical aptitude naturally. Her mother, Ivy Bethune, has been on the stage for years and has also been active on television.

Literally reared in the theatrical world, Caterina Valente, co-star of "The Entertainers," started in show-business as part of the family act. Her mother, Maria Valente, was a famous European comedienne.

Buddy Ebsen, Jed Clampett of "The Beverly Hillbillies," grew up in Orlanda, Fla., where his father owned a dancing school. Although he perforce learned a great deal about dancing, Buddy revolted and said he never would be a dancer. But it wasn't long before he changed his mind, teamed up with his sister Vilma as a dancing partner and went on the stage in New York. His acting and comedic accomplishments came later.

Julie Newmar, the body beautiful robot of "My Living Doll," can claim a hereditary factor not only in her theatrical interest but also in her looks. Her mother is the former Helene Jesmer, a Ziegfeld Follies beauty.

Max Baer, Jethro of the Hillbillies, can point to the glare of the spotlight in the family. His late father, Max Baer, was world heavyweight boxing champion.

Matthew David Smith has an affinity for show-business. Who's he? He's the year-old member of the Barnes family on The Joey Bishop Show. His real and television mother is Abby Dalton, who plays Ellie Barnes.

There are many others like Gary Crosby, Lisa Minelli and Mai Farrow.

* * *

TWO BITS: "The Twentieth Century" series plans a report on the supersonic jet airliner of the future. Walter Cronkite will make the first-hand report to be seen in April . . . CBS-TV has renewed "Slattery's People," the series in which Richard Crenna portrays a state legislator, for the remainder of the season while ABC-TV picked up the Donna Reed Show for another year.

ISLAND BRIEFS

NANAIMO—School board has ruled police cannot question students during school hours unless the principal and parent or their representatives are present.

And police must wear plainclothes unless delay caused by changing out of uniform would hinder investigation, the board said at a policy session Wednesday night.

Under the new policy, police intention to interview a student must be reported first to the principal who in turn calls parents of the student.

* * *

DUNCAN—Local fire marshal, Tom Brunton, said Wednesday the estimated loss on buildings and contents involved in fires in North Cowichan last year was $73,100.

The estimated loss of cars and their contents by fire was $4,300.

* * *

DUNCAN—The funds from a Mount Provost student council dance have been handed over to fire victims Dennis Middlemiss and his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Middlemiss and their seven children lost everything when fire destroyed their Sahtlam Road home last Thursday.

Three of the children attend Mount Provost School.

Three others attend Tansor School where pupils and parents made a collection of clothing and money. The PTA plans to hold a kitchen shower for their benefit.

Mrs. G. A. McLure of Howard Avenue, organized a drive which resulted in three station wagon loads of donations.

The Middlemiss' plan rebuilding a home on the same site.

* * *

DUNCAN—Statistics released here Tuesday indicate a growing Cowichan Valley population.

In 1964 there were 475 births, 141 deaths and 143 marriages registered. Figures for the previous year showed 450 births, 146 deaths and 129 marriages.

The area covered is from the top of the Malahat to Crofton and from Cowichan Lake to the tidal waters of the east coast.

No exact figures are known but the total population, which does not include Chemainus, is known to be more than 10,000.

* * *

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce operated in the red last year.

Members agreed Wednesday to a 25 per cent increase in dues to try and set back in the black.

They also accepted Dave Pollock's budget recommendations for office economy and the need for a membership drive.

The chamber had a net deficit of $1,326.

Mr. Pollock said the increased dues would bring in $750 and 50 new members paying an average of $20 would fetch an additional $1,000.

* * *

COURTENAY—A father who failed to return store merchandise stolen by his children was convicted of theft in magistrate's court here Wednesday.

Robert William Ilot said he knew the children were taking goods and he intended to take them back. But he said he was ashamed.

Magistrate John Ryland gave Ilot a 12-month suspended sentence and ordered him to post $500 bond.

"It is clear that Mr. Ilot did not take the articles but his children did and he knew that his children were apt to steal," said the magistrate.

Cancer Cure 'Not Near'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Dr. Lewis C. Robins, chief of the cancer control program for the U.S. Public Health Service, said during a visit here that predictions of a cure for lung cancer within 10 or 20 years "verge on irresponsibility."

Dr. Robins painted a bleak picture for smokers who point their hopes at a sudden cure, to justify their continued smoking.

"Even with our greatly improved methods of treatment, the rate of survival from lung cancer is about 6 per cent," Dr. Robins said.

Horsemen Name New Officers

CHEMAINUS — Chemainus Western Horsemen Club has elected new officers.

Bob Lee is president; Jack Lock, vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Sowerby, secretary; Bob Joughin, treasurer, and Fred Kilner, Bill Smith, Floyd Nichols, Harvey Halk, Jim Brooks, Hank Elzinga and Fred Botley, directors.

Handicapped Program Expanded

More physically handicapped boys in Victoria may soon be able to participate in the Boy Scout program of the city.

The Queen Alexandra Solarium has sponsored a Cub pack for more than 14 years for the physically handicapped.

The Solarium's 7th Garry Oak Pack has had as many as 35 boys in the pack.

The new group now under study is designed for boys in hospitals, institutions and those not able to participate in regular Scout activities.

Carl Smith, group chairman of the Third Fort Victoria Scout Troop has worked for six months now, to develop this Scout group for the handicapped.

With the help of organizations specialized in the care of the handicapped boys, Mr. Smith is trying to determine how the Scout program may best be used to help prepare them to become useful citizens.

The program will be further developed in relation to the success of this pilot group.

Interested parents of handicapped boys may contact Carl Smith, 1458 Elford.

Early Warning Given On Road Restriction

Provincial highways department officials Tuesday warned that truck and bus load restrictions may be needed this spring during the thaw period on some Vancouver Island highways.

The early warning was given in view of exceptionally heavy snow falls up-Island which could cause trouble during break-up.

N. Cowichan 'Fears' Hepatitis Epidemic

NORTH COWICHAN—Fears were voiced today of a potential epidemic of Hepatitis in this rural community.

Warning of the possible outbreak came from the district's health representative, Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn.

She said there were grave risks of an outbreak unless something is done about sewage immediately.

Hepatitis is a virus affecting the liver.

If not caught in time it can be fatal.

At the best it means six weeks of continual treatment, much of the time in hospital.

Mrs. Dobbyn first voiced her fears at North Cowichan council Wednesday.

She said: "The people are concerned and I am really afraid of the possibility of an epidemic."

The area affected takes in Mary Street and Sherman Road.

TANKS OVERFLOW

Mrs. Dobbyn said a number of septic tanks in the area are known to be running over and sewage is running out into streets and ditches.

There have been a number of hepatitis cases in the district in the past two years, she said.

Backing up her claims, a spokesman for Victoria Medical Society said today: "If this effluent is coming into contact with local water supplies then there is a potential epidemic."

He said about two in every 100 contracting the disease die.

Reeve Donald Morton told council a majority of area residents had turned down a sewer bylaw in the past.

Despite this, council is considering plans for sewer installations.

DUNCAN—What Reeve Donald Morton called "a fairly regular complaint" cropped up again in North Cowichan council Wednesday.

This time it was voiced by James Fairweather.

He said the condition of Khenipsen and Gore-Langton roads on Green Point peninsula was ruining car tires and shock absorbers.

The reeve said the area was zoned 'undeveloped'. When a move was made to re-zone it 'rural' the "entire population" of the peninsula protested.

Reeve Morton said: "So long as it remains classified "undeveloped' they can't expect us to build a blacktop road when we have no control over what happens alongside. That's why the road is narrow now."

The complaint was referred to the public works committee.

* * *

DUNCAN — Local Christian Scientists told North Cowichan council they consider fluoridation a violation of the individual right of freedom of choice.

They said Wednesday their objections should be noted if fluoridation becomes an issue again.

Council is considering a possible bylaw in the Chemainus district.

The Christian Scientists say they are not against the individual use of fluorides, but to enforce mass fluoridation is wrong.

DUNCAN—Charles Alexander Semple, of 3989 Century Road, Victoria, was fined $125 and banned from driving for six months Wednesday. He pleaded guilty in Duncan magistrates' court to having control of his car while impaired.

Semple was arrested at the wheel of his car while parked in downtown Duncan just before midnight Tuesday.

DOCTOR MAKES INDIANS WAIT UNTIL LAST—EDITOR

DUNCAN — The editor of the Catholic Oblate News says Indians are forced to wait until last for treatment in the office of one doctor here.

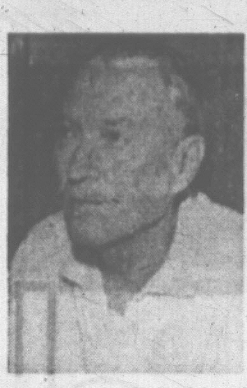
Miss Kay Cronin, in an address to a service club, made an angry plea for better relations between whites and Indians.

She did not name the doctor.

The former Vancouver newspaper woman said an example of the segregation between whites and Indians was the fact she did not see any Indian members in the service club she was addressing, the Rotary Club.

She urged formation of an Indian affairs committee composed of Indian leaders and officials from various agencies, including health and welfare, police, probation, education and the Indians affairs branch.

Miss Cronin said Indians have an "incredibly deep sense of inferiority."



HEADING the B.C. delegation to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture in Regina will be Archie Stevenson of Duncan. He leaves Sunday with Charles Walls, Metchosin, manager of the B.C. Federation. Mr. Stevenson is vice-president of the provincial body.

COMMISSION SUDIES FERRY COMPLAINT

Opinion 'Soon' on 72-Hour Week

The Civil Service Commission will give its opinion shortly on a planned ferry schedule calling for a 72 hour, six-day work week fo three months this summer.

The schedule was poste by B.C. Ferries late last year for the Queen of Sidney starting a new service fron Swartz Bay through the Gul Islands to Tsawwassen an back.

It was protested by th 8,000-member B.C. Gover ment Employees Associatio which took its grievance the commission.

Commission chairman D Hugh Morrison said an opinion "is in the offing."

Asked if this meant a few weeks, he said: "I think so . . . I hope so."

He explained the commission cannot rule on the matter. Its power was to give an opinion and review.

Although the ferry schedule has a 72-hour work week during the summer, it is much less at other times of the year. The average work week for a full year is 41 hours.

Ferry general manager Monty Aldous said the authority felt a responsibility not to hire a crew for the summer and then drop it on a slack employment market.

SOVIET UNION RAPS U THANT

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Soviet Union today protested strongly against a report by Secretary-General U Thant that showed the Soviets and other Communist states in arrears in their UN dues.

The protest, sent to Thant today by Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko, accused Thant of backing the position of the U.S. in the UN financial dispute.

Medical Subsidy Plan Set For B.C. Low Income Group

Throne Speech Stresses Parks, Health, Schools

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

A government program for subsidizing the lower income group's private medical insurance premiums was forecast today in the speech from the Throne as the B.C. legislature opened its 1965 session.

Lieutenant - Governor George Pearkes took about half an hour to read the 3,250-word speech to the glittering opening day assembly in a ceremony that followed a bright, cheery and gusty morning.

Shorter than last year's speech but recording more hydro and forestry progress during the past year, the speech concentrated on programs aimed at human progress in the fields of health, education, probation, parks and pollution.

It also contained a one-sentence promise to amend last year's controversial bank investment legislation which could turn into the "sleeper" of the session if it produces a new flanking movement in the government's battle with the Senate over the Bank of B.C. charter application.

The speech—which is actually written by the premier for the vice-regal representative to read—noted that the B.C. cabinet for years had advocated a national health plan.

Since it now appears the federal government is not prepared to put such a plan into effect at the present time, the legislature was told:

"My government will ask you to consider legislation to provide for government contributions toward the cost of medical insurance services for citizens whose incomes are at lower levels.

Plan Has Voluntary Basis

"Such assistance would be granted in connection with approved medical plans and would be on a voluntary basis."

Premier Bennett declined to tell reporters what the cut-off income level would be for receiving the government help or how many persons would be covered.

However, he said the subsidization program would cost the treasury "many millions of dollars" and will assist "way more than tens of thousands of people."

He also said that he sincerely regrets lack of progress in a national medicare plan and that the B.C. move is designed as an interim step "to help the people who need it most—those in the first group just above" social welfare recipients who already have free medical benefits.

He said that while "we don't intend to wait" for establishment of a national plan, he hoped one would come into existence.

In general outline as revealed by the throne speech, the medical insurance assistance scheme appears similar to one in operation in Alberta and another proposed in Ontario but Premier Bennett refused to draw any comparisons.

Details Secret About Banks

The premier's ready — although necessarily general—elaboration of the medical insurance references contrasted sharply with a teasing mysteriousness when reporters asked for more information about the bank investment sentence.

It read: "An amendment to the Revenue Act in connection with the investment by my government in the shares of chartered banks will be placed before you.".

He gave up only two bits of information, each of which could be indicators that the premier plans a "two-bank" policy as a repeat tactic of his famous "two - river" policy which finally broke the impasse in his drive for Ottawa permission to sell downstream benefits of the Columbia River scheme to the U.S.

One of these bits was his answer — delivered with a grin — "it may go beyond that," when asked if the amendment would merely formalize his earlier undertaking to reduce the controversial 25 per cent government investment limit in the proposed Bank of B.C. to 10 per cent.

This was the chief stumbling block in the Senate banking committee which finally recommended that the B.C. application for a charter be denied. That recommendation still needs ratification by the full Senate.

The other "bit" was Mr. Bennett's pointed reference to the plural "banks" used in the 1965 speech — in sharp contrast to the singular used in the controversial legislation last year.

This immediately raised the questions whether the government might be toying with the idea of trying a desperate 11th-hour flanking movement involving some sort of connection with the proposed Vancouver-based but much smaller Laurentide Bank.

(Creditiste leader Real Caouette—a personal friend of Premier Bennett — has already drawn a connection between the Bank of B.C., Laurentide and Winnipeg-based Bank of Western Canada charter applications. He has warned the House of Commons he will oppose the other charters if the Bank of B.C. is turned down.)

Much of the Throne Speech was devoted to lengthy and glowing reviews of the province's booming economy in 1964 highlighted by massive steps forward in hydro-electric programs, pulp mill plants, highways and the ferry fleet.

"In every aspect of their endeavors our people made un-

Throne Speech Highlights

Government subsidization of private medical insurance plan premiums for lower income groups.

Anticipation that hospitalization insurance will be extended by federal-provincial agreement to cover chronically ill.

"Major expenditures" for expansion of vocational and technical training.

Increases in grants to school districts, universities, regional vocational schools and vocational additions to high schools.

Further reductions in B.C. Hydro power rates.

Creation of a new forest district.

Amendment of the Pollution Control Act.

Amendment of last year's controversial legislation to authorize government investment in chartered banks.

Legislation to permit establishment of Regional Park boards.

Measures to help create "model communities" in booming areas.

Legislation "to augument greatly" the provincial probation service.

'Stout Heart Might Beat For Days'

LONDON (UPI)—Sir Winston Churchill's vitality was ebbing by the hour today, but he continued his stout fight to survive.

No physician would predict how long his heart would keep beating, but some of them thought it might go on for days.

Lady Churchill left the house in mid-afternoon for a short automobile drive.

The mid-day medical bulletin from his physician, Lord Moran, read: "There is no change in Sir Winston's condition. There will be a further bulletin this evening."

In this case "no change" was bad news. For Wednesday night Moran said the 90-year-old hero of Britain, who suffered a massive stroke last week, had touched the lowest ebb in his gallant fight for survival.

NO IMPROVEMENT

Obviously there had been no improvement through the night and morning.

No physician familiar with the case would even guess as to how long Churchill might be suspended between life and death.

A spokesman for the British Medical Association, after hearing about the mid-day bulletin, commented: "This sort of condition in his illness could go on for several days."

In the language of the layman what the doctors were saying was that Churchill's vitality had been draining away for several days, but that Wednesday night the rate had accelerated. His circulatory system had begun to deteriorate.

Quebec Plans To Go Ahead With Pension

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—The Quebec government announced today it would introduce its own pension plan within a few months and "a number of measures to stimulate the economy of the province."

These were among the highlights in the Speech from the Throne—an outline of the provincial government's plans for at least the next six months—read by Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois.

The government said it also planned to ask the 95-member legislative assembly to approve financial arrangements now under negotiation for an integrated $225 million iron and steel complex.

STUDENT HELD

Two Bullets Hit Iranian Premier

TEHRAN (UPI)— Premier Hassan Ali Mansur of Iran was seriously wounded in front of the parliament building early today by a youth who fired five shots at him, the government said.

The 41-year-old premier, who assumed office 10 months ago, was rushed to a hospital where he underwent emergency treatment. Later doctors said Mansur was out of danger.

A government communique said:

"An attempt against the premier's life was made this morning before parliament by a youth of 19 years, whose papers showed he was named Mohammed Bokharai."

It was learned the youth, who was captured after a chase, was a senior in a Tehran high school.

TWO SHOTS

Police said two of Bokharai's shots hit Mansur. One of them entered the premier's jaw above the neck and a second hit him in the pelvis area.

The other three shots went wild.

Mansur's aides quoted the premier as saying 'I have been shot." They rushed forward, carried the wounded premier to his car and rushed him to the hospital.

Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi, the Shah of Iran, was vacationing at the ski resort of Abe Ali, north of Tehran, with his empress and their son, Crown Prince Rezah, when news of the attempted assassination was relayed to him.

A special security car with top police officials sped to the ski resort to brief the shah, who was expected to return to the capital immediately.

'Just an Errand Boy' Masson Tells Probe

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Masson, vowing "I was very much the layman," testified to the Dorion inquiry today that he did not know last summer whether the extradition of Lucien Rivard could be prevented.

Masson said all he did in the Rivard affair was pass along word to Raymond Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, that $60,000 was available for the Liberal party election fund if Rivard was not extradited to the United States to face charges in connection with a narcotics smuggling case.

Yves Fortier, counsel for Pierre Lamontagne, suggested that after last July 6 Masson and Denis decided that Rivard had to be released from jail on bail "at any cost."

Masson replied that he did not know what Mr. Fortier meant by the words "at any cost."

He said there never was any question between him and Denis at that time of a bribe or of Mr. Lamontagne's association with the Rivard case.

The witness has identified himself as a "representative" of several companies and a former Liberal party organizer.

TOLD OF BRIBE

Mr. Lamontagne is counsel for the United States justice department which wants Rivard extradited. He has testified that Mr. Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Mr. Fortier asked how, with $60,000 in hand "were you going to go about preventing Rivard's extradition?"

"I had no idea whether we could or couldn't prevent extradition," Masson replied. "I was very much the layman . . ."

"All I did was carry out the errand to Mr. Denis that Mr. Gignac had asked me to do."

Masson has testified that he accepted $1,000 from Robert Gignac, his business partner, now charged with capital murder in a gangland-type slaying here last Sept. 17, to enlist help in Ottawa on Rivard's behalf.

As the hearing reopened before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, Francois Chapados, counsel for Masson, protested about newspaper reports quoting Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre

BAIL FUND DONOR

Scheduled Witness Died in December

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Lucien Rivard testified today at the Dorion inquiry that her brother-in-law Ovide (Dave) Gagnon died at the beginning of December from a heart attack.

Mrs. Rivard, 32, was not asked and did not say why she had not given this evidence when she appeared before the inquiry last week.

The wife of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard said last week that she borrowed $20,000 cash from Gagnon as part of $60,000 intended bail money for her husband.

She said Gagnon was a gatekeeper, ticket-seller and part-time painter at her husband's Plage Ideale resort.

Chief Justice Dorion commented that everyone connected with the commission had expected Gagnon to be a witness.

Commission counsel Andre Des Jardins asked Gagnon's cause of death.

"A heart attack, I think it is called," Mrs. Rivard said.

Chief Justice Dorion asked how old Gagnon was.

"Around 61 or 62," Mrs. Rivard said.

Freighter Crew Takes to Boats

HONOLULU (AP) — The 442-foot Liberian freighter San Nicola radioed today it was sinking 770 miles northwest of Honolulu and the 30 men aboard have taken to lifeboats.

Two planes and a ship responded to the distress call. The 7,242-ton vessel, bound from San Francisco for Formosa with a load of scrap, first messaged at 2.29 a.m. that it was breaking up.

The U.S. Coast Guard said another message at 4.12 a.m. reported those aboard were "now in lifeboats."

A coast guard plane was dispatched from Barbers Point naval station near Honolulu and was believed already at the scene. The U.S. Air Force also sent a plane.

The nearest ship in the area was identified only as the Maria. It headed for the scene.

There was no immediate report on weather in the area.

GLOBAL DETECTION JOB PROPOSED

They Want to Dig to the Bottom of Things

WASHINGTON (AP)—A scientific panel today urged the United States to explore the feasibility of drilling holes up to 10 miles deep in the earth.

The aim would be an unprecedented attempt to help unravel such secrets of the earth as how minerals are made and earthquakes developed. The panel indicated that just studying the idea might cost $50,000,000.

The proposal was made in a report on earth - science subjects. It was prepared by a panel of the National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council.

Said the report: "At present, we know more about the surface of the moon, especially its topography, than we do about the earth's mantle 20 or so miles beneath our feet."

The panel - proposed "superholes" would be twice as deep as the deepest holes drilled on land in the past for oil prospecting. They would exceed by four miles the depth of the already impending oceanic Mohole Project.

The Mohole will be an attempt to drill a six-mile-deep hole into the ocean floor—with the objective of boring completely through the earth's crust and reaching its mantle. The earth's mantle is believed to begin only about six miles beneath some ocean areas, while its depth beneath continents may be 20 or 30 miles.

The mantle extends down some 2,000 miles below the relatively thin outer crust of the planet, and it's known to play a major but little - understood role in transferring energy from the earth's deep interior to the crust.

It is such energy that results in such phenomena as mountain - building, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, and the creation and dispersal of minerals.

NEW MARKET OPENING UP?

Japan Seeks Canadian Fish

VANCOUVER (CP) — A change appears in the offing in Japan's fishing relationship with Canada.

British Columbia fishermen say they are receiving inquiries from Japan—the second largest fishing nation of the world—about buying more Canadian fish.

Industry sources said this was surprising as Canada and Japan have long been fishing competitors in certain areas.

There have also been other moves by Japan to secure more fish. The only functioning Canadian whaling operation, off the West Coast, now is partly owned by the Japanese.

Some sources also say "two or three" small B.C. canneries now are controlled by Japanese interests.

90 PER CENT FISH DIET

About 90 per cent of all the protein consumed by Japanese comes from fish and about 85 per cent of her annual fish harvest is for domestic consumption.

Ken Lucas, assistant federal area director of fisheries says at that rate, Japan won't be abel to supply her own demands within five years.

In Japan there's a market "for almost anything that swims," he says.

Western Canadian Whaling Ltd., a joint Japan-Canada venture off the Pacific Coast, sells oil and fertilizer byproducts in North America. The whale meat is sold in Japan as food.

Dr. Fukuzo Nagasaki, Japanese member of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, says cheap labor in Japan makes it profitable for Japan to import raw fish and export the processed product at competitive prices.

Japan may want to buy Canadian fish to stabilize the supply, he added.

Mr. Lucas says Japan's urgent need for factory labor may force fishermen into industry, forcing that country to import fish providing Canada with one of its biggest markets.

J. E. Antonelli, Canadian sales manager for the Fishermen's Co-operative Federation, says he was surprised to get Japanese requests for a price on halibut because Canadian fishermen consider Japan a competitor in halibut fishing.

Japanese companies began buying Canadian salmon, particularly sockeye, some years ago, he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Skeena Busy Trader On Vancouver Mart

Losses outnumbered gains in fairly active trade on the mining section of the Vancouver Stock Exchange at noon today.

Skeena, the morning's busiest trader, rose one to 23 cents on 122,000 shares. Dolly Varden gained two to 90 cents on 13,000 shares.

Silver Standard dropped six cents to $1.16 and Torwest lost five cents to $1.03. General Resources traded 64,000 shares and went up four to 21 cents.

In the oils Royal American gained three to 88 cents.

AT TORONTO stocks maintained earlier losses in moderate midafternoon trading today. Senior base metals tumbled.

In industrials, Trans-Canada Pipe was off 1⅛ to 40¼ and Alberta Gas Trunk A and Algoma Steel ½ each to 38¼ and 73½. Bell Telephone and CPR each dropped ¾ to 63½ and 63¾.

On the speculative side, McWatters dropped a penny to 64 cents and Chibougamau Mining added two to 82 cents.

In senior base metals, Inco dropped 1½ to 87¾, and Hudson Bay 2½ to 75½. Denison rose 1¼ to 25⅛ and its affiliate, Roman Corp., tacked on 35 cents to $7.

Golds traded lightly. Home A rose ⅛ to 21 in oils.

AT NEW YORK the market backtracked from recent record highs as trading slackened. Losses of about a point were taken by Kennecott, International Nickel and Phelps Dodge. U.S. Steel fell nearly a point, along with U.S. Smelting.

Fractional losers included General Motors, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Anaconda and International Paper.

AT MONTREAL stocks were generally lower in moderate trade today. Industrials were lower. Dominion Textile dropped ¾.

AT LONDON the market was quietly firm today. Gilt-edged eased while dollar stocks were irreguarl.

Algoma and Noranda led Canadians while BA Oil, Consolidated Mining, Hollinger and Imperial Oil also were good. Small falls were taken by Abitibi, Canadian Husky, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, International Nickel and Trans Canada Pipe. Canadian Pacific dipped in rails.

Properties and trusts showed well. Insurances were mixed. Royal Bank of Canada and Toronto Dominion Bank were firm. Bank of Nova Scotia slipped a little. Steels were firm.

Laurentide Increases Receivables

VANCOUVER (CP)—Laurentide Corp. Ltd., last year increased its receivables by $50,000,000 to a total of about $350,000,000 and now is "realizing the economies of size," president Peter Paul Saunders said Wednesday.

For the first time the company's growth in receivables and assets exceeded its growth in expenses, he said.

He told a meeting of the B.C. Bond Dealers Association that with expansion into the western U.S., Laurentide has been able to borrow working capital there at interest rates slightly lower than in Canada.

The company's application for a bank charter will again come before parliament in the spring.

"We will need a lot of support in the Commons because there are strong political pressures by forces over which we have no control," said Mr. Saunders.

He said the two largest shareholders of the bank would be Power Corp. of Canada and Forston Investment Corp. Ltd., each with about 7.5 per cent. The remaining 85 per cent would be sold publicly, half of it being offered to Laurentide's 6,000 shareholders.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds were irregular, while feed grains were steady and rye declined, then rallied today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Sale of 500 tons of flax to Japan and 500 tons to a European country was reported. A small amount of rapeseed was purchased by Japan. Oilseed declines were attributed to declines in Chicago soybeans.

Rye rallied following a report of sale of a parcel lot to a European country.

Oats and barley were steady in light trade.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 675,000 bushels; West Germany 150,000; Japan 40,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures were firm today on the board of trade, but soybeans were erratic on an otherwise steady market.

Soybeans moved above and below Wednesday's closes after the government reported December crushings were 43,163,000 bushels.

There was profit-taking in soybean bulges and buying on breaks.

Wheat found good support buying by commission houses and covering by shorts. Corn sold mostly fractions higher.

WEST GERMANY INCREASES BANK RATE

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — The West German bank rate will be raised to 3½ per cent from three per cent beginning Friday, the federal bank announced today.

Observers saw the measure—the first change since May 5, 1961—as intended to slow down an expected rush of private and public expenditure during 1965.

Arthur Mayse

There is in Greek mythology a dame called Prosperpina whose greedy appetite for pomegranate seeds exposed her to a most peculiar and dreadful fate.

She was allowed to enjoy part of each year among mortals. Certain other months, however, she must spend in hades with the grim lord of the underworld.

Well, my name ain't Prosperpina, and I dislike pomegranate seeds intensely; but the time has come when I must go down for a spell to Mr. Bennett's kingdom under the dome.

Five days each week while the session lasts, I'll be writing about the ways and works of our legislators on page one. Mondays, we'll cut up touches in this corner.

Matter of fact, I should be perched right now in a Legislative Press Gallery seat above the striped pants, uniforms, vestments and edible-seeming ladies' hats while the annual spectorama of tradition and protocol runs its Opening Day course in our British Columbia parliament.

First, though, we have some tidying-up to do here.

The young man you know as 'Kelly', who is being staked to a freshman year at University of Victoria by generous Times readers, is now well-lanched on his second semester.

His first, he started under handicaps that included late registration, lack of books and a diet which, for one bad spell, consisted entirely of apples borrowed from a convenient tree.

In spite of all, he passed his Christmas exams handily, with the exception of English 100, which he missed by two marks.

His friends are helping him—the list includes an honors student who has carved time from a busy schedule — and we're confident he will bolster that shaky subject.

All in all, I'm not too badly pleased with Kelly, even though I will risk no predictions at this mid-point in a road rocky every step of the way.

A while ago, I complained that this year's calendars don't mark moon phases and holidays. To readers whose response was an avalanche of moon-and-holiday calendars from as far away as England, many thanks!

Because of your bounty, I can now report with authority that the moon enters its last quarter on Sunday, Jan. 24, also that St. Swithin's Day falls on July 15, and that spring will begin at 8 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time on March 20, which I'm pleased to note is a Saturday.

A total eclipse of the sun is scheduled for May 30, but since the path of totality lies well south of us and almost entirely in the sea, don't expect too much from it in these latitudes.

On Nov. 23, the sun may treat us to a partial eclipse, but I'm not counting on that one either, since it's almost certain to be raining.

(I didn't learn that last from a calendar . . . just feel it in my bones.)

Time's passing, and it would never do to miss the Speech from the Throne, with its hints of goodies to be scattered on British Columbians by a government whose collective haunches threaten to leave a lasting imprint on the seats of office.

Even so, we can spare a moment for something that badly needs saying.

I think our old age pensioners are the true and pathetic victims of the bus fare increase.

They'll be asking us to sign their petition for a five-buck yearly bus pass at two downtown booths. That's a smart idea, but the 7,000 expected signatures aren't enough.

Should our pensioners care to ask, I'm sure that a legion of generous-hearted boys and girls will volunteer to carry their appeal for help to every suburban door in this city.

Hoodlum Hide-Out To Be Demolished

Demolition of the old Johnstone building at the foot of Johnson Street has been started.

With it goes another link with Victoria's past, for the massive brick and stone structure was put up in 1905 and has since been used as a clothing store, a dairy, a restaurant, an ice cream depot, a soap plant, a distribution centre for the Salvation Army—and more recently as a hide-out for alcoholics.

The Salvation Army is pulling it down because the cost of renovating the building to comply with standards set by the fire marshal and the city building inspector—about $15,000—would be more than the cost of a new building.

In its place, the Salvation Army will build a modern warehouse and parking lot. According to present plans, the parking lot will be under the warehouse, a few feet below ground level.

"We shall call for tenders as soon as plans have been approved at headquarters," a spokesman said.

The new warehouse will be of modern design in harmony with the Salvation Army hostel next door and will provide storage space for goods sold by the Army's family thrift store adjoining the hostel.

"The police will be glad to see the old building go," the Army spokesman said. "It has been used as a hide-out by alcoholics and gangs of hoodlums who broke in at the back."

TOY CENTRE

At Christmastime, however, the Army used it as a centre for the distribution of toys to poor children and dressed up the front in seasonal style with painted sentinels, candy canes and artificial snow.

The building was erected on the site of an old butcher's shop in 1905 by the late Henry Hall Johnstone of Victoria. For many years it was a clothing store operated by David Lindsay; then it became the Heather Bank Dairy and subsequently a restaurant and a wholesale ice cream depot.

Then the Johnstone family rented it to the Zero Soap Manufacturing Company from 1954 to 1962, when the company sold out to Boyle-Midway Canada Ltd.—one of the biggest soap manufacturers in Canada.

With the closing of the Victoria plant, the staff of Zero soap, headed by manager George Little, was moved to Boyle-Midway's plant in Toronto.

Last year the Johnstone family sold the building to the Salvation Army.

"There is a perpetual spring under the building," Major Lorne Jannison said, "and I understand this was something of a problem when construction was started on this site.

"It may also be a problem when our new building goes up."

33 Military Officials To Tour B.C.

Thirty-three representatives of 21 Canadian, British, and American armed services and government departments will begin a five-day B.C. visit here Sunday.

They are all students at the National Defence College at Kingston, Ont.

The visit is part of a familiarization tour for defence college students of military and industrial establishments in Canada and the U.S.

Heading the group will be Major General C. B. Ware, commandant of the defence college.

Other students represent the three Canadian armed forces, Royal Navy, Royal Air Force, United States navy, army and air force, 10 Canadian government departments and the British foreign office.

ARRIVE SUNDAY

They will arrive Sunday evening at Pat Bay Airport.

Tuesday morning, Attorney-General Robert Bonner will address them in the Empress Hotel on the subject, "British Columbia, Today and Tomorrow."

That evening course members will be hosted by Lieut.-Gov. G. R. Pearkes at a Government House reception, followed by another reception, hosted by officers of the RCN's Pacific Command at HMCS Naden.

Wednesday they will travel to Vancouver for a tour of the University of B.C. campus and a look at Crown Zellerbach's Fraser Mills Plywood Plant.

Course members return to Victoria that evening to leave here the following day for the United States.

Careless Drivers

An 18-year-old, Glen W. Davis, was fined $100 and his driving licence suspended when he appeared in city court today and pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

Magistrate William Ostler was told the youth had been observed driving on Blanshard Street without headlights about 2 a.m. Jan. 9. When he attempted a turn at Courtenay Street he lost control of the car and spun in a half-circle ending up facing the opposite direction.

There was no damage to either the car or any other property.

Other careless driving fines:

Cecil Clubb, 943 Byng, $45, following an accident at Burdette and Quadra Dec. 28.

Archibald Bainbridge, 46 High, View Royal, $45, an accident Jan. 6 at Bay and Blanshard.

Andre Fortier, Work Point Barracks, $60, his car went out of control Jan. 13 on Esquimalt Road near Tyee and went over an embankment at 95 Esquimalt Road.

School Concert All Set to Roll

Persons who bought tickets for an inter-school band concert, which was postponed from last November, will be able to use them Friday at 8.15 p.m. in Central Junior Secondary School Auditorium.

Rod Semple and Mrs. Violet De Long will lead three school orchestras and two bands in the presentation, Christmas Holiday Prelude.

RE-BIRTH OF GROUP SOUGHT

'Spirit of St. George Needed Now'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Saint George of England must not be allowed to disappear from the Victoria scene.

"His spirit is needed as never before," says Major Fred Ney, a member of the central council of the Royal Society of Saint George in London, England.

Major Ney proposes the formation of a Vancouver Island branch of the Royal Society to replace the now defunct Victoria branch.

"If they were approached in the right spirit, I'm sure the youth of Vancouver Island would rally round and keep the flag of Saint George flying," he said.

"Symbols were never more important than they are today and Saint George is a universal symbol of faith and goodwill."

Major Ney founded the Commonwealth Youth Movement, which takes its inspiration from Saint George, in 1937 and it is still alive and active.

'SHOCKED'

Revisiting Victoria after two years' absence, he was shocked to hear that the Victoria branch of the Royal Society of Saint George was to be disbanded.

Mrs. Bertha Parsons, branch secretary, said the few remaining members wouldn't take office and young Victorians are "no longer interested" in England and its traditions.

Said Major Ney:

"I think most enlightened young people know that our greatest traditions of freedom and justice come from England. And Saint George isn't only England's patron saint, he is an international figure.

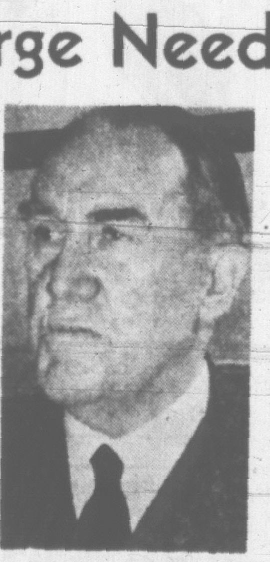
"He is also the patron saint of Portugal, Poland and Russia, and in the world of Islam he is known as the Evergreen Knight.

LINKS ISLAM . . .

"As such, he is a link between Islam and Christendom and the future of our western civilization might very well depend on an understanding between the two.

"The ideal of Commonwealth has lost so much of its significance, we should call on the spirit of Saint George in an effort to achieve better understanding.

"We should use him as a symbol of fellowship, goodwill and faith."



MAJOR FRED NEY

Major Ney said the success of the Commonwealth Youth Movement, which he started with a mass rally in London, England, in 1937, is based on an acceptance of the universality of God.

"Such an acceptance is a more potent influence for world peace than anything else," he said, "and loss of religious faith is the most serious threat to our civilization today."

PILGRIMAGES

The Commonwealth Youth Movement arranges youth pilgrimages to different countries every year. But they're not called pilgrimages — they're called Quests and the young people are known as Questors in search of truth and knowledge.

Culmination of each Quest is an all-night vigil in a church or cathedral patterned on the old traditions of knighthood.

"Young people must have inspiration," Major Ney said, and, if our Commonwealth is to survive, we must give them an inspiration comparable with the inspiration Communist countries are giving their youth.

"We have gone wrong in preaching that Communism was promoted by force. The majority of its followers are inspired by a common faith.

"That is why I say we must keep alive our symbols of faith—and Saint George is one of them."

Major Ney said the Royal Society of Saint George is still active in many countries of the world and has branches in Toronto and Montreal.

When the parent body holds its annual Saint George's Day banquet in London, England, on April 23, the major will have a special guest—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, former governor general of Canada.

Baby Badly Beaten; Police Charge Father

Navy Man In Jail On Assault

Russell Robinson, 21, of HMCS Naden, appeared in city court today charged with beating his nine-month-old daughter and causing her bodily injury.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked for a one-day adjournment of the case.

"The child's injuries are still undetermined and there may be more serious charges laid as a result of this alleged assault," he told Magistrate William Ostler.

'BROKEN BONES . . .'

Royal Jubilee Hospital officials today described the girl's condition as "satisfactory." She was believed suffering from "broken bones and multiple bruises."

Robinson is charged specifically with assault occasioning bodily harm to Wanda Robinson between Jan. 12 and Jan. 18.

He was arrested Wednesday night by city detectives following a report from the hospital and is being held in custody.

Tugs Refloat Grounded Freighter

Diver Inspects For Damage

The 10,000-ton United States freighter Tonsina, which ran aground off Willow Point near Campbell River Wednesday, was refloated this morning.

Two tugs stood by throughout the night in case the loaded ship showed signs of floating free.

But it was not until 6 a.m., when the tide rose five or six feet, that they were finally able to tow her loose.

A diver and salvage master from Island Tug and Barge sailed across to her from Vancouver this morning.

The ship is anchored out, in mid-channel east of Campbell River while damage is inspected.

HEAVY FOG

The Tonsina was headed for Alaska with a general cargo from Seattle when she ran aground in heavy fog only 50 feet from shore.

Attempts were made by the tugs Sudbury II and Island Challenger to refloat her at high tide Wednesday night.

But the three-foot rise was not enough.

Local residents voiced fears the boat might tip over at low tide shortly after midnight.

Although practically out of the water, the ship remained on an even keel.

War Games Over B.C. Set Friday

Units from Canada and the U.S. will conduct an air defence exercise dubbed Chinook Knife Kilo over coastal B.C. and the western states Friday.

Purpose of the aerial war games is to test the defence system of the 25th NORAD region which stretches from Neah Bay, Wash., to San Francisco, Calif.

The Seattle sector of the region, of which RCAF Station Comox, B.C., is an integral part, will bear the brunt of the exercise.

There is a possibility some of the action will take place over Victoria, an RCAF spokesman said today.

7 MILES HIGH

But it is unlikely Victorians will get a glimpse of it as the planes will be flying at an altitude of seven miles.

Planes will fly at supersonic speed over the ocean, but will slow to subsonic speeds over populated areas to prevent sonic boom shock waves.

Faker (enemy) aircraft from the U.S. and Canada will fly up to Alaska, turn around and come down through B.C. for their "attack" on U.S. targets.

Among these units will be CF-100 Canucks and T-33s out of Comox; B-57 bombers from Hill AFB at Ogden, Utah, and USN Sky Warrior aircraft from Whidbey Island, Wash.

Comox will also be represented in the defending forces with CF-101 Voodoo interceptors.

Other high-speed aircraft will come from Kingsley Field, Ore.; Paine Field, Everett, Wash.; McChord AFB, Tacoma, Wash.; Hamilton and Travis air force bases in California and U.S. National Guard units at Spokane and Portland.

'Civvy' Firemen At Navy Base Tops In Canada

HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt has won the 1964 grand award of the National Fire Prevention Association in a competition among Canadian military bases.

This is the third time since 1958 HMC Dockyard has captured top honors in the competition. Last time was 1962.

The award is made for "excellence in fire protection and year-round fire prevention efforts."

Last year fire losses at the dockyard were $25. In 1963 and 1962 they were nil.

"The dockyard's good record is due in large measure to the co-operation received from everyone concerned," said Lieut.-Cmdr. Gordon Ball, Pacific command fire chief, who has a staff of 48 civilian firemen.

Seven-Year-Old Hurt In Traffic

A seven-year-old girl, Kathleen Scott of 3864 Douglas Street, was slightly injured by a car in front of her home at about 8:30 a.m. today.

Saanich police said she apparently ran into the side of a car driven by Rose Byhre, 195 Cadillac.

'DULL DAY' YOUTH'S REASON FOR SETTING MISCHIEF FIRE

A 17-year-old youth has been charged with mischief in connection with a rubbish fire Tuesday at the Town and Country Plaza.

Saanich police say the juvenile, in company with another youth, set fire to some rubbish then called the fire department.

Their explanation was that it was a dull day and they had nothing to do.

When the fire trucks arrived at the scene they were met by the youths who showed them where the fire was located.

CITY COUNCIL

Meeting Called On Delinquency

Juvenile delinquency today came under discussion at three separate points during city council committee meetings, where it was agreed to devote a special session to delinquency next week.

Health, welfare and morals committee set Tuesday for consideration of a Community Welfare Council report on juvenile delinquency, released late last year.

The report makes recommendations for dealing with delinquency problems, including areas in which city council action could be taken.

The same committee will recommend to council that billiard parlor age limits be dropped from 18 to 16 years generally, making no distinction between street-level, basement and second-floor parlors.

EXPAND FACILITIES

Third point dealt with was a recommendation that council allow the Boys Club of Greater Victoria to lease for 50 years, three adjoining lots to permit expansion of the old Yates Street firehall to about 12,000 square feet.

It was pointed out that council appreciates the anti-delinquency work done by the club, which has a membership of 600 boys and a capacity of only 300.

In view of city prospects of selling the lots to apartment developers for about $10,000, permitting the city to move its district water pumping station to another location for $10,000, the city had been reluctant to grant the club request.

WORTH 'THOUSANDS'

But any loss the city might suffer through having to move the pump now located there would be worth "thousands of dollars" spent on juvenile delinquency, committee members agreed.

Albert Zuick, operator of Suzie-Q Billiards, 860 Yates, appealed to the morals committee on behalf of downtown billiard halls to lower the age limit imposed by a 50-year-old bylaw.

"We are now entering the 21st century and I find I am strapped to an old bylaw," Mr. Zuick said.

"Poolrooms aren't what they used to be 50 years ago. There are smaller tables, colors, they are out at the street level instead of being in back rooms.

"We will soon find billiards are as big a thing as bowling is today," he pointed out.

Vancouver, he said, had dropped the age limit to 14 years.

"I think a billiard parlor is a wonderful place for boys, who are going to be downtown anyway, hanging around the streets or drive-ins."

He said the places are supervised, with no swearing allowed, no cigarettes on the floor. . . .

"If they are upgrading them," remarked Mayor R. B. Wilson, "I see nothing wrong with lowering the age."

Topics of the Day

The secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labour will be a supporting speaker when New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas speaks at a Union Centre banquet Feb. 1.

E. P. O'Neal will speak about medicare, Victoria Labour Council delegates were told Wednesday night by Bill Doneley, outgoing chairman of the political education committee.

Ask The Times

Q. How many bus drivers are employed by B.C. Hydro in Greater Victoria and what is their wage? How many men are employed for maintenance of buses and what is their wage?

Does the office staff have a large incentive fund such as the B.C. Electric had? What is the yearly income from bus fares?

N.C.

A. Taking your questions in order, there are 155 bus operators who are paid $2.65 per hour; 46 maintenance men for buses and other Hydro vehicles who receive $2.45½ per hour for washers to $2.88½ for mechanics.

There is no incentive fund and the revenue for the 1963-64 fiscal year from fares was $1,136,153 and $108,487 was the charter (not including sightseeing) revenue.

Q. How many suites are under construction in Greater Victoria?

A. Victoria, 1,019 apartment and 157 motel units; Saanich, 35; Oak Bay, 0, and Esquimalt, 70. Total, 1,281.

Ontario to Join Pension Plan

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Robarts announced today that Ontario will participate in the Canada Pension Plan.

Mr. Robarts told the Legislature his decision was based in part on the preservation of national unity and in part on amendments made to the Canada Pension Plan to satisfy Ontario objections.

He said it would be in the best interests not only of the people of Ontario but the people of Canada if the province accepted the federal scheme and made every effort "to make this plan truly national in scope for the benefit of all the citizens of Canada."

Alberta Studies Liquor Ad Ban

EDMONTON (UPI)—The Alberta government is studying the possibility of relaxing regulations banning liquor advertising.

Premier Manning said today a cabinet committee, along with the Alberta Liquor Control Board, is "re-examining this problem to see if we can come up with something more practical."

Youth Jailed for Attack on Parents

CALGARY (CP)—Michael Inskeep, 16, was sentenced today to five years in penitentiary after a jury found him guilty of the attempted murder of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Inskeep, last Oct. 19.

Tittle's Plans Revealed Friday

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants have called a press conference for noon Friday probably to reveal the future of their 39-year-old quarterback, Y. A. Tittle.

Tittle, who led the Giants to Eastern Division titles in the National Football League in 1961, 1962 and 1963, fell on bad days last season, along with the rest of the team.

Two Bullets Hit Iranian Premier

TEHRAN (UPI) — Premier Hassan Ali Mansur of Iran was seriously wounded in front of the parliament building early today by a youth who fired five shots at him, the government said.

The 41-year-old premier, who assumed office 10 months ago, was rushed to a hospital where he underwent emergency treatment. Later doctors said Mansur was out of danger.

A government communique said:

"An attempt against the premier's life was made this morning before parliament by a youth of 19 years, whose papers showed he was named Mohammed Bokharai."

It was learned the youth, who was captured after a chase, was a senior in a Tehran high school.

Police said two of Bokharai's shots hit Mansur. One of them entered the premier's jaw above the neck and a second hit him in the pelvis area.

The other three shots went wild.

Mansur's aides quoted the premier as saying 'I have been shot." They rushed forward, carried the wounded premier to his car and rushed him to the hospital.

Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi, the Shah of Iran, was vacationing at the ski resort of Abe Ali, north of Tehran, with his empress and their son, Crown Prince Rezah, when news of the attempted assassination was relayed to him.

SOVIET UNION RAPS U THANT

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Soviet Union today protested strongly against a report by Secretary-General U Thant that showed the Soviets and other Communist states in arrears in their UN dues.

The protest, sent to Thant today by Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko, accused Thant of backing the position of the U.S. in the UN financial dispute.

'Stout Heart Might Beat For Days'

LONDON (Reuters) — A medical bulletin issued tonight said Sir Winston Churchill's condition has not changed.

LONDON (UPI)—Sir Winston Churchill's vitality was ebbing by the hour today, but he continued his stout fight to survive.

No physician would predict how long his heart would keep beating, but some of them thought it might go on for days.

Lady Churchill left the house in mid-afternoon for a short automobile drive.

The mid-day medical bulletin from his physician, Lord Moran, read: "There is no change in Sir Winston's condition. There will be a further bulletin this evening."

In this case "no change" was bad news. For Wednesday night Moran said the 90-year-old hero of Britain, who suffered a massive stroke last week, had touched the lowest ebb in his gallant fight for survival.

NO IMPROVEMENT

Obviously there had been no improvement through the night and morning.

No physician familiar with the case would even guess as to how long Churchill might be suspended between life and death.

A spokesman for the British Medical Association, after hearing about the mid-day bulletin, commented: "This sort of condition in his illness could go on for several days."

In the language of the layman what the doctors were saying was that Churchill's vitality had been draining away for several days, but that Wednesday night the rate had accelerated. His circulatory system had begun to deteriorate.

Quebec Plans To Go Ahead With Pension

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—The Quebec government announced today it would introduce its own pension plan within a few months and "a number of measures to stimulate the economy of the province."

These were among the highlights in the Speech from the Throne—an outline of the provincial government's plans for at least the next six months—read by Lieutenant-Governor Paul Comtois.

The government said it also planned to ask the 95-member legislative assembly to approve financial arrangements now under negotiation for an integrated $225 million iron and steel complex.

'Just an Errand Boy' Masson Tells Probe

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Masson, vowing "I was very much the layman," testified to the Dorion inquiry today that he did not know last summer whether the extradition of Lucien Rivard could be prevented.

Masson said all he did in the Rivard affair was pass along word to Raymond Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, that $60,000 was available for the Liberal party election fund if Rivard was not extradited to the United States to face charges in connection with a narcotics smuggling case.

Yves Fortier, counsel for Pierre Lamontagne, suggested that after last July 6 Masson and Denis decided that Rivard had to be released from jail on bail "at any cost."

Masson replied that he did not know what Mr. Fortier meant by the words "at any cost."

He said there never was any question between him and Denis at that time of a bribe or of Mr. Lamontagne's association with the Rivard case.

The witness has identified himself as a "representative" of several companies and a former Liberal party organizer.

Mr. Lamontagne is counsel for the United States justice department which wants Rivard extradited. He has testified that Mr. Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Mr. Fortier asked how, with $60,000 in hand "were you going to go about preventing Rivard's extradition?"

"I had no idea whether we could or couldn't prevent extradition," Masson replied. "I was very much the layman . . ."

"All I did was carry out the errand to Mr. Denis that Mr. Gignac had asked me to do."

Masson has testified that he accepted $1,000 from Robert Gignac, his business partner, now charged with capital murder in a gangland-type slaying here last Sept. 17, to enlist help in Ottawa on Rivard's behalf.

As the hearing reopened before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, Francois Chapados, counsel for Masson, protested about newspaper reports quoting Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre

Scheduled Witness Died in December

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Lucien Rivard testified today at the Dorion inquiry that her brother-in-law Ovide (Dave) Gagnon died at the beginning of December from a heart attack.

Mrs. Rivard, 32, was not asked and did not say why she had not given this evidence when she appeared before the inquiry last week.

The wife of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard said last week that she borrowed $20,000 cash from Gagnon as part of $60,000 intended bail money for her husband.

She said Gagnon was a gatekeeper, ticket-seller and part-time painter at her husband's Plage Ideale resort.

Chief Justice Dorion commented that everyone connected with the commission had expected Gagnon to be a witness.

Commission counsel Andre Des Jardins asked Gagnon's cause of death.

"A heart attack, I think it is called," Mrs. Rivard said.

Chief Justice Dorion asked how old Gagnon was.

"Around 61 or 62," Mrs. Rivard said.

It used to cost 'em thirteen cents,

Throne Speech Stresses Parks, Health, Schools

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

A government program for subsidizing the lower income group's private medical insurance premiums was forecast today in the speech from the Throne as the B.C. legislature opened its 1965 session.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes took about half an hour to read the 3,250-word speech to the glittering opening day assembly in a ceremony that followed a bright, cheery and gusty morning.

Shorter than last year's speech but recording more hydro and forestry progress during the past year, the speech concentrated on programs aimed at human progress in the fields of health, education, probation, parks and pollution.

It also contained a one-sentence promise to amend last year's controversial bank investment legislation which could turn into the "sleeper" of the session if it produces a new flanking movement in the government's battle with the Senate over the Bank of B.C. charter application.

The speech—which is actually written by the premier for the vice-regal representative to read—noted that the B.C. cabinet for years had advocated a national health plan.

Since it now appears the federal government is not prepared to put such a plan into effect at the present time, the legislature was told:

"My government will ask you to consider legislation to provide for government contributions toward the cost of medical insurance services for citizens whose incomes are at lower levels.

Plan Has Voluntary Basis

"Such assistance would be granted in connection with approved medical plans and would be on a voluntary basis."

Premier Bennett declined to tell reporters what the cut-off income level would be for receiving the government help or how many persons would be covered.

However, he said the subsidization program would cost the treasury "many millions of dollars" and will assist "way more than tens of thousands of people."

He also said that he sincerely regrets lack of progress in a national medicare plan and that the B.C. move is designed as an interim step "to help the people who need it most—those in the first group just above" social welfare recipients who already have free medical benefits.

He said that while "we don't intend to wait" for establishment of a national plan, he hoped one would come into existence.

In general outline, as revealed by the throne speech, the medical insurance assistance scheme appears similar to one in operation in Alberta and another proposed in Ontario but Premier Bennett refused to draw any comparisons.

Details Secret About Banks

The premier's ready — although necessarily general—elaboration of the medical insurance references contrasted sharply with a teasing mysteriousness when reporters asked for more information about the bank investment sentence.

It read: "An amendment to the Revenue Act in connection with the investment by my government in the shares of chartered banks will be placed before you."

He gave up only two bits of information, each of which could be indicators that the premier plans a "two-bank" policy as a repeat tactic of his famous "two - river" policy which finally broke the impasse in his drive for Ottawa permission to sell downstream benefits of the Columbia River scheme to the U.S.

One of these bits was his answer — delivered with a grin — "it may go beyond that," when asked if the amendment would merely formalize his earlier undertaking to reduce the controversial 25 per cent government investment limit in the proposed Bank of B.C. to 10 per cent.

This was the chief stumbling block in the Senate banking committee which finally recommended that the B.C. application for a charter be denied. That recommendation still needs ratification by the full Senate.

The other "bit" was Mr. Bennett's pointed reference to the plural "banks" used in the 1965 speech — in sharp contrast to the singular used in the controversial legislation last year.

This immediately raised the questions whether the government might be toying with the idea of trying a desperate 11th-hour flanking movement involving some sort of connection with the proposed Vancouver-based but much smaller Laurentide Bank.

(Creditiste leader Real Caouette—a personal friend of Premier Bennett — has already drawn a connection between the Bank of B.C., Laurentide and Winnipeg-based Bank of Western Canada charter applications. He has warned the House of Commons he will oppose the other charters if the Bank of B.C. is turned down.)

Much of the Throne Speech was devoted to lengthy and glowing reviews of the province's booming economy in 1964 highlighted by massive steps forward in hydro-electric programs, pulp mill plants, highways and the ferry fleet.

"In every aspect of their endeavors our people made un-

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Elizabeth Allen, age 8, of Utica, N.Y., for her question:

How did all the salt get into the ocean?

Andy's faithful old readers grow up and younger ones come along. Many of the same old questions pop into the heads of the younger readers. They must be answered, but Andy hates to repeat himself. So he always finds a new way to answer or a new bit of information to add to an old favorite.

Almost everyone has wondered why the tangy water of the sea is so salty. The oceans are fed by rains and rivers—rain pours down drops of fresh water and rivers pour in streams of more fresh water. None of this fresh water, you would think, can add salt to the salty sea. True, the salt does not fall down with the fresh rain water, but every day more and more salt is added to the sea by the running rivers.

A great river gathers its water from countless smaller streams that come running down from far and wide. All this running water licks the ground, the rocks and stones as it gurgles along its way. Its wet little tongues dissolve scraps and fragments from the soil and even softer scraps from the solid rocks.

These dissolved particles disappear, just as a pinch of salt disappears when you dissolve it in a glass of water. The running streams disolve gold and silver and other minerals from the land. But most of their dissolved minerals are chemical salts of various kinds. All these and other invisible particles are swept along by the running rivers and dumped with their waters into the ocean.

Supply Sea With Salt

The sea never gives these salty chemicals back to the land. As the smiling sun beams down, it evaporates or dries up water from the surface of the sea. But only the fine particles of water change into gas and go off to mingle with the air. Almost all of the dissolved chemicals are left behind. The ocean holds onto the salty chemicals stolen from the land, and every day the running rivers dump still more chemicals into the seas. This has been going on for millions and millions of years, so the salty sea gets saltier every year.

The water in the rivers seems fresh to us, and it does indeed have much less salt than ocean water. But all river water gathers up traces of salty chemicals as it runs over the ground. There are a lot of rivers in the world, and the experts tell us that every year they add several billion tons of salty chemicals to the ocean.

The experts think that millions of years ago, when the world was young, its oceans were filled with fresh water. Year by year the running rivers stole all kinds of chemicals from the land. Year by year they emptied these dissolved salts and other chemicals into the sea. We are told that there are now about 50 quadrillion tons of dissolved salt in the world's salty seas.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A gas pipeline explosion seared Jaege Creek Valley 13 miles east of here today and two cars a mile apart were blown up. An eight-year-old girl in one car was injured fatally and her father burned seriously.

Held 'Inhuman'

HAVANA (Reuters) — A French deputy described the U.S. blockade against Cuba Monday as "inhuman and useless" and said he hoped for much closer relations between Cuba and France.

Deputy Herve Laundrin, a member of a visiting cultural delegation, said in an interview with the newspaper Revolucion he would report to the French parliament on what he had seen in Cuba.

Flood Victims

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Eight persons have died and 1,200 lost their homes in floods caused by heavy rains in the past four days throughout Jordan, an official communique said today.

Freighter Crew Takes to Boats

HONOLULU (AP) — The 442-foot Liberian freighter San Nicola radioed today it was sinking 770 miles northwest of Honolulu and the 30 men aboard have taken to lifeboats.

Two planes and a ship responded to the distress call. The 7,242-ton vessel, bound from San Francisco for Formosa with a load of scrap, first messaged at 2:29 a.m. that it was breaking up.

The U.S. Coast Guard said another message at 4.12 a.m. reported those aboard were "now in lifeboats."

A coast guard plane was dispatched from Barbers Point naval station near Honolulu and was believed already at the scene. The U.S. Air Force also sent a plane.

The nearest ship in the area was identified only as the Maria. It headed for the scene.

There was no immediate report on weather in the area.

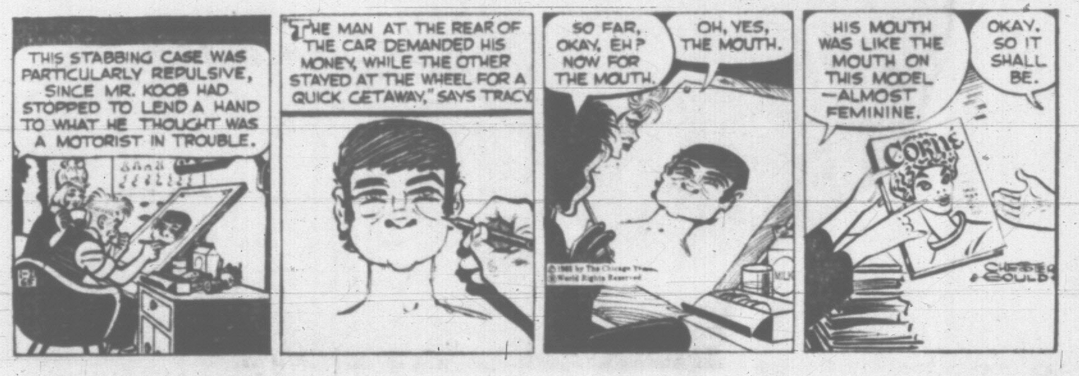
DICK TRACY



THIS STABBING CASE WAS PARTICULARLY REPULSIVE, SINCE MR. KOOB HAD STOPPED TO LEND A HAND TO WHAT HE THOUGHT WAS A MOTORIST IN TROUBLE.
"THE MAN AT THE REAR OF THE CAR DEMANDED HIS MONEY, WHILE THE OTHER STAYED AT THE WHEEL FOR A QUICK GETAWAY," SAYS TRACY.
SO FAR, OKAY, EH? NOW FOR THE MOUTH.
OH, YES, THE MOUTH.
HIS MOUTH WAS LIKE THE MOUTH ON THIS MODEL —ALMOST FEMININE.
